

MARION ROPER

'Gee,' she's $300,000 winner

by JOE SWICKARD

"I can't believe it. I mean gee whiz," said Marion L. Roper of Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Roper, of 402 N. Chesnut Ave., was understandably at a loss for words Thursday night after she won the $300,000 bonanza drawing of the Illinois State Lottery.

"I've never won anything before. Nothing. Not even a $20 winner," she said, her voice straining with excitement and exertion to overcome the hubbub of the victory cocktail party at the WGN studio, where the drawings were conducted.

Mrs. Roper will split her winnings with another couple from Woodstock, regular partners in her weekly purchase of lottery tickets.

"I SPEND $2 every week. That's a Grand Slam $1 ticket, the two 50-cent tickets we buy with our friends and two 50-cent ones for myself," she said.

"I've got to figure out what I'm going to do. After they take the taxes, I'd like to buy a house," she said.

Mrs. Roper, an order and shipping clerk at F. H. Bonn Co., Arlington Heights, said her co-workers were sure she was going to win the big prize.

Her husband, Raymond, was sure, too, but also brought along some extra insurance for her.

"He works at Carl Sandburg School and a P.E. teacher there gave him a lucky charm to bring with us tonight.

It's just a little rock shaped like an egg," she said.

THE LUCKY rock came through for Mrs. Roper, and she said some long-standing plans were going to get a boost with her winnings.

"I'm going to take a vacation. We've had that in the plans for a couple of months. Yes, this will make it a little better," she said.

Kids peddled bicycles in the mild spring night, unaware of their lucky neighbor, as Mrs. Roper returned from the drawing.

When the car stopped, Roper called out: "Here she is." Mrs. Roper, just shook her head and said, "I still can't believe it."

Inside the house, a newspaper clipping of the new Cadillac Seville lay on the coffee table, perhaps something to come with the winnings.

But for the time being, the Ropers plan to continue working. "Well, why not? We've been at this long," Roper chuckled.

MRS. ROPER, still smiling after three hours, said she still just couldn't believe it happened to her.

Her husband was doing his best to convince her. He tuned the television in for the 10 p.m. news to see the winners.

Other winners in the drawing were Matthew Preshren, Hammond, Ind., $50,000; Alexander Grudzinski, Chicago; Jane F. Bjoraa, Chicago, and Andrew Cipri, Peoria, all $10,000 winners.

Officials drop plan to buy, operate buses

by JERRY THOMAS

Elk Grove Village officials have abandoned the idea of purchasing buses or operating a village bus service.

The decision by the village board this week followed a report by the transportation committee that estimated the first-year expenses of a village-operated bus service at $100,000.

Village officials sought the report because they are concerned about the status of federal revenue-sharing funds, which subsidize the present village bus service, operated by Davidsmeyer Bus Co., Elk Grove Village.

The officials were concerned about how bus service would be paid for if revenue sharing is permitted to expire in 1977.

THE PRESENT residential commuter and dial-a-ride-bus service is provided by contract agreement between the village and Davidsmeyer Bus Co., Elk Grove Village.

The service was started March 4, 1974 with the major portion of operational expenses paid from the village's share of federal revenue-sharing funds.

The contract with Davidsmeyer has been renewed several times and is up for renewal in August.

The village bus service is not related to ongoing talks between the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce and the Chicago Transit Authority concerning charter service between the CTA's Jefferson Park station and the Centex Industrial Park.

GARY PARRIN, village administrative assistant, estimated it would cost more than $100,000 in first-year expenses to operate a village-owned community bus service.

Parrin estimated it would cost $30,000 to purchase two buses, with other equipment, radios, personnel, insurance and operational expenses accounting for the remaining costs.

The village subsidized 83 per cent of the present bus service costs and paid Davidsmeyer Bus Co., $30,626 for one year's service.

Parrin said the village officials asked for the cost study because they are concerned about the status of the revenue sharing program and were concerned about how bus service would be paid for if revenue sharing stops.

PARRIN SAID the committee, headed by Trustee Nanci Vanderweel, is studying alternate means of providing bus service other than the present contractual service or a village-owned service.

"Perhaps we will find some other grant source or means of funding the service," Parrin said.

He said a major problem faced by the committee is finding other services to study.

"I couldn't find any municipality in the area that provided a community bus service that compared to ours, excepting for township services which are completely subsidized," Parrin said.

Some of the other methods of providing transportation to the community under investigation include a subsidized cab service or limiting the bus service to fixed routes instead of the door-to-door service now provided.

On a spring day, kites and kite flyers come in all shapes and sizes.

U.S. gets low-income housing subsidy program

A countywide plan for housing subsidies to low- and moderate-income families in Chicago and the suburbs has been submitted to the federal government.

The housing-assistance plan is part of a community-development program providing federal funds for capital-improvement projects in the suburbs.

The county housing-assistance plan was drawn up in one week because of tight federal deadlines for submitting the application. It was the work of five members of the county community-development advisory council, a group of suburban mayors appointed by County Board Pres. George W. Dunne.

THE PLAN calls for an additional 1,000 units of low- and moderate-income housing to be made available during the next year in Cook County. The elderly should be given 400 out of the 1,000 units, the plan says.

Out of the 1,000 units, 200 should be in new buildings, 700 in existing buildings and 100 in rehabilitated buildings that were substandard, the plan says.

The subsidy program is expected to cost all of the $2.8 million the county hopes to get under the housing section of the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

The housing plan calls for rehabilitation of housing in south and southwest Cook County. "The greatest need for rehabilitation appears to be in these areas including abandoned property," the plan says.

In finding units in newly-constructed rental projects, the plan says "the aim is to achieve spatial deconcentration of these housing opportunities, and to make a special effort to provide them near centers of employment."

TERRY HANSEN, an administrative aide to Dunne, said during the next year the mayors will work to refine the goals and, for example, to decide if emphasis should be on rehabilitation of existing neighborhoods or on funding locations near employment centers.

HANSEN SAID the county also hopes to work with suburban building departments during the next year to pinpoint substandard buildings that could be rehabilitated with the federal funds.

The subsidies can be spent for housing anywhere in the county, Hansen said, even though the capital improvements funds under the same federal act must be spent in communities which have allowed their populations to be added to the urban county total.

Locally, Palatine, Schaumburg, Wheeling and Rolling Meadows have allowed their populations to be included in the urban county total and the village presidents of Palatine, Wheeling and Schaumburg serve on the county community-development advisory council.

Race to decide Lottery finalists

Matching three numbers is worth $20. Matching four is worth $100. Matching all five is worth $5,000.

In the Weekly Bonanza and Millionaire game:

888 344 794

Matching two of the three three-digit numbers makes you eligible for $300,000 (given every week) or the $1 million jackpot (given every two months).

A special horse race at Washington Park Race Track in Chicago tonight will determine the final qualifiers in the Grand Slam contest in the Illinois Lottery.

The grand prize of $50,000 a year for life will go to one of some 60 finalists determined at the harness track. They will become eligible for a final race at Arlington Park Race Track June 14 and pick up their winnings in ceremonies afterwards.

Friday's race begins at 6:45 following the drawing of the 12th and final set of Grand Slam numbers. The post position of the first five horses ultimately will determine the five-digit number used to whittle the finalists down.

Matching the five-digit number on the Winners Circle stub makes you eligible for the top prize or other prizes of $500 or $250, depending on a separate drawing of colors. On each ticket, the horse in which the number has been placed is shaded with a different color — white, red or blue. So you have to hit the number and the right color to become eligible for the jackpot.

Some of harness racing's premier drivers will be riding. On hand will be Joe Marsh, 1974 world champion; Joe O'Brien, hall of famer, and Bob Farrington.

The June 14 race at Arlington Park will have similar rules. The lifetime prize includes a guarantee that the winner or his estate will get at least $1 million should anything happen to him before he receives the first 20 installments. The runnerup will get $50,000. Qualifiers have until June 9 to turn in their tickets and prove eligibility.

Suburban digest

Lawyer group urges judges be dropped

The Chicago Council of Lawyers has recommended that four Northwest suburban associate judges be dropped from their posts by Circuit Court judges voting on their retention. The council's recommendations follow those of the Chicago Bar Assn., released a week ago. The council listed 35 judges it considered not qualified for retention, including associate judges John Gannon, James Maher Jr., and Albert H. LaPlante of the 3rd Municipal District based in Niles, and John J. Limperis of the 2nd District, based in Skokie. The council listed "lack of judicial temperament" as the reason for recommending dismissal of the four. The Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., in its own poll last February, also found Limperis and Maher not qualified, but the association's recommendations were ignored by the Chicago bar.

Police chief's action hit

Several Wheeling officials called Thursday for an investigation of Police Chief Peter T. Gutilla's action interceding in a court hearing on hit-and-run charges against his secretary's son-in-law. Village hall sources reported a heated closed-door meeting Thursday morning between Gutilla and Village Mgr. George Passoli in Passoli's office after the incident was disclosed by The Herald. Passoli refused comment later on speculation that he would take disciplinary action against Gutilla. He said he expected to finish an inquiry into the matter today. Gutilla interceded Wednesday in the court case by asking the judge for a pretrial conference. Following the conference, the prosecuting attorney asked to drop two charges but the judge refused.

Price cuts called 'hoax'

An official of the Citizens Action Program (CAP) has charged that the "price wars" in Palatine grocery stores are a hoax. "If there is a price war going on then the stores are shooting with blanks," said Jackie Kendall, Palatine, co-chairman of CAP's consumer coalition. The group surveyed prices in five major grocery chains in March and last week. Officials of the grocery stores said the survey is not valid. "I support the efforts of this kind of group, but the survey of 40 staple items cannot indicate what the prices are for the total market," said William Newby, a spokesman for Jewel Food Stores. "The best way for a comparison is for the consumer to compare the prices of things he buys the most of himself," said a spokesman for Dominick's Finer Foods.

Eugenia a 'Chap-person'?

State Rep. Eugenia M. Chapman has been urged by House Majority Leader Gerald Shea, D-Riverdale, to join the women's rights movement by changing her name. In a light-hearted resolution, Shea has called on Mrs. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, to change from Chapman to Chap-person. Mrs. Chapman is a vocal supporter of the Equal Rights Amendment. Shea's resolution stated that "We suggest to Rep. Chapman that her advocacy of women's rights would be immeasurably improved if . . . she would change her name to Chap-person."

April wholesale price rise first in five months

Wholesale prices in the United States rose 1.5 per cent in April, the first increase in five months, the government said Thursday.

The wholesale index, released by the Labor Dept., usually is a warning of cost increases to consumers in future months.

The bulk of the increases was attributed to wholesale food prices but was cushioned by predictions by several economists that the worst of the recession is over.

Farm prices, which declined from December through March, rose 6.7 per cent and were averaged into industrial price increases of only .1 per cent. Livestock, fruit and vegetable prices increased while sugar and confectionery products continued to decline.

RECOVERY FROM the worst recession since the Depression was predicted by several big bank economists and government officials.

"Convincing signs that the psychological bottom of the recession has been reached" are showing, Bank of America economists said. Although there will be "no boom," a "more vigorous" recovery over the next 18 months is expected now than was expected a short time ago.

"It seems likely that the recession will come to a halt at some point during the summer," said Donald E. Woolley of Bankers Trust. First National City of New York economists made similar predictions.

The bottom could be reached "perhaps before midyear," said Treasury Sec. William Simon. Officials from the Federal Reserve banks in New York and San Francisco, also said signs point to an upturn in the economy.

Municipalities, townships may have to hold primaries

Local cities, villages and townships may be forced to hold primary elections next year if the U. S. District Court doesn't reverse a ruling last month in a Chicago case.

Michael Lavelle, chairman of the Illinois Board of Elections, has asked the court to uphold state election laws that don't require primary elections if only one person from each political party is a certified candidate on the ballot.

State officials fear a ruling in the case of the Rev. Francis X. Lawlor's request for a congressional primary in a Chicago district could force primary elections even in cases where no one files as a candidate for an office.

Lavelle said the state board isn't contesting the Lawlor primary, which involves a case in which Lawlor was ruled off the ballot.

"We feel the statute is not constitutional in all instances," he said, explaining the ruling "could get to be very expensive" if it requires primaries for each election in all villages, cities and townships.

State officials also are researching the effect of the Lawlor ruling on elections for local governments such as park, school, library and fire protection districts.

Lavelle's request Wednesday for dissolution of the Lawlor ruling as it applies to municipal elections went to U. S. District Court Judge Alfred Y. Kirkland, who ordered attorneys to prepare written arguments within two months.

U.S. newsmen report from Indochina

Foreigner says Americans couldn't leave with class

(There is no indication whether this dispatch has passed through censorship. Five UPI newsmen remained behind when the Americans evacuated Saigon last week.)

by ALAN DAWSON

SAIGON (UPI) — May 5 (Delayed) — Since the last helicopter carried the last U.S. Marine guard out of Saigon early Wednesday morning April 30, there has been growing criticism of the haste and apparent excitement of the evacuation.

Left behind were other Americans, foreign diplomats and uncounted hundreds of Vietnamese employees they had promised to take with them.

"The Americans could not even leave Saigon with class," said one foreigner who remained behind.

The South Korean Embassy charge d'affaires stopped trying to get into the U.S. Embassy when a Marine guard hit him in the chest with a tear gas grenade. He went into hiding afterwards.

Americans working at the U.S. Information Service went secretly and separately to the embassy, then telephoned their offices to tell Vietnamese who volunteered to stay until the last moment to try to get to an evacuation point.

American prisoners were left in the Saigon prison and were in Saigon when the Viet Cong opened the jail hours after the final U.S. helicopter had left.

An American woman who was in the embassy trying to help a group of 13 Vietnamese leave said she heard one explosion which Marines told her was a hand grenade.

"That explosion was quite a way from the embassy and there was no other shooting or explosion I heard," she said.

A senior U.S. Embassy official told the woman the front gate of the embassy was not safe and he left. The woman stayed for another hour before walking back to downtown Saigon.

Interviews with persons of different nationalities who were at the embassy that evening — the most tense time of the evacuation — said there was no panic and no shooting in the area.

UPI reporter Chad Humley said "There was absolutely no panic, no mob action. When I walked up to the gate, the people cleared a path for me."

An American employee of the U.S. Agency for International Development (who was left behind) waited at the front gate of the embassy overnight hoping to get inside. He said there was no hostility among those waiting with him.

He joined the crowd which broke into the embassy after the last helicopter landed and waited on the rooftop landing pad just in case another chopper came. It did not.

A Vietnamese newsmen on one bus brought two USIS employees to UPI "because there still are Americans there."

A UPI newsmen telephoned USIS official Alan Carter at the embassy to say his secretary was at the downtown office. Carter said he would telephone back but never did.

SMILING KHMER Rouge soldiers mount the hood of a military vehicle as it rolls through the street of Phnom Penh May 17, following the surrender of the city. All residents later had to evacuate.

Takeover of Phnom Penh was quick

by RICHARD DOYLE

BANGKOK (UPI) — Nearly 1,000 persons made their way to the French Embassy compound following the fall of Phnom Penh on April 17 and then to Thailand three weeks later in two road convoys. The fact that so many were able to do so with only three deaths is a miracle of sorts.

As we drove out through the city it was a ghost town. Outside of Le Phnom hotel, a unit of Khmer Rouge troops was drilling. Aside from them and the few guards that were on duty on the streets, it was a 'lifeless city. No one was on the streets.

Sanitary conditions at the embassy became appalling. There were outbreaks of illness, as well as problems of food and water in the early days. The dedication and skill of a handful of doctors and nurses that were in the compound did much to prevent a disaster.

The three-day trip by truck and bus from Phnom Penh to the Thai border was physically exhausting, but was an incredible experience because it gave us a look at a Cambodia that few outsiders have ever seen.

In the first few days of our stay at the embassy, a drama of major proportions was under way outside. Shortly after they took over the city, the Khmer Rouge circulated through it with loudspeakers, telling the population to leave for the countryside.

For several days we watched as the populace—swollen to well over 1 million at the war's end—went past in a steady procession. Some went in cars and some were in ox carts, but most walked. Patients were even ordered out of hospitals and were taken out by their relatives.

The drama had begun on April 17 when Phnom Penh finally fell after five years of war. The takeover went quickly, within the space of a few hours, although there was some fighting inside the city itself.

The French Embassy compound was in the path of advancing Khmer Rouge troops who were entering the city from the north and it turned out to be a unique observation post.

Early in the morning refugees started flooding into the city past the embassy. Men, women and children carrying mats and cooking utensils, their few meager possessions, streamed through the large square in front of the embassy.

When the sound of small arms fire erupted nearby, the square quickly became deserted.

A government army truck towing a 105 mm howitzer careened around the corner, fleeing toward the center of the city and suddenly came under heavy fire from Khmer Rouge guerrillas. It swerved sharply and a soldier aboard it fired a shot from an M79 grenade launcher at the insurgents as it disappeared.

From a bathroom window the first Khmer Rouge troops could be seen unloading their way along a wall on the far side of the square.

By 10 a.m. more troops were moving into the square. Suddenly the firing slackened as the battle moved past us. Cambodians ventured out into the square to talk to the Khmer Rouge.

By noontime dozens of jeeps and trucks, even a few tracked armored vehicles, had raced past the embassy. They all carried white flags.

By afternoon the entire city was in Khmer Rouge hands although there was scattered firing from time to time, possibly as holdouts were mopped up. Hundreds of refugees began to pour into the embassy.

Senate OKs bill to aid refugees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Moving swiftly to help welcome and resettle Indochina refugees, the Senate Thursday earmarked an initial $17 million for the immigrants and more extensive funding bills advanced quickly through House committees. The House Judiciary Committee approved an open-ended refugees aid package after narrowly rejecting a $307 million ceiling, the amount sought by President Ford to cover transportation, health, employment and temporary support requirements of the refugees.

Committee sources said the bill could be taken up by the full House by next Wednesday.

Cuba reconciliation overtures accepted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an apparent breakthrough in a 14-year-old hemispheric cold war, the White House Thursday accepted what appeared to be overtures toward reconciliation by Cuban Premier Fidel Castro. Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Castro "seems to have accepted what the White House has referred to as the mutuality of obligation in improving relations between Cuba and the United States."

His remarks were based on news reports from Havana Quoting Castro at a news conference as saying, "We wish for the people of the United States a wish of friendship," plus indicating during a talk with visiting U.S. Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., a willingness to consider returning a $2 million ransom from a hijacked U.S. plane plus possible release of nine U.S. political prisoners in Havana.

"The United States has said we see no future in perpetual antagonism" toward Cuba, Nessen told reporters when asked about Castro's remarks. "The White House is aware of reports on that and notes that he seems to have accepted what the White House has referred to in the past as the mutuality of obligations," Nessen said.

That phrase was most recently used by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in a speech in Houston last month.

"We have taken some symbolic steps to indicate that we are prepared to move in a new direction if Cuba will," he said then. "Fundamental change cannot come, however, unless Cuba demonstrates a readiness to assume the mutuality of obligation and regard upon which a new relationship must be founded."

Nessen said the State Department is prepared to discuss Castro requests for medicines. The spokesman said he is "not announcing a change in U.S. policy toward Cuba," and noted that a number of significant differences remain between the two countries.

Nevertheless, veteran White House observers noted in his remarks a definite softening of the U.S. position toward Cuba.

The Organization of American States, which would have to vote an end to the trade embargo it imposed in 1964, is meeting in Washington this week but earlier decided against calling up the question of Cuban sanctions.

It was not immediately known if the new developments might change that decision.

New Jersey slates legal numbers lottery

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—The nation's first legal numbers lottery designed to compete with the illegal operations run by the mob — will begin May 22 in New Jersey on a six-month trial basis, Gov. Brendan T. Byrne announced Thursday.

Lottery gamblers will have the opportunity to bet their favorite numbers with the state, just as they now do when they place an illegal bet based on a hunch, a dream, a birthday or some other sign of luck.

In New York, state and city officials also were reported considering a numbers-type lottery.

Law enforcement officials who are skeptical of impact the state's game will have on the rackets pointed out the illegal lottery is different in several respects. Numbers runners often make daily rounds to collect bets from their regular customers, while legal gamblers must visit one of the 350 machines operated by the state Lottery Commission.

Also, the state will charge a minimum of 50 cents. Most streetcorner operations start at 25 cents, and a few still cost a dime.

The state won't give the credit that numbers runners extend to heavy gamblers.

And — most important — legal winnings will be taxable.

The state-run numbers game is the latest in a series of gimmicks the commission has come up with in recent years to bolster sagging revenues. Once hailed as a major revenue source for New Jersey, the regular state lottery is expected to net only $38 million this fiscal year. At one time, the regular lottery earned $69 million.

Former State Police Chief David B. Kelly said last year at a public hearing that a "conservative" estimate of the illegal take from all gambling in New Jersey is more than $1 billion.

Byrne said that the state's numbers game will be called "Pick-It."

The system was designed by former Lottery Executive Director Charles C. Carella, who, ironically, is a former prosecutor in Essex County where he specialized in fighting organized crime.

Byrne said the legal numbers "will give the lottery, for the first time, the realistic potential to compete with the illegal numbers racket."

Avery Brundage dies in Frankfurt

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee for 20 years, died Thursday in Frankfurt, Germany. He was 87. Brundage left for Germany on March 9 to be with his bride, a 39-year-old German princess. He originally had been scheduled to return home on April 12, his housekeeper said. She said he was in good health when he departed and she did not know the cause of his death.

Thirty years ago Thursday, Adolf Hitler's dream of a thousand-year German Reich collapsed in war-ravaged Berlin. The Soviet Union, whose armies smashed into the Fuehrer's bunker, marked the 30th anniversary of the end of World War II in Europe by decreeing an amnesty for prisoners who contributed to the war effort. In a televised address in Bonn, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt told the nation Germans do not mourn Hitler's fall, but have "little reason to rejoice on May 8."

The former campaign manager for Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, Jack L. Chestnut, Thursday was convicted of willfully soliciting and accepting an illegal corporate contribution from a dairymen's cooperative during the senator's 1970 campaign. Neither Chestnut nor his wife, Karen, showed any emotion at the verdict.

Christina Onassis and Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, with "not a lot of love lost between them, met secretly in London to discuss the estimated $1 billion fortune left by Christina's father, a spokesman for the Onassis family reported Thursday. Christina, 24, is reported to be in dispute with her stepmother, the widow of President John F. Kennedy over the Onassis millions. "I don't know exactly what happened," spokesman Nigel Neilson said.

It was a bad night at Bad Bob's recently. Singer Jerry Lee Lewis has been fined $25 for beating a waitress with a violin bow and the waitress was fined $15 for breaking the bow. Lewis was convicted of assault and battery and charged an additional $10 court costs. Waitress Diane Siler was

In Madison, Wis., an aspiring go-go girl was listed as "disabled" by a state employment agency because she was small-breasted — so she received silicone injections at state expense, says state Sen. Thomas Petri. With the treatments, however, she was better prepared to seek work and is now "gainfully employed in a discotheque," Petri said. Four members of the office which Petri said helped out the dancer have been indicted on charges of mismanagement of state funds.

Black, white students fight in Boston

State and local police broke up a demonstration by 500 white students and local residents at South Boston High School Thursday as black students arrived in buses for morning classes. About 270 police, five on horseback and 36 riding motorcycles, pushed the demonstrators back a block down the street and cleared a path for the black students who drove up in yellow buses to enter the building. There were no arrests or injuries.

Doctors' strike may spread on W. Coast

The anesthetists strike that has ended most surgery in the San Francisco area threatened Thursday to spread swiftly to all major population areas of California. Sacramento's 60 anesthetologists planned to hang up their white coats Friday, and San Jose's 70 said they would quit work Monday. A meeting to consider a strike was scheduled in San Diego, and angry talk of a strike burst from Los Angeles' 500 of the specialists.

Near completion of energy tax bill

The House Ways and Means Committee Thursday neared completion of an energy tax bill that was criticized by two Democratic members on grounds it favored special interests and would do little to conserve fuels. The bill would raise the federal tax on gasoline, tax cars making inefficient use of fuel, reward industries which save fuels or turn to more plentiful ones, and set up a new federal fund to pay for energy research and development.

Communist troops on move in Laos

Communist Pathet Lao troops accompanied by rebellious neutralist soldiers are moving to take a second section of the highway linking Vientiane and the royal capital of Luang Prabang, loyalist military sources in Laos said Thursday. The troops were reported moving toward Highway 13 in order to cut it at a point about 50 miles north of Vientiane and south of the neutralist center of Vang Vieng.

Greece, Cyprus in accord on Turkey

The governments of Greece and Cyprus reaffirmed Thursday their joint policy on strategy to resolve the crisis with Turkey over Cyprus. "The two governments are completely aligned on their positions concerning the Cyprus issue and its further handling," Greek Premier Constantine Karamanlis said after a two-hour meeting with President Archbishop Makarios of Cyprus.

School in soul-searching mood; seek to set goals

by DOROTHY OLIVER
The Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education agreed Thursday night that its function is to set standards for the district, determine goals, evaluate how the district is meeting those goals and educate the community on what the board is doing.

In a committee-of-the-whole meeting, board members discussed the importance of determining the future of the district by setting standards and goals now.

The meeting is the first of three the board will hold to discuss its function, problems facing the district and ways to solve the problems.

Board members also agreed that their primary function should include determining curriculum, providing buildings, hiring staff and administration, budgeting with fiscal responsibility, becoming involved in state legislation of education and being consistent.

"IN SETTING goals we are trying to set a distinct direction that passes from one board to another," said Board Pres. Edward Bedard. "Future boards can modify it as they see fit."

Bedard said during the April election campaign the issue of long-range planning and consistency came up many times. "I think consistency is an area we are all painfully aware is going to be a problem."

Board member Dr. Edgar Feldman raised another election issue that the board was constantly bogged down by details. "I think the board should be broad based," he said. "There are certain things any board should be a rubber stamp for, like the height of the pile of the carpeting."

Feldman said the board should be decision makers basing their decisions on the expert opinions of the staff.

Board member Sherry Reynolds challenged Feldman, saying if the board relies only on the information provided by the administration, the district loses the system of checks and balances.

"How does the board adequately evaluate if it doesn't have first-hand information," she said.

DIST. SUPT. Wayne Schablie said "It is impossible for us to keep seven people that well informed." Schablie said the administration expects the board to "set goals so we know where to go, set policy so we know what you want us to do. It is my job as chief executive officer to carry out your policy. If a superintendent doesn't do that, then he should be replaced."

Discussion at one point also revolved around how much the board should listen to the community. Former board member Adam Jelen, who attended the meeting, said one area he felt most board members were lax in is that they don't go out to the community to talk to the people.

Wheeling chief hit for court action

by LUISA GINETTI

Several Wheeling officials called Thursday for an investigation of Police Chief Peter T. Guttilla's action in interceding in a court hearing on hit-and-run charges against his secretary's son-in-law.

Village hall sources reported a heated closed-door meeting Thursday morning between Guttilla and Village Mgr. George Passoli in Passoli's office after the incident was disclosed by The Herald.

Passoli refused comment later on speculation that he would take disciplinary action against Guttilla. He said he expected to finish an inquiry into the matter today.

Harper courses slated in new shop center

by WANDALYN HICE

Harper College will offer classes this fall in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area.

The college's board of trustees Thursday night authorized the administration to negotiate a lease for space in the new Hintz-Buffalo Grove shopping center in Wheeling where the college will offer day and evening classes in 10 classrooms.

The board was urged to take the action by Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Edward Fabish, who said, "The idea of a facility close to our community is ideal. I think you will be very surprised at the turnout."

College officials said they expect to negotiate a lease for about $100,000 per year for five years. College Vice Pres. John Birkhult said as many as 20 students may be attending classes at the center at any one time.

COLLEGE PRES. Robert Lahti said the new center will probably mean a substantial increase in the college's enrollment from the Wheeling area. He said, "We draw a smaller proportion of people from the village of Wheeling, but when you bring services closer to people, participation increases. Why should 40 people drive from Wheeling to Palatine when we can send one instructor there?"

Board member Robert Rausch recommended that the college negotiate for an additional parking lot near the shopping center at the same time it negotiates the lease in the center. College officials indicated the shopping center has space for about 250 cars. Because of that, Rausch said, "It's obvious we're going to need more parking space."

Classes will be offered at the center in business, communications, engineering, science and other fields. The center will be the first place the college will offer off-campus classes both day and evening.

The college now offers off-campus classes in Barrington High School and several smaller locations during evening. The board last month approved a lease agreement with St. Viator High School, Arlington Heights, and will offer evening classes there next fall.

GUTTILLA INTERCEDED Wednesday on behalf of Luis Arellano, 1530 Park Pl., Des Plaines, and asked Associate Judge James Maher Jr. for a pretrial conference to discuss circumstances in the case.

Arellano was in court facing head-on, hit-and-run accident charges stemming from a March 21 accident two miles north of Hintz Road on Milwaukee Avenue. Arellano's car apparently crossed into northbound traffic and caused a collision with an auto driven by Gwyn Bontrager of Elkhart, Ind.

Maher refused to drop charges and continued the case to May 21.

Guttilla said he was at the hearing only to keep Arellano company and denied he attempted to talk Bontrager into dropping charges against Arellano.

TRUSTEES CONTACTED Thursday said they had no knowledge of the incident until reading about it in The Herald but felt some action should be taken by Passoli.

"I'm very, very concerned after reading the article," Trustee Gilbert Monoson said. "If it's a matter of poor judgment it's serious in that respect alone," he said.

"I think it raises grave questions concerning the man's ability to lead a department and inspire his men when he himself exhibits such poor judgment," Monoson added.

"There are a number of unanswered questions that need to be answered but I definitely plan to pursue it," the trustee said.

TRUSTEE Charles M. Kerr said he did not know about the incident until Thursday. "I didn't know about it until I walked into the office," he said. "I think it is a problem for the manager because the chief is under the manager. I think the action (of the chief) deserves some action from the village manager," Kerr said.

Trustee Otis Hedlund said action should be taken against the chief if he acted improperly. "If the chief used his position in this instance, he used it wrongly," Hedlund said.

"It's something we'll have to take a serious look at because misusing powers in a private matter is a serious thing," Hedlund added.

TRUSTEE William Hein said he was unaware of the incident and declined comment "until I hear both sides of the story."

Trustee John Cole also declined comment on the matter because he said he also was unaware of the situation.

Trustee Donald Jackson could not be reached for comment. The board will conduct an executive session Monday night after the regular board meeting to discuss personnel matters. The chief's case is expected to be reviewed.

Walker discloses $148,365 wages, $54,658 in taxes

Illinois Gov. Daniel Walker paid $54,658.60 in taxes last year on an income of $148,365, he disclosed Thursday.

Walker made public for the fifth straight year his tax returns and other details of personal finance. The governor's largest single source of income during 1974 was the sale of $90,177 of Marcor, Inc. stock. That sale was conducted by the attorney who is managing his finances in "a blind trust," Walker said.

His second largest source of income was his $30,000-a-year salary as governor. He also got $7,688 in dividends and interest and a $300 honorarium, which he endorsed to a charitable organization.

Walker reported his federal tax bill was $49,122.33. He said he paid $3,522.21 in Illinois income tax, and $2,014.04 in local real estate taxes.

Gas prices up: survey

Gasoline prices have increased throughout Illinois and in northern Indiana over the past two weeks, the Chicago Motor Club said Thursday.

The club said its weekly survey showed the average price of a gallon of regular and premium gas rose almost a penny in the Chicago metropolitan area.

Regular gasoline rose from an average of 56.8 cents to 57.7 cents a gallon and premium from an average of 61.4 cents to 62.3 cents in the Chicago area, the club said.

Segregated school hit

The Illinois Board of Education Thursday ordered the Office of Education to take action, including possible cuts in funding, against 26 segregated school districts.

The board voted 11 to 0 to urge "full implementation of the rules" to desegregate schools. The rules allow the state to shut off federal funding to any school that refused to adopt a desegregation plan. After a year, state aid can also be cut.

The districts considered segregated are Chicago, Joliet, Maywood, Rock Island, Rockford, Springfield, Argo, Aurora East, Cahokia, Contralia, Chicago Heights, East Moline, Harvey, Hazelcrest, Madison, Aurora West, Bellwood, Proviso of Bellwood, Champaign, Blue Island, East St. Louis, Elgin, Harvey West, Moline, Pecon-Robbins and St. Anne.

Official can't be fired

Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen has issued a temporary restraining order preventing Gov. Walker from firing one of his two Republican appointees to the state Board of Elections.

Cohen said he will hold another hearing next Thursday on the firing of Franklin Lunding Jr. Wednesday on grounds Lunding has failed to file an ethics statement.

Lunding, of Winnetka, said he has filed an ethics statement as required by the Illinois Governmental Ethics Act but questions Walker's constitutional power to require him to file with the Board of Ethics, whose members are appointed by the governor.

2 hostages freed

A Chicago man holding two passengers hostage on a Greyhound bus and threatening to kill them surrendered peacefully Thursday. Police said the man was not armed and there were no injuries.

The suspect, identified as Thaddeus Williams, 20, was taken to Madison County jail at Edwardsville.

State police said there were 40 passengers on the bus, headed west on Interstate 70, when the incident occurred about 2 a.m.

NIPC backs Rock Island

The Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission has termed as "absolutely necessary" the proposed purchase of 50 new bilevel cars and 21 diesel locomotives for the Rock Island commuter line in the Chicago area.

The commission, official planning agency for Cook, DuPage, Kane, Lake, McHenry and Will counties, gave favorable comment Wednesday on application for $33,468,690 in federal matching grants to replace the Rock Island's 25-to 30-year-old rolling stock.

SIU health center OK'd

The Southern Illinois University Board of Trustees Thursday approved establishment at Vandalla of the first in a planned series of regional health-education centers in central and southern Illinois.

Dr. Donald H. Rames, a Vandalla physician, was named coordinator of the center, which is designed to help practicing physicians and other health professionals continue their education.

2 die in plane crash

Piper Cherokee airplane crashed Thursday shortly after takeoff from the Mount Hawley Airport in Peoria, killing both occupants.

Witnesses at the airport said the plane appeared to lose power as it apparently was trying to make an emergency landing when the craft slammed into the ground.

4 bank directors indicted

Four present and former directors of the First National Bank of Oglesby, Ill., were indicted by a federal grand jury Thursday on charges of conspiring to defraud the bank of more than $35,000.

Named in the indictment were Thomas Rles Clydesdale Sr., 62, former chief judge of the Illinois Circuit Court and former chairman of the bank board; Peter Corgiat, 60, bank president until 1973; Gildo Costa, 63, a barber; and Oliver Halm, 76, a farmer.

Herald opinion

Don't reject Viet refugees

This is not the moment for the United States to reverse its long attitude of compassion and support to beleaguered refugees from war-torn nations who seek shelter in our land.

Today, however, as 120,000 Vietnamese victims of the Southeast Asian war gain sanctuary in the United States, there's a growing and deplorable pressure from some Americans to ship them back to the Orient.

The reactions seem to have developed primarily because some Americans believe the Vietnamese will deprive native Americans of jobs. But there are also some Americans who mistakenly believe that we bear no responsibility whatsoever for the human consequences of the Vietnam struggle.

In the forefront of the opposition to the U.S. refugee program is Sen George McGovern, D-S.D., who has called for the voluntary return to Vietnam of many of the refugees. "Ninety per cent of the Vietnamese refugees who left would be better off going back to their own land now that the initial panic has subsided," he recently said.

McGovern, however, is badly misjudging the realities facing most of the refugees. Most feared for their lives, and there's no reason to believe that their fears are not legitimate. Perhaps a substantial number will eventually wish to return to Vietnam, but this must be done after diplomatic relations are established with the new Vietnamese government, not while the ashes of conflict are still glowing.

The history which should be understood by those who oppose the entry of refugees here is that we've always been a nation that has graciously accepted refugees from foreign lands, even when economic times were difficult. War victims from the World War II European nations, from Hungary in 1956 and from Cuba in 1961 have been accepted without an extended national debate; there's no reason now to discard that open door policy.

Besides, the refugees don't represent a massive threat to the stability of the United States job market. As President Ford pointed out Tuesday, only 35,000 of the 120,000 refugees are heads of households and thus would hold jobs — and, as economic times improve, we're certain that jobs can be found for these new Americans.

To those who oppose the presence of Vietnamese refugees in the United States, it must also be noted that the 120,000 Vietnamese will not remain forever in resettlement camps; in a few short years they'll be largely assimilated into American society and will be making contributions similar to those that each of us make. Finally, it must not be forgotten that we are a nation of immigrants, and that our ancestors have benefitted from this nation's attitude of an open-handed welcome to the survivors of wars in other lands.

Want a firehouse?

The possibilities for private enterprise are endless, but we suppose in the long run that it is best that the guy who bought the Schaumburg Fire Station for back taxes turn it back to the village.

It seems that because of some paperwork foul-up, the village of Schaumburg's newest fire station, a four-bay building, nicely appointed, went on the delinquent tax rolls and some smart operator picked up the property for a song. The building cost $224,000, the tax shark got the place for $6,500.

But of course the deal won't go through. Fire stations are on tax-exempt property lists normally and so this bargain for any property hunter will be paper-shuffled into another file.

But I think of the possibilities. Consider the value in private ownership of municipal buildings. It would be nice, for example, to own the village hall and then prowl the corridors and complain that the tenants just weren't keeping the place up.

And if the mayor did something dumb, the property owner could just go in some day and turn off the heat.

I would like to express my opinion on the subject of handguns. May I state at the outset that I am a police officer, and although there is no presumption on my part that I speak for any other police officer or department, I would hope that the vast majority would support me on my position. That position is that there is no sound reason for any private citizen to own a handgun!

I have been in many discussions with people that own handguns, and the majority of people I have spoken with, the one reason or shall I call it excuse, that is prevalent as to why they own handguns is protection of themselves and their families. It is my contention that a handgun in the hands of an ordinary citizen presents a greater danger to them than any conceivable situation where the handgun would "protect" them.

As a police officer, I carry a handgun. This is both on and off duty. Admittedly, this was a pure ego trip at first. I showed off my guns and was proud of the "power" that I now possessed. This was before I realized the truly awesome responsibility that goes with it. The very thought of me taking a human life, or seriously crippling someone, even in the line of duty, is devastating. The effect it would have on both my personal and professional life is frightening. But I have accepted the responsibility and feel confident that I would do whatever is necessary to protect the people I am sworn to protect, and to take this burden from those people.

How many of you handgun owners have ever had a handgun safety class? How many of you have practiced at a range to achieve the degree of accuracy to assure that you are going to hit what you are shooting at, especially when your heart is pounding and your hands are shaking as they would be if you are going to kill someone to protect yourself? How many of you have thought where that bullet you shoot in self-protection is going to finally come to rest? Will it go through the wall, as most will, and strike someone you love? Will it end up a quarter of a mile away, striking somebody that is in control of a car? Quite possibly! You then may be responsible for numerous innocent people being killed, instead of one person you conceive as a threat. How many of you know the legal ramifications if you do kill someone, and I speak of both criminal and civil liabilities? How many of you realize the danger of a ricochet? How many of you have children?

The argument that my guns are locked, or in a place my children can't get to, is always used. But this makes the argument that handguns are owned for protection pure fantasy. If you can get to the gun for protection, your child also can get to the gun. I will not expound on the number of accidental deaths caused by handguns each year. Cases where children shoot and kill themselves or a playmate through the carelessness of their parents are common knowledge. So is the case where the handgun is kept at the bedside for protection of the home, and a child is killed by the family "protector" simply because the child wanted a drink of water or had a nightmare and walked into the parents room to seek comfort.

I will not even comment on the statement I have heard over and over, that my children have been told not to touch my guns. I am not a parent as of yet, but if I were, and there

Lunch program blasted

Some of us at Mac Arthur School in Hoffman Estates would like to thank the lady who ripped into Dist. 54's lunch program.

We strongly oppose the 15 minutes eating time in the (gym) lunch room, then the 15 minutes of chaos back in the classroom. We can't see how one lunch mother can take care of two classrooms at the same time.

Rips remap scheme

The reapportionment of Illinois Congressional districts recently proposed by State Senator Cecil Parizee is of great concern to voters in the 10th Congressional District. This proposed bill would drastically alter the boundaries of our district. Since we have recently elected a new Congressman this bill effectively disenfranchises a great many of the voters in this district. Certainly, we have every right to expect better treatment from our state legislature.

It is obvious that the proposal is entirely political in nature and should be rejected by the Illinois Senate and House of Representatives. Politics has no place in this issue; the ultimate concern of the legislature should be to provide the fairest representation for all the people of Illinois. We look to the Republican senators and representatives as well as the new Democratic majority to support the rights and interests of the people of every Congressional district. I would personally urge every reader to support our rights and their own rights by advising their representatives of their feelings on this issue.

He rejects handguns for citizens

was the slightest chance that I could prevent my child from being hurt, I would do everything in my power to assure this. Getting rid of your handguns and the destruction of them is essential to assure this.

I also have a selfish reason for this plea. Numerous times that I, or my fellow officers, have handled burglary calls at homes, there are reports that there have been guns taken. This puts guns in the hands of the very people police officers must deal with on a daily basis. People are upset at the ease with which handguns are purchased. Very often these same people supply guns to criminals merely by having them in their homes.

I realize that one officer writing to one local paper is not going to have an effect on the national crime rate. But if there is the remote chance that by my writing this, I have some small part in the prevention of a crime, or the saving of a human life through an accidental shooting, my time and efforts will be greatly rewarded. Please feel free to write to me care of this paper or the police station if I may assist you in any way.

Handguns have only one purpose, and that is to kill. Gun control appears to be a long way from legislation. We must start somewhere, so please join with me in this initial step.

She toots horn for Guardsmen

An amazing thing is happening right here in your own community and is going relatively unnoticed by most area residents. Whether it is because of lack of exposure or plain disinterest, I don't know.

When Hersey High School's band was going to the Rose Bowl Parade and Conant's was headed for a contest in Mexico, this area was alive with interest and competitive spirit. Everyone was interested and informed on each school's progress. Yet, for the last 15 years or so there has been a unit representing this area in national and international competition, and the only time there evokes any interest is either on the Fourth of July or on a rare instance when an area paper prints an article of maybe a half column or so.

The unit of which I speak is your own Guardsmen Drum and Bugle Corps, which is rising quickly, yet silently, to the top of the drum corps world. The corps has been constantly trying to raise the interest of the communities they represent and to recruit members from this area to join; yet no one takes a second glance in their direction. What maybe the residents of these Northwest suburbs don't seem to understand about drum corps is that it is not just a recreation to fill up the time of some of our high school and college youth, it has a definite purpose; that of pointing these more-than-dedicated kids in the right direction.

While the Guardsmen vainly try to recruit members from this area between the ages of 14 and 21 to travel with them, the corps continues to draw membership from as far away as Romeoville, Kankakee and even Flint, Michigan, and Clinton, Iowa.

Maybe the parents of eligible kids don't understand that, while there is an initial fee to join and a monthly dues statement, all of the equipment, with the exception of footwear and miscellaneous items, is supplied each member during his or her stay with the corps. Only the most qualified instructors are hired to teach, because in order to be a winning drum corps, you have to have "winning instructors."

The members of this corps are taught self-discipline, self-confidence, responsibility and, most importantly, fair play. They learn how to win and lose gracefully, and have fun doing it.

None of this is taught in any school that I know of. Being a member of the Guardsmen or any drum corps is well worth what little money it does cost and is most definitely a chance of a lifetime. I know, I've been there and now I'm back again in an instructor's capacity. I wouldn't trade my drum corps experiences for anything in the entire world. And I most certainly hope the residents of this area wake up and start supporting your drum corps, the Guardsmen.

The almanac

Today is Friday, May 9, the 129th day of 1975 with 236 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mars and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Taurus.

Scottish novelist Sir James Barrie was born May 9, 1860.

On this day in history:

- In 1502, Christopher Columbus set sail from Cadiz, Spain, on his fourth and final voyage to America.

- In 1926, Cmdr. Richard E. Byrd and Floyd Bennett became the first men to fly over the North Pole.

- In 1946, King Victor Emmanuel III of Italy abdicated, leaving the throne to his son, Crown Prince Humberto.

- In 1970, United Auto Workers President Walter Reuther was killed in a Michigan plane crash.

A thought for the day: American statesman Daniel Webster said, "There is nothing so powerful as truth — and often nothing so strange."

The lighter side

Oops! Viet tunnel light is still burning

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON — Officials of the U.S. Embassy in Saigon have been catching some flak over what their critics felt was an undue delay in carrying out the recent evacuation.

But as I get the story, they were victims of circumstances beyond their control.

As you know, the American mission left South Vietnam in such haste it was forced to abandon tons of military supplies and other equipment.

Among the items falling into the hands of the Viet Cong were the escalator used to upgrade the U.S. commitment in Southeast Asia and the light at the end of the tunnel.

These two items, you'll recall, were once hooked up in sequence. Each time that prudence seemed to dictate an end to the military build-up, someone would see the light at the end of the tunnel. And that would start the U.S. involvement escalating again.

There was, of course, no thought of trying to evacuate the escalator when the Americans pulled out.

It had long since been inoperative, and served no purpose beyond its curiosity value — a metal stairway to nowhere.

The tunnel end light was a different story, however. Not more than two weeks before the final collapse, it was giving off such a glow that President Ford called for a big chunk of military aid to save the Saigon government.

Therefore, when the airlift from atop the U.S. Embassy began, there was talk of trying to put the light aboard one of the helicopters.

But the functionaries who were sent to retrieve it found that the area where the tunnel was located had already been overrun by the Communists.

Nevertheless, they reported, the light was still visible.

At this point, according to sources who participated in the evacuation, embassy officials called for volunteers to try to slip into the tunnel and extinguish the light.

It would be inappropriate, they pointed out, for Americans to clear out while they could still see the light at the tunnel's end.

A team of dousing experts was then organized. Posing as mole exterminators, they managed to gain access to the tunnel. But when they reached the end where the light was, they were unable to even so much as dim its rays.

Water, chemical foam, huffing and puffing — nothing would make the lights go out.

This explains why the evacuation was somewhat late getting under way. It took that long to establish that U.S. policy in South Vietnam was based on an optical illusion.

Percy votes 'yes,' Adlai 'no' on aid to Vietnam

From Hot Call Report
 Illinois' senators, Republican Charles H. Percy and Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson, took opposing views last week on the Senate vote to appropriate $327 million in "humanitarian aid" to South Vietnam.

Percy voted for the appropriation, while Stevenson opposed it. The Senate vote was taken before the surrender of the South Vietnamese government to forces of the North Vietnamese.

Following is a summary of the key votes of the Illinois congressional delegation for the period from April 24-30. Included in the summary are votes by Percy and Stevenson, and North-west suburban congressmen Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and Rep. Abner J. Mikva, R-10th.

 No: Stevenson

SCHOOL LUNCHES: An amendment increasing the federal school-lunch subsidy for "non-poor" students, passed 213 to 178.

The amendment would benefit students from families with incomes of at least $10,020, increasing the subsidy of school lunches from 22 to 57 cents. Supporters argued that the extra 5-cent subsidy would spur declining participation by middle income students and help maintain the "economy of scale" that keeps costs of the lunch program low for poorer students.

Yes: Democrats Mikva, Metcalfe, Murphy, Collins, Rostenkowski, Yates, Annunzio, Hall, Price, Simon, Republican Madigan.

No: Republicans Hyde, McClory, Derwinski, Erlenborn, Anderson, Michel, Findley.

Not voting: Republicans Crane, Rallsback, Democrats Russo, Shipley.

AMTRAK: An amendment to prevent the increase of the salary of the president of Amtrak from $80,000 to $85,000, rejected 188 to 155.

A supporter of the amendment — to prevent the salary increase — pointed out that members of the President's Cabinet receive only $60,000 per year. Opponents said that the president of Amtrak should be paid a salary comparable to those in private railroad companies, one of whose presidents receives $200,000 per year.

Yes: Republicans Crane, Derwinski, O'Brien.

No: Democrats Metcalfe, Murphy, Russo, Rostenkowski, Yates, Annunzio, Hall, Price, Simon, Republicans Hyde, McClory, Erlenborn, Michel, Rallsback.

Not voting: Democrats Mikva, Collins, Shipley, Republican Findley.

Student loans come easier Downstate, survey reveals

by WANDALYN RUCE

Prospective college students in Chicago and the suburbs have more trouble getting federally guaranteed student loans than Downstate students, according to a survey by the Illinois State Scholarship Commission.

The survey, conducted for the Illinois General Assembly to find ways to improve the student-loan program, found that bankers in Downstate communities "did not see any major problems with the program and they were helping almost all eligible students with in their community."

Chicago-area banks, however, are more likely to cut back on the loans because of their relatively low interest rates and because of collection problems, the study concludes.

To make more loans available to Chicago-area students, the study recommends that the General Assembly set up a new agency to take over collection of delinquent loans. The study also recommends that the scholarship commission pay banks $50 for each new student loan to cover administrative costs.

JOSEPH BOYD, director of the scholarship commission, said the proposals have been greeted with enthusiasm by Chicago-area lenders. The bankers, he said, "were excited about the proposals and said they would have more effect on their commitments to student loans than any other alternative we could have come up with."

Boyd said the Chicago-area lenders tend to have more problems with the low interest rates on student loans and the high overhead in their administration because "they have larger overhead than Downstate banks and because people have a different relationship with the banks. It's not as personal."

Boyd said availability of student loans has increased since last year because prime interest rates have come down, making rates on the guaranteed loans more attractive.

HOWEVER, HE SAID he hopes the legislature will act on the recommendations this session to prevent a sudden dropoff in available loans if prime interest rates begin to climb this summer.

"If the prime rate holds these alternatives are less necessary, but if the prime rate goes up they will be more necessary than ever before," Boyd said.

Whatever the legislature does, Boyd said, probably will be changed next year when the federal government makes changes in the program. The U.S. House and Senate are considering changing the program when the law authorizing the program expires in 1978.

"It would be ideal if we knew exactly what the federal legislation is going to be, but we won't know that until next year," Boyd said.

In Illinois, the state administers the program, with the federal government providing interest subsidies. The federal government also underwrites a substantial portion of the loans if they default.

Holy Family to present new mothers with corsages

Mothers in the maternity ward at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, will get a free corsage Sunday for Mother's Day.

Hospitals also will take pictures of the mothers with their babies as part of its observance of National Hospital Week, which begins Sunday.

A slide presentation on the hospital's expansion program is to be shown in the hospital's dining room at 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday.

The public may visit the hospital, 109 N. River Road, for tours of the cardiorespiratory, nuclear medicine, pathology, physical therapy and radiology departments. Tours will be conducted Wednesday from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and Friday from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

Hospital employees will sponsor a bake sale in the lobby at 8 p.m. Friday.

DON DePOLLO appears as Joe Delicatessen in "For a Good Time Dial DE 7-3992" at Second City. The six-member troupe originally dared Don to go on stage dressed that way. He did and still does every night.

A knack for comedy made him a natural for Second City

by GENIE CAMPBELL

"It's great to play cops and robbers . . . make the audience enjoy it all and get paid besides."

"Oh there's really lots more to it than that," said Don DePollo clarifying his first statement.

Yet anyone who sees the current show, "For a Good Time Dial DE 7-3992," at Second City on Wells Street in Chicago could not deny that Don works at being crazy six nights a week. Monday is his only night off.

"Some of the others in the troupe are better at the more straight roles. I go for the madness," he said, adding that in a future show he plans to play Pat-ty Hearst.

Don, a '65 graduate of Arlington High School, joined Second City as a member of the touring company a year ago. This is his first show as a member of the resident company though Second City has now been in operation 15 years. "Dial DE 7-3992" marks the company's 50th anniversary show.

IN FACT SECOND City recently formed a new company in Toronto and one just opened in Pasadena. If other Chicago theaters are crying, Second City is having no problem filling seats. Weekends are usually sold out.

People go to Second City to laugh. And seldom are they disappointed even though the final segment of the show is improvisations, from suggestions by the audience itself. Nothing is rehearsed ahead of time and no script is ever used.

"Regardless of what some people might think, our improvisations are all new. From those come ideas for new shows. We watch ourselves later on video tape and then save the best ones," said Don.

With improvisations there are several binding rules. Don names a major one as "not denying anything told you on stage. If you're supposed to play the Marquis de Sade and someone comes out on stage and calls you Uncle Henry . . . you're Uncle Henry."

"IN ADDITION," Don said, "it is important to support your other actors and trust the fellow actors to carry you through any scene. No one is a star. It's everyone together."

"Some nights it's frightening . . . deadly silence," said Don about the audience's reaction to their on-the-spot scenes.

"The second show on Saturday night is the best. They're wired to laugh. Most are already a little loaded before they come in."

"The second show Friday is a difficult one. People are tired from working all week, and even wondering what they're doing here. They dare you to make them laugh."

Don, who has been with Second City for nearly a year, most of that time with the touring group which performs on Monday nights before moving up to the resident company, was discovered through the improvisational workshops offered through Second City.

And that is highly unusual. "You're discouraged in using the workshops as a means of entering the group. Ninety-eight per cent of the company are picked through auditions."

BUT ONE NIGHT, unknown to Don, producer Bernie Sahlin attended a workshop. He liked what he saw. Shortly afterwards, Don was called in and asked to join up, a decision he didn't have to ponder long.

Actually Don enrolled in the workshops to create stand-up comedy routines he could incorporate in the rock group with which he was associated. For nine years Don was a musician, specifically a rock drummer, though he readily admitted, "Boy, I was getting to hate the drums! And I always did have a knack for comedy."

Active in the drama department at Arlington High School, Don originally opted for a career in theater and even attended Illinois Wesleyan University, where he planned to major in drama.

"Theater people tended to be mean and snitty. Musicians were more 'down home' and folksy."

So Don taught himself to play the drums and quit school.

"DO YOU KNOW what are the two biggest fears we're asked to act out nightly? Fear of spiders and fear of dentists," said Don abruptly, prompted to change the subject by his own aching mouth, result of a visit to the dentist, and chewing his dinner very slowly during an interview at the Steak Joyn located next door to the theater.

Life has never been easy for him, he added. Yet it has never been dull either and right now he is happier than he has ever been.

Don moved to the city from Arlington Heights just a year ago to be closer to the theater. His townhouse apartment is two blocks away.

"I like Arlington Heights. It's clean and safe. The only thing I lament is bad transportation," said Don, who has no driver's license and never has wanted one.

"There are some people in this world that shouldn't drive and I'm one of them. I feel more responsible for it, too."

"But believe me, you're not American unless you carry a driver's license so I keep a learner's permit just for identification."

"BUT SUBURBAN cab rates are outrageous," he said, returning to the previous subject, a lack of public transportation in Arlington Heights. "I would really like to work out a scene on that sometime."

With the excellent references Second City affords its company members, Don hopes someday to join a national touring group, something like the Ace Trucking Company or his favorite, The Committee.

Peter Boyle, the actor who plays the Monster in Mel Brooks' new movie, "Young Frankenstein," is a former Second City member and approximately 15 alumni in the past five years have had material published in the Harvard Lampoon, something else Don would like to consider someday doing.

Yet right now he is too busy, and too content. In addition to the current show, the Chicago company is working on a pilot that, if accepted by CBS, would mean a weekly spot for Second City material and guest appearances for members of the company.

AND THE GOVERNMENT has also asked Second City to come up with some promotions that could be used to publicize the metric system.

Don gave an example off the top of his head.

"Come in and take a load off your metrics."

"Don't you mean feet?"

"No, haven't you heard? The government changed all that."

And that's exactly what Second City is all about.

Hersey High graduate

Young actor learns his craft in 'Huck Finn'

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Keith Szarabajka became part of the Organic Theater Company quite by chance.

Not that he hadn't often thought about it. Even as a senior at Hersey High School (where he was voted outstanding actor the year he graduated, 1971), Keith wanted someday to work for them.

Then, however, he had no idea that in the winter of that same year he would be cast in "Warp," a very successful show produced by Organic Theater running an entire year.

And he couldn't have known that he would currently be appearing as Tom Sawyer in the theater company's original production of "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn."

THE TURNING point for Keith was watching Jack Warden in "Death of a Salesman," one of Arlington Park Theatre's earlier noteworthy productions.

"I really got caught up in it," said Keith, who that same night, after the show, dropped off his friends and drove downtown.

"I had no idea where I was going. I just knew I was going to become an actor."

Keith drove to the Body Politic, where the Organic Theater was then performing.

When asked what he was doing there, Keith volunteered his services free to do anything. But director Stu Gordon, founder of the theater company, let him audition, not once but twice, since Keith didn't do very well the first time.

The outcome was landing the role of Cumulus in "Warp" . . . "I always wanted to be a comic book hero," laughed Keith.

THE LOCAL ACTOR followed the production as an understudy to New York. When it folded rather abruptly, he landed a small role in another Off-Broadway show before returning to Arlington Heights.

"I moped around the house for awhile," said Keith. Then he worked a short time as a waiter to earn enough money to accompany a friend to Ireland.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS resident Keith Szarabajka plays the mischievous Tom Sawyer in Organic Theater Company's production of "Huckleberry Finn." Carolyn Gordon, as Aunt Polly, fondly pinches his cheek.

Last fall Keith, who is working on his English literature degree at the University of Chicago, was contacted by Gordon to audition for "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" as adapted by Gordon himself who believed the real version had never been done as a movie or as a play.

"Like Gordon said, the show's written with the grit intact," said Keith, emphasizing that the story of Huckleberry Finn is not, as often believed, children's literature.

"THE FINN, IS actually terrifying. It touches on child abuse and even makes an anti-war statement. It's actually a story about a boy becoming a man."

Part I, covering the first 18 chapters of the novel by Mark Twain, opened in February. Part II, the last 25 chapters, opened last month. The two are now running in repertory.

Keith plays Tom Sawyer, Buck and various other bit roles in the second part since Tom Sawyer is primarily featured in Huck Finn's boyhood.

Keith, who currently still resides in Arlington Heights, has no immediate plans for the future. The show still feels good to him, Organic Theater is still home to him.

"Chicago is a good place to get work and learn the craft. Right now I'm very happy here. I couldn't think of any place I'd rather be."

RARIN' TO GO ARE Betsy Vogt, David Conway and Nicki Berndt, who'll be participating in Schaumburg Park District's "Mayfair '75" next weekend. Professional craftsmen and hobbyists will exhibit and sell their wares at the outdoor art fair at Meinke Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way, from 11-5 May 17 and noon - 4 May 18. In case of rain, the fair will be held inside. A western theme will prevail; those attending are to dress accordingly. Information, 529-4793.

Fire lacking in latest of Beatle solo albums

The anticipation that precedes each new solo album by a former Beatle has been greatly diluted for me by the often lackadaisical effort that the former Beatles seem to put into the albums.

I still look forward to Paul McCartney's new album — due within a month probably — because his "Band On the Run" album (Apple Records) was the best by any former Beatle. The most recent solo albums we do have — "Rock 'N' Roll" by John Lennon, "Goodnight Vienna" by Ringo Starr and "Dark Horse" by George Harrison (also all Apple) — are technically good, but far too often the performance and writing are only competent.

The albums lack the fire and innovativeness of the Beatles' earlier music — even as solists. Take for example Harrison's "Dark Horse" album, which clearly is the worst of the three.

Harrison continues to dish out his overused religious mutterings, backed by his now overly-familiar guitar style. The album is only livened by the use of saxophonist Tom Scott and his L.A. express, who toured with Harrison.

"So Sad" is probably the best song from the album, but you've really heard all its elements before in the earlier Harrison albums, such as "All Things Must Pass" (again Apple). The innocuous ditty "Ding Dong Ding Dong" makes for a nice New Year's sound, but shows none of Harrison's previous brilliance.

The title song is sung by an unbelievable hoarse Harrison and typifies the album's overall effect, that is that it was a very hurried effort, thrown together with very little thought in order to cash in on the publicity from Harrison's American tour last year.

Ringo's album fares better because it sticks fairly faithfully to the formula Ringo and producer Richard Perry stumbled upon for the previous very successful and engaging "Ringo" album (naturally Apple).

As expected there is a gangland of superstars — John Lennon, Billy Preston, Elton John, Dr. John, Klaus Voorman, Harry Nilsson, Robbie Robertson and Nickey Hopkins. Lennon, John and Nilsson all contribute songs, too.

RINGO ATTEMPTS to get too serious on a couple of the ballads, however, and those performances drag down the whole album, making it less successful than its predecessor. But a number of the songs are good fun and they include Lennon's title song, John and Bernie Taupin's "Smoochy" (which was a fun single), Allen Toussaint's "Ocellula" and the novelty "No No Song." Ringo's own "Oo-Wee" has some good singing, especially by Clyde King and the Blackberries.

Lennon's recent album is vintage nostalgia. Yes, we should've been there, but thankfully he was. Four of the cuts were produced with Phil Spector and the wall-of-sound approach proves to be still viable. Lennon, too, puts a bit more emotion into his singing than he has of late. Then, there are many delightful interjections of horns throughout the album.

SOME OF THE good songs are "Bring It On Home To Me," "Peggy Sue" (faithful to the Buddy Holly version), "Sweet Little Sixteen" and "Stand By Me." Because the album has more fire than the others, I award this round of Beatle solo albums to Lennon.

Crossing over to the world of books for a moment, all Beatle fans should find a copy of "The Beatles: An Illustrated Record" by Roy Carr and Tony Tyler (Harmony Books $6.95 paperback). It is a sumptuous collection of pictures — color and black and white — and critical guide to the music of the Fab Four.

Keith Moon is the last of The Who to have a solo album and he has chosen the star-studded approach in "Two Sides of the Moon" (MCA/Track records). An oddity is that Moon, a drummer, plays drums on only three of the 10 songs. Among his helpers are Ringo, Joe Walsh, Rick Nelson, John Sebastian and the groups Fanny and Jo Jo Gunner.

The best songs are the funny ("Sold Gold") and sad ("Teenage Idol") look at pop stardom. The loud "Back Door Sally" and a Who-less version of "The Kids Are Alright" also are good. Some of the slower numbers fall though, occasionally through over-production.

Book on ballet shows performers as people

"DANCE IS A CONTACT SPORT" by JOSEPH H. MAZO Saturday Review Press/ E. P. Dutton & Co., $18.95

The fantasy of classical ballet is that dancers can turn like tops, jump like springs and in all ways totally defy the laws of gravity while maintaining the serenity of royalty.

Reality is another matter. Dancers sweat, they ache, they work long hours, and for all their efforts earn almost enough to live on. There are constant injuries, sweaty practice rooms and trips to the masseur.

It is a world the audience never sees, and it takes a trip behind-the-scenes to see what makes dancers tick. Joseph H. Mazo, reviewer for "Women's Wear Daily," took such a trip and in effect lived with the New York City Ballet for the spring 1973 season.

The result is "Dance Is A Contact Sport," a book that lets you see dancers as people.

MAZO WRITES with a bias. He admits from the start that he loves ballet and everything that it is made of — especially ballerinas.

"Vulnerable but strong, fragile yet enduring, they flutter as quickly as eyelashes, then float as softly as sleep," he writes.

But Mazo doesn't dwell on his first love. In his book he assumes that everyone loves ballet, and so he moves quickly to the business of exploring the dancers and their world. Thus it is a book for both those who love ballet and those who know nothing about it.

Although the world of ballet is beautiful on stage, the world of the dancer is stark, rigorous and often dreary. The dancer is trapped with continual frustration, always striving for perfection and never able to attain it.

"REMEMBER, ballet is impossible," Mazo writes. "It has more varied postures than the Kamasutra. It repeats the laws of gravity and inertia. It can't be done. If God had wanted us to stand with our toes pointing in opposite directions, he would have bought a load of ball bearings and installed them instead of using hip joints."

And because ballet is impossible, there are injuries. In fact, in one chapter Mazo outlines a whole season of injuries by the calendar. Each day brings a new set of sprained ankles, wrenched backs and injured feet — and each injury means that an entire casting schedule must be changed,

The book stall

and possibly even the entire program. But the dancers go on anyway. With points shoes firmly affixed with Elmer's Glue, the dancers perform with aching legs, muscle spasms and all kinds of sprains.

THE BOOK IS full of all the facts and figures on how a ballet production is put together, including the fact that in a nine-week spring season the NYCB women will wear out 4,050 pairs of pointe shoes.

And for those who don't understand why the arts are always seeking grants and subsidies, Mazo wrote a chapter on money that shows why the NYCB never really manages to make ends meet.

Mazo's book is about the NYCB, a company created around and ruled over by George Balanchine, autocrat and creative genius. It has a unique style — fast and modern. It has its own stars.

There is Melissa Hayden, who Mazo introduces as Milly, and Edward Villella, who is called Eddie throughout the book. Mazo traces the personalities of those who have made it and those who are still trying.

THROUGH THESE vignettes, Mazo shows how different dancers come to grips with the world of ballet. It is a special world that has no room for education and no room for family. It is dominated by one thing — ballet.

But dancers chose their world because they love to dance. That is what they want to do, despite the injuries, the meager salaries and the long hours. As Mazo writes, the most painful part of injuries is that they prevent the dancer from dancing.

"If you can't dance, you are not a dancer, and if all your life has been spent in becoming a dancer, the worst thing that can happen is to be made a non-dancer," he writes.

Fine rendition of 'Steambath'

by GENIE CAMPBELL

You might remember when Channel 11 aired "STEAMBATH" and hundreds of angry viewers wrote in to protest the nude scene... right on TV yet.

Regardless, it was a rewarding production. And last spring Pub Playhouse, with only crude, makeshift staging facilities, managed to uphold playwright Jay Friedman's sarcasm and "heavenly" innuendos. All without the nude scene, of course. It was considered too risqué for suburban audiences.

Yet nothing can compare with FORUM THEATRE'S present showing of "Steambath," which keeps the nude scene intact, offers one of the most complete and spectacular sets to be seen, and to back this all up, introduces a very able, talented cast.

If you become squeamish hearing jokes aimed at religion or are easily offended by four-letter words, best stay home. Friedman really socks it to you.

The set of "Steambath," complete with stained walls, old rags and towels lying around, open shower and tile floor, represents purgatory where a handful of people (all dead but some not quite realizing it yet), are waiting to be reclassified.

God walks in as a loud-mouthed greasy Puerto Rican attendant who first delivers his bad deeds and good deeds for the day, and then begins tidying up the place for the next batch of deceased.

He is interrupted by one new arrival who inquires as to where the "grandeur or the majesty is?" Are we expected to believe you are God?" he asks.

And to prove his power, God does a series of magic tricks and other irrelevant outlandish feats.

Individualizing Forum's production are fine direction by WILLIAM PULLINSI and good, solid ensemble acting heralded by MIKE NUSBAUM as God and ROBERT ROVIN as the young arrival who begs to be returned to earth.

Friedman through his sarcastic quips may make a valid point or two, though "Steambath" is not heavy material. Rather it is an off-beat show just for fun and enjoyment. It is a delightfully entertaining evening and just when you think the whole idea is beginning to become boring, Friedman ends it abruptly. Not enough playwrights know how and when to do that.

AND THE NUDE SCENE? It's really nothing shocking. Julie Jourdan walks in and takes a quick shower, a normal thing to do in a steambath. Anyhow she's more worried about leaving earth with her Bloomingdale's bill unpaid.

The cast is rounded out by WILLIAM MUNCHOW as the nosy old-timer, SIDNEY EDEN as an embittered broker, and DON STROUP as a middle-aged man who laments the passing of his generation. Also in the show are WILLIAM KOZA and JOHN MOHRLEIN who play a cozy twosome and JOE GABER as God's helper.

About the only thing I can truly say about the MARK LUCAS AND CLANCY TROY SHOW, now being featured in ALLGAUER'S FIRESIDE LOUNGE is that it's strictly a man's kind of show.

Lucas is the star. Lyrics are egotistically male-oriented (there is no doubt who is picking them out) and Clancy Troy, his wife, is on stage merely to be beautiful, sexy and play up to Lucas.

Too bad they've overlooked more than half the population. Women do come into lounges, take seats at the bar and often without escorts.

Appears at Stratford

Bruce Cockburn, named Canada's best folk singer three years in a row, will present the final concert of the 1975 Stratford, Ont., Festival music season on Aug. 24.

The concert series will begin July 13 and feature the Stratford Festival Ensemble, cellist Gisela Depkat and jazz artists Cleo Laine and John Dankworth. (UPI) erful or talented a songstress. I don't know because Lucas allowed her to take center stage only once for one hackneyed tune, "Memories." Starting out lukewarm, by the end of the number she did command the attention of the audience. And it was her only play at sophistication. Indeed, why dress her to look and act like a teenager?

The show opens with a number by Troy who introduces Clancy as a "Hell of a Woman." They follow up with several well harmonized numbers including "Sunshine of My Life" and "All I Ever Need Is You," the latter attempted in a Sonny and Cher style that just doesn't make it.

Unfortunately not too many couples in the entertainment business can match that former twosome. But a lot of them insist on trying.

Lucas dedicates a "song to any man who's ever had trouble with women" and proceeds with "Sweet Gypsy Rose Lee." Guess who enters as gum-smacking, hip-swinging Gypsy? It wasn't very funny and certainly not flattering.

The four talented musicians who back up the Lucas and Troy Show are not featured enough, particularly the saxophonist. It's a nice accompaniment to some of the songs.

Allgaue's Fireside Restaurant will be awarded two dining gold medals by the National Restaurant Association when it convenes next weekend at McCormick Place. Allgaue's will be recognized for both its regular menu that includes over 32 main entrees and its dessert items.

Belly dancing at Kroch's

Belly dancing will be demonstrated from noon to 3 p.m. today at the Woodfield store of Kroch's and Bretano's. Afterwards the dancers will autograph copies of the Bantam paperback "The Art of Belly Dancing."

Artists and craftsmen are invited to exhibit in two art festivals planned in the area early this summer.

The third annual Bensenville Art Festival is Sunday, July 13, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the village hall grounds, corner of Church and Irving Park Roads. The fair is sponsored by the Village of Bensenville and Friends of the Arts.

This is a juried show, in which artists must submit three slides to Marcia Small, 380 Hawthorn, Bensenville, Ill., 60106. Private jurying may be arranged by calling Mrs. Small at 766-3740. Deadline for jurying is June 30.

RIBBONS WILL BE given for painting, watercolor, prints, drawings, photography, collage and handicrafts. Cash awards go to best of show and first place in each category.

Country Chords Chapter of Sweet Adelines, women's four-part harmony organization, will present its annual show Saturday evening, May 17, at Hermin's Auditorium in the Civic Center at Rts. 25 and 31, Elgin.

'Where's Charlie?' auditions May 18-20

Open auditions for roles in "Where's Charlie?", musical comedy version of the all-time popular farce "Charlie's Aunt," will be held May 18, 19 and 20 at Guild Playhouse in Des Plaines.

'Moby Dick' would stir storm of protest today

Cpt. Jacques-Yves Cousteau, French oceanographer, says Herman Melville's 19th Century classic "Moby Dick," "could not be written today without a storm of protest" over the slaying of the white whale.

Cousteau added, however, that in his opinion the book, considered by many to be the finest American novel ever written, has nothing to do with whales.

"It is a description of the attraction of man for the impossible. And Melville has chosen that subject of the size of the victim which would be of perfect nature for the size of his book."

HE WENT ON to point out that "moral values change with time. We do not have the same set of moral values today as Melville had in his time . . . and you have to judge it with their set of moral values. We have no right to condemn what these people have done in their time."

The captain spoke following ceremonies aboard the Charles W. Morgan, the only surviving 19th Century American wooden whaleship, at anchor in Mystic Seaport, Conn.

Cousteau presented to Mystic's chairman of the board, Francis Day Rogers, the first copy of a limited edition of "Moby Dick." The book, hand-bound in morocco leather, has a preface written and hand-signed by Cousteau. A frontispiece by artist LeRoy Neiman also is hand-signed. Twelve other paintings by Neiman illustrate the 1,500 numbered copies.

The book, which sells for $450, is available only through the publisher, The Artist's Limited Edition company.

MYSTIC'S COPY of the new edition will be housed in the G. W. Blunt White Library, specializing in the maritime history of the United States.

After the ceremony Cousteau was asked to comment on "Jaws," a popular novel about a great white shark. Cousteau bridled.

"It is stupid. It's a stupid novel,"

Jacques-Yves Cousteau

very well written," he replied.

As for his own work and the danger from sharks, the captain, his handsomely tanned aquiline features belying his 64 years, said, "Every time you think of exploration, it has to be dangerous. It has to be a daredevilish adventure. It is not. We are diving to discover, to look, to observe. We are not frightened. We are not in danger. It is safer than riding a bicycle. So forget about it. It is a cliché. Meeting sharks is commonplace. It is not dangerous."

REMINING HIS audience that "I'm not a prophet, I'm a witness," he said he would need a crystal ball to predict the future state of the sea.

"Nevertheless the odds are very bad. So what I can say without any chance to be wrong is that in the past 30 years the vitality of the sea in general has decreased at least 50 per cent."

"The main obstacle is the fragmentation of the world into 150 national sovereignties, which means that everyone can have his own rules while the sea has only one sea body. Water is one. It goes everywhere. It goes from one country to another. So that when a country decides to release toxic products into the sea, it spills this country as well as every other country. So that as long as this split of sovereignty between nations exists, there is no hope. The only way would be a supernational body."

taken some of the most pressing fears of the world, from an Arab oil crisis to an imminent ice age, to conjure what he calls "Fire and Ice."

Apparently influenced by current events, Kyle provides an interesting supposition: What would happen if the Arabs cut off oil supply and only U.S. sources of energy — the Alaskan Pipeline and nuclear power systems — failed?

Kyle's main character is Dave Powers, a college English professor, who encounters the "beginning of the end" when the U.S. faces a drastic energy depletion stemming from an Arab embargo to cut off oil supplies.

His wife, Linda, and their two children, Kara and Kevin are totally immobilized by the consequences. What was once a thriving community became a garbage-ridden wasteland, like a scene from "The Last Day on Earth."

PEOPLE NO LONGER go to work and lose all interest in life. They are allotted food rations because of the lack of foodstuffs, medical supplies and other necessities.

Powers and his best friend, Kurt Thompson, decide to hide the time by hiding out in a small mountain cabin in Colorado.

The two men and their families make the cabin their home, hoping to survive the catastrophe. To prepare they amass all the food, fuel and other necessities for survival, including an array of guns. They are prepared to kill.

And they do. They fight desperadoes who ruthlessly comb the mountainside, looting and setting homes on fire.

In a dramatic episode, the two men rid the enemy in scenes of bloodshed, bullets and molotov cocktails. During the next few months, the U.S. government repairs the ruptured Alaskan Pipeline but after millions have already died of starvation and disease.

THERE ALSO are political maneuvers spelled out in the novel, some that are downright ridiculous.

In the course of months there is a military take-over of the U.S. in which the President thinks he is running the country but isn't. (Once he speaks into a disconnected microphone to address the country without knowing it).

The military villain, General Helm, orders a "heart attack" for the president. The incident has no meaning in the novel because Helm's apparent lust for power is not clearly indicated.

The novel quickly winds down. Though the Alaskan Pipeline is fixed, the environmental damage to the earth's atmosphere brought on by the calamity, spins the entire world into another ice age.

What could have been an interesting novel was marred by Kyle's handling of the subject matter. There are good, readable novels on doomsday such as "Fall Safe" and "On the Beach," but Kyle's work will never attain their height of popularity.

We never get acquainted with Powers, Thompson or any of the characters as people, because Kyle rushed through scenes and fails to develop characterizations. Instead we see them as cartoon people on Saturday morning TV.

The book also is marred by excessive and grandiose language. For instance, it is irritable to read bits and pieces of poems carelessly interspersed throughout the novel.

ers' production of the comedy of errors is set for Saturday and Sunday May 17 and 18 at 8:30 p.m. in Hoffman Estates Vogue! Barn Theatre.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Diabetes and pregnancy

I am 36 and recently discovered I am a mild diabetic (controlled by diet) and have high blood which is under control with medication. What are my chances of a successful pregnancy? Also, what complications do you foresee?

I have had two children by a previous marriage, ages 13 and 3. I would appreciate your answer as doctors I have talked to do not agree. Both illnesses seem to be inherited.

Your question is a tough one. That's why you have gotten different answers from different doctors.

In general, if a woman is a mild diabetic and has no complications, she can expect to have a normal pregnancy with little risk to either herself or her baby. The risk is increased and even in mild diabetic mothers the chances of fetal mortality are greater.

Now, if the diabetes has caused vascular disease, usually meaning involvement of the arteries in the kidneys or in the eye, then the woman should avoid pregnancy. Some authorities believe that if kidney or eye involvement occur during the pregnancy that the pregnancy should be interrupted and the woman sterilized to prevent future pregnancies. That means the risk in these cases is quite high and the chances of fetal mortality so great that such a course is thought advisable.

If by "high blood" you mean high blood pressure, I can see why a doctor would be reluctant to say go ahead. The decision needs to be based on how much real high blood pressure you have and the exact nature of your diabetes.

SOME PEOPLE diagnosed as mild diabetics may not have a really significant problem. There are several causes for temporary elevation of blood sugar. And, some of the medicines used in treating high blood pressure cause elevated blood sugar reading in people who are really not diabetics.

So, I couldn't possibly answer your question on the amount of information you have given me. You should have the matter looked into quite carefully before undertaking pregnancy.

If you get pregnant and do have complications I would think they would be less of the baby or, in your case, the possibility of increasing vascular disease as a complication of diabetes. Of course, if you just have a high blood sugar because of a medicine you are taking for high blood pressure all of these ideas are out and it is a new ball game.

DIABETIC SPECIALISTS often advise diabetic women to be happy with a small family and not take the risk of increasing the severity of their disease.

Although there is a family tendency of diabetes it is not directly inherited. A person can be a diabetic, a non-diabetic or a carrier. What the children will be depends on what both parents are.

I would urge you to go to your nearest university medical center and see a diabetic specialist there. Your doctor can arrange this. I noted your address and realize you are a long way from such a center and that it will be expensive, but the importance of settling the question in your case, if you want to have more children, is great enough to justify both the expense and the effort.

Pension Reform Act Reaches 40 Million American Workers

By Donald F. Morton, President
Arlington Heights Federal Savings & Loan Assn.

At long last, some 40 million American workers are going to enjoy privileges that previously have been reserved for more favored members of the U.S. work force.

The Pension Reform Act, which was voted by Congress last September and became effective as of January 1, 1975, enables workers not covered by pension or profit-sharing plans to set up their own retirement programs.

The opportunity is double-edged: It helps to augment Social Security income in non-working years, and it reduces income taxes during working years.

If you are not currently involved in a pension or profit-sharing program through your employer, you may set aside up to $1,500 this year—or 15 per cent of your work earnings, whichever is smaller—in an Investment Retirement Account. This procedure may be continued on an annual basis as long as you are not participating in a retirement program with your employer.

Your spouse, if employed, likewise may set up a similar program, provided he or she is also not covered by an employer.

If your employer has a program but you earn extra income from other working sources, you may place up to $1,500 or 15 per cent of this extra income in an I.R.A. program.

If you switch from an employer who has a pension fund, you may place your invested principal into an I.R.A. If your new employer does not have a pension or profit-sharing program, you may add to this I.R.A. within the indicated limits.

What are the advantages of I.R.A.? For one thing, you are storing up a nest egg to add to your security in non-working years. For another, you do not pay present income taxes on the amount you save in this account. It earns the same amount as the savings program you choose, and this income, compounded daily, is also deferred for tax purposes.

The main condition of the I.R.A. is that, since its purpose is to provide for retirement, you cannot have personal access to the funds until you reach the age to 59½, and you must begin to withdraw funds by the end of the calendar year when you are 70½.

When withdrawals begin, you pay income tax on them for the amount withdrawn in the given year. But since your income in all probability declines when you reach non-working status, the taxes you pay should be substantially less than if paid currently.

Self-employed individuals who have taken advantage of the Keough Plan are reflecting increased interest since the Pension Reform Act triples to $7,500 the yearly contribution that can be made. Many firms also may find the I.R.A. program a simpler approach to employee pensions than their own programs.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Winners try to avoid traps

Almost all bridge players feel that the gods of chance take particular delight in setting traps for them. The losing player falls or even dashes into these traps; the winner finds ways to avoid them.

South starts off by seeing dummy's king of diamonds clobbered by East's ace. Diamonds are continued and he ruffs the third lead.

The winning player notes that the hand will be a clinch if trumps break 2-2 or the ace of hearts is held by West. Then he asks himself, "What can I do if neither of those nice things happens?"

He sees he can afford one round of trumps just in case all four are going to show up in one hand. So he cashes his ace of trumps and everyone follows. Then he leads a heart. East's ace captures dummy's queen and a club comes back.

South wins this and then starts a successful cross ruff. Heart to the king, ruff a heart, cash the second high club, ruff a club, ruff dummy's last heart, smile and claim since with two tricks to go he still holds the queen of trumps and a club while dummy's two cards are the king and 10 of trumps.

Tight battle forecast at Arlington

District tennis tournament begins today

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Tennis Editor

Barrington's head tennis coach, Mike McConville, says flat out that the time is up for Arlington's tennis team.

"I think everybody knows that Tom Pitchford (Arlington's head coach) has built up a helluva reputation and has had a lot of success with his tennis program at Arlington."

But McConville sees some changes ahead in the district competition, an area Arlington has dominated for so many years.

The change is that McConville will bring his Barrington Broncos to the Arlington District today and Saturday as the competition for the 1975 state champion begins at 30 sites throughout Illinois.

Barrington was at Arlington earlier this year, taking a third place in the Arlington Invitational while the host Cardinals finished sixth.

"I don't think there is any question that we belong at Arlington," McConville said. "I know the type of players we've got and I know what Arlington has. I wouldn't miss seeing this meet for the world."

Barrington will feed their best four players into the eight team Arlington battle, going with sophomore Rod Dowdle and seniors Mike Gospodarck, Jay Olson and Regan Rome.

The six other teams that will fight for the scraps that Arlington and Barrington leave behind are Hersey, St.

Viator, Prospect, Fremd, Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

The strong players from these teams include Prospect's Tom Fredericks, Chuck Fischer of Rolling Meadows, Jeff Bavenport of St. Viator and Keith Rayner of Hersey.

Hersey coach Lother Peistrup is one who sees a change coming in the Arlington district.

"I really think Barrington is going to beat Arlington," Peistrup said. "I think it will be close but Barrington looks a little better to me."

"I saw their doubles team at the Arlington Invitational and they beat a lot of good teams. They're tough, quick and aggressive."

One indication of relative strength that favors Arlington over Barrington is what each did against Prospect.

Tom Pitchford

The Cardinals shut out the Knights while Barrington lost two points in what Prospect coach Jim Wright called his teams' best effort of the year at the time.

"I've seen Barrington and I know they're tough," said Pitchford, whose Cardinals teams have won the Arlington district ten years in a row. "But I'm going into this thing expecting to win just like I do every other time we play."

"If we get beat we'll get beat because they're a better team. We won't lose it because of mistakes we make."

Forest View rates the favorite's tag in the ten team Des Plaines District to be played at Maine West.

The Falcons shocked a lot of people when they took two points from Arlington in a dual meet this week but head coach Doug Tolman sees it as a sign that his team is coming around at the right time.

"That loss really did a lot for my kids' confidence," Tolman said. "We should really be ready for this meet."

Elk Grove, Conant, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg will be on hand at Maine West.

Buffalo Grove and Wheeling will head over to the north shore to play in the Highland Park district, for years considered the toughest in the state. With the removal of Barrington and Lake Forest that strength has been diluted somewhat but both MSL schools will be in for a tough time against Highland Park, which tied Hinsdale for the state title in 1973.

All members of the district championship teams, plus the winners and runners-up in both singles and doubles, advance to the state tournament to be played at Arlington May 22-24.

What do they really mean?

There's nothing like the early stages of any professional baseball season to trigger a flood of optimism.

The players feel it. The managers feel it. The fans even feel it. You can shake off a loss in April or May much easier than you can in August or September.

Everything looks so positive in April and May. So what if you lose a few? There's a long season ahead. And it's a big plus if you win a few.

That's what is great about opening day. Even if you lose, you're only one game out of first place the next morning.

Optimism. You can read it in so many newspaper stories in April and May as sportswriters convey the thoughts of the managers.

You know what I mean because you've seen the quotes.

"I can't think of one reason why we won't win the pennant," the manager will tell the reporter.

What he really means is, "I can think of 23 reasons."

This business of optimism in April and May and the quotes that usually follow deserve some investigation.

What do the managers really mean with their comments of optimism? Here's a look at some of those quotes you see so often — followed (in parentheses) by what he REALLY MEANS.

"This team reminds me of the 1927 Yankees." ("Dead.")

"I really like the looks of our infield this year." ("The groundskeepers have done a fantastic job.")

"My outfield can catch anything." ("That's why we keep so much petroleum around.")

"This new kid has all the tools." ("He needs 'em because he'll be changing tires some place by All-Star time.")

"We're going to have an exciting club." ("Exciting off the field. On the field, we'll put you to sleep.")

"We take each game one at a time." ("It's rough enough to get through today. Who wants to think about tomorrow?")

"I think our team's radio announcer does a helluva job." ("He does a helluva job drinking. He stinks as an announcer.")

"Yes, he's going to be a big man in my bullpen this year." ("That's only because he stands 6-foot-5. As a pitcher, he's a joke.")

"We've worked with Slugger and have finally found a way to cut down on his strikeouts." ("We'll bench him.")

"I like this club. These kids can fly." ("They're not bad on trains either.")

"We've got good balance between hitting and pitching." ("We can't do either.")

"I've got a guy on this club who's a regular Ruth." ("He's also a regular Sarah, Judy and Mary Ann. He puts his hair up in pin curlers at night.")

"The kid still has a few things to learn behind the plate." ("He can crouch but he can't throw.")

"These kids have a great attitude." ("No ability but great attitude.")

"Yes, this new kid reminds me of Mickey Mantle." ("He's blond, has blue eyes, football muscles and an Oklahoma accent. Unfortunately, he swings like Mickey Mouse.")

"My club is a threat to steal at any time." ("That's why we always tell opponents to lock their doors.")

"I've never seen a team hustle like this one." ("Frankly, some of the women they're hustling aren't worth it.")

"This kid came to us with a 'can't miss' label." ("I've watched him play now and he can't miss making it back to the minors by June.")

"My infield is reminiscent of Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance." ("Which is to say there's a chance in every play, all right.")

"I've never seen a club with more desire." ("You wouldn't believe the private detectives' reports.")

"This club has a chance to go all the way." ("So did the Titanic.")

HOLD THOSE EARS. At least one person in the stands is conscious of the gun of starter Russ Deason at a recent area track meet. Deason, a veteran at local track competition, has been a starter at the Palatine Relays since 1962. He is the former LaGrange High School coach. (Photo by Rick Bamman)

Fremd captures tourney opener

by PAUL LOGAN

Steve Peters' clutch two-run ninth inning single and the fine relief of Mitch Gullett gave Fremd a 7-5 victory over Hoffman Estates in the opening round of the Palatine District Tournament Thursday.

Peters, Fremd's center fielder, came to the plate with runners on second and third, one out and the Hoffman Hawks' infield pulled in for a play at the plate. Instead, the husky right-handed hitter ripped a pitch through the Hawks to score Carl DePaolis and Scott Orbin, breaking the tie. He had four runs batted in for the game.

Gullett, who had pitched since two outs in the fourth inning, walked the first two Hoffman batters — Randy Brown and Wayne Jackson — in the bottom of the ninth. Then he cut loose a wild pitch, but catcher DePaolis recovered in time to cut down Brown at third base.

Following a strikeout, Gullett made the next Hawk batter hit a grounder to shortstop Jeff Schroeder. His throw was in the dirt at first, but Matt Fox made a clean pickup to end the game.

Fremd will meet Schaumburg at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Palatine.

Playing in its first tourney game, Hoffman's junior-sophomore team broke out in front in the first inning. After Joe Gajewski reached on an error, Joe Parille hit an opposite field home run over the short right field fence to make it 2-0.

Fremd took the lead in the third inning. Tim Hanisch singled and went to second on an error. Two outs later, DePaolis smacked the first of his four hits to drive in Hanisch.

Orbin reached on an error, the latter allowing DePaolis to move to third. Orbin stole second and both scored on Peters' single to left field, making the score 3-2 in Fremd's favor.

The Hawks bounced right back with a pair in the fourth to make it 4-3 in their favor. Brown moved around the bases on a walk, stolen base, wild pitch and a ground out by Tom

Steve Peters

Mitch Gullett

Schmalz. Tim Harkness, who walked and reached second on a ground out, scored on Mike Byrnes' single. Gullett came on in relief of Scott Orbin to record the final out.

Hoffman made it 5-3 in the fifth on a single and stolen base by Parille and a double by Jackson.

Fremd got one back in the sixth on Gullett's double, a single by Mike Mertes and a fielder's choice by Kerry Field. The Vikings pulled even in the seventh. DePaolis singled, moved to second on a fielder's choice and — with Jim Recher as a pinch runner — the tying run scored on Gullett's single. Gullett finished behind DePaolis in the hitting derby with 3-for-5.

Then in the ninth DePaolis singled and Orbin reached on a fielder's choice, moving DePaolis to third. Orbin stole second, setting the stage for Peters' heroics.

Ray Gawron was the losing pitcher. He relieved Earl Hausi in the fifth inning.

Three Hawks bid for nationals

Three Harper Hawk tennis players will be in Springfield this weekend trying to earn a trip to Florida.

Bob Beckhart, the Hawk singles player, and Tom Lefebvre and David Mack, who will form the doubles team, qualified for the Region IV Junior College tennis tournament in the sectional meet held earlier this season.

"Beckhart was put in the sectional meet because we saw a chance to possibly qualify somebody," said Harper coach Roy Kearns. "Bob just happened to be good enough on that day to qualify."

"I think our best chance for getting to the nationals lies with the doubles. Lefebvre and Mack have been playing very well all year and I don't see why that would change now."

Finalists in the tournament will advance to the national tournament to be held in Ocala, Fla. in early June.

and allowed just one hit over nearly four innings but the Redbirds struck early and had already insured a 4-1 triumph.

Arlington becomes MSL's first 10-game winner

While Arlington continues to run away from its opposition in the Mid-Suburban League's North Division, the South race has become a dog fight with Prospect flexing its muscles and right on the heels of idle Rolling Meadows.

CARDS TRUMP HUSKIES
North Division front-running Arlington continued its winning ways by topping Hersey, 4-1, for its 10th triumph of the season and fourth in a row.

Unbeaten Cardinal right-hander John Mertins ran his personal pitching streak to five straight by scattering six hits and increased his robust batting average to .401 with an RBI single in two official trips.

Arlington captured a brief 1-0 edge in the third inning on a two-base error and Rick Purcell's single to right, but Hersey drew even in the fourth on a walk to Jim Lococo and successive base hits by Don Bianchi and Chuck Vesella.

Whitecash record

MONTREAL (UPI) — Canadian goaltender George Hainsworth still holds the National Hockey League record for shutouts in a season, blanking 22 opponents in 44 games during the 1928-29 season.

The winners added two more insurance runs in the fifth off hard-throwing Hersey sophomore Todd Walker on Jerry DeSimone's leadoff double and three straight singles by Mertins, Purcell and Brett Frase. Hersey's record dipped to 2-9.

CHIMURA BLANKS CONANT
Prospect's Mike Chmura had two hits and the good stuff in handing the Conant Cougars their fourth straight loss, 8-0 Thursday.

Chmura retired the first seven batters he faced and allowed only four singles as he raised the Knights' record in the MSL South Division to 7-5. After a wicked start, the Cougars are 5-5 in the league.

Prospect got their first run in the third on a single by Chuck Weege, an intentional walk to Mike Quade and a sacrifice fly by Paul Baranowski after the first two runners had double-stole into scoring position.

They picked up two more in the fifth on three Conant errors, a walk and singles by Baranowski and Chmura.

Laddie Janda scored on a passed ball and Quade and Baranowski each had two RBIs in the five-run sixth inning that blew Conant out of contention.

Maine West cruises, 9-4

Maine West erupted for four runs in the top of the seventh inning to help dispose of New Trier West, 9-4. The Warriors (6-2-1), slapped eight hits to allow pitcher Al Mueller to walk to the victory in relief of starter Rob Earhart.

The Warriors broke the contest open in the final frame when Norm Hillner singled, Mike Kelley walked and Dan Henk drove one home with a base hit. Kelley was out trying to steal home, but Steve Zuccarini singled, Bill Makuch cracked his second double, Rich Slapke singled and Bernie Corr ended the outburst with a sacrifice fly to center.

RYMER, WILDCATS ROMP
Steve Rymer swatted four hits to take over the Mid-Suburban League batting lead while John Miller came up with his first route-going performance and Wheeling stormed past Palatine into second place in the North Division, 8-0.

Rymer slammed a double and two singles, bunted for another base hit, scored twice, drove in a run and stole three bases while upping his average to a hefty .484. He was supported offensively by sophomore Rick Heredia with a single and a pair of two baggers as the Wildcats slugged a dozen hits on the way to their sixth win in 10 loop outings.

Meanwhile Miller comfortably spaced out four hits and a walk to ring up his first winning verdict. He whiffed four, was solidly supported in the field including two double plays and produced a couple of groundouts to escape from his only anxious moment, in the second, when Garth Chase doubled and moved to third on a passed ball.

Al Newman and Bucky Black also poled doubles for a total of six 'Cat two base hits for the day. Pirate starter Bob Baues absorbed the loss while Palatine's slate dipped to 6-5.

FALCONS WIN IN EIGHTH
Forest View scored three times in the top of the eighth inning to beat Schaumburg 5-2, and moved a full game ahead of the Saxons in the South Division standings.

The Falcons, now 5-6, managed just four hits off Schaumburg pitcher Ray Fairbanks, but two of them were line singles by Jim Petran and Neil Schmidt to start the eighth. Petran came around to score the go ahead run on an infield error and Schmidt tallied a moment later on a sacrifice fly by Bill Simon.

Winning pitcher Ken Meek struck out nine Saxons and allowed just three hits. Both runs off Meek were unearned and came in the second inning after Schaumburg's Dave Groh and Bob Poplar opened with base hits. A walk to Terry Zarbock loaded the bases and two runs scored on an infield error.

Fairbanks fanned seven for Schaumburg, now 3-8, but gave up two runs in the third on a walk and an RBI double by Petran. Then Petran raced home to tie the score on a ground ball error.

Harper sweeps twin-bill

A pair of distance-going pitching performances, one of them a 12-inning gem by Dave Patterson, propelled Harper past visiting Elgin twice Thursday in Skyway Conference baseball action.

Patterson fashioned a stellar five hitter, walking no one, in leading the Hawks to a 2-1 overtime victory in the liftdifter. Keith Abraham went the rout in the nightcap as Harper came from behind to forge a 5-1 win and up their overall record for the season to 15-7.

In the first game the hosts went on top initially on Jim Brown's one-base smack up the middle after Joe DiMaggio had singled and moved around on an error and a walk. After Elgin tied it in the sixth, the two clubs battled another six innings before Greg Fink singled, was sacrificed to second by DiMaggio, advanced to third on a ground out and raced home with the winning run on an infield error off the bat of Dave Mills.

Patterson struck out 10 while elevating his win-loss slate to 5-3.

Fink, Mills and Brown all supplied firepower to support Abraham's five-hit pitching in the regulation second contest. After Elgin had moved ahead in the opening frame, Tom Good and Pat Broderick retaliated with hits in the second and Fink doubled both of them home to put Harper on top to stay.

For insurance Mills tripled in two more runs and was in turn sent home on Brown's one-base rap.

Parent replies to a parent

In an article last Friday, May 2, signed "A Parent" from Arlington Heights, concerning the need for good coaches, it was apparent to me that this person was more concerned about finding someone that will help out with the $10,000 or $20,000 it will cost him to send his youngster to school than finding a "good" coach. If one of the primary functions of our athletic programs is to get college scholarships for our young athletes, then I'd like to make a motion to do away with high school athletics! That is not what I want my tax dollars spent for. Very few youngsters get college scholarships in relation to the number that participate and it's not the coaches' fault.

I personally feel that the administrators of Dist. 214 have a very healthy attitude toward high school athletics and that we are very fortunate to have the excellent coaching for our youngsters in the many fine coaches that we have. I for one, am tired of seeing coaches who give so much to our kids constantly kicked around by "axe-grinders" who don't have the slightest idea what purpose high school athletics are supposed to serve.

If scholarships come as a result of the efforts of everyone concerned, so be it, but to suggest this is of primary importance is ridiculous. I want a coach for my kids that will inspire them to try to do things they never dreamed were possible. I want a leader! I want someone who will teach not only the technicalities of the game, but sportsmanship.

I have watched many a game around here for a long time and some of the displays I have seen would indicate that there was still work to be done in this area. I have also seen many a "good" coach take these boys out of a game as a form of discipline to teach them something about self-control under trying, tense circumstances. I want a coach who will teach my kids to be proud in defeat and humble in victory, and above all I want someone who will teach them that winning is not the most important thing, but that trying to win is. I want a coach who will inspire them to always try to do their best. I want a coach who is respected by his fellow staff members, which suggests to me that he is a "team" player and can teach my youngsters not only team-

Bulls survive pressure game! Stop Warriors

The Chicago Bulls cracked the home court advantage Thursday night and marched into a 3-2 advantage in the best-of-seven series with Golden State in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Chicago topped the Warriors 89-79 in Oakland and will return to the Chicago Stadium Sunday where a victory will put them into the championship series of the NBA playoffs.

After building an eight-point first half lead behind the offensive work of Chet Walker and Jerry Sloan, the Bulls took advantage of the erratic shooting of Golden State star Rick Barry and numerous Warrior turnovers to nail down the pressure road victory. Chicago led 67-56 after three periods, but the Warriors pulled within six in the final minute of the game.

The Bulls moved out to a 25-20 lead after one period and held a 47-39 advantage at the intermission.

Chicago shot .500 for the opening stanza, hitting 11 of 22 shots, and settled down from the rapid-fire pace that actually hurt them in Tuesday's stunning 111-106 loss.

Early in the second period Chicago held a 10-point lead, but Golden State battled back behind Jeff Mullins, who came off the bench to spark the charge. The Warriors cut the deficit to 38-31, the Bulls surged again to 44-33, and then Chicago held on to work out an eight-point advantage at the break.

Barry, who had 36 points Tuesday for Golden State, moved off to a slow start Thursday, hitting only four first half points with a 1-for-10 shooting performance from the floor. Walker (12) and Sloan (11) paced the Bulls in the opening half.

Sox trade Sharp for Coluccio

Bob Coluccio, benched because of weak hitting before Wednesday night's game against the Detroit Tigers, was traded Thursday by the Milwaukee Brewers for Chicago White Sox outfielder Bill Sharp.

Coluccio, 23, has been a regular since 1973, but he batted only .224 his rookie year and .223 last year. This season he has hit only .194.

Sharp, 25, a former Ohio State star, hit .276 in 1973 with Chicago and last year batted .333 with Iowa of the American Association and .253 in 100 games with the Sox. He has batted just 35 times this year with a .200 average.

DePaul, Loyola will play again

De Paul and Loyola will renew a 52-year-old basketball rivalry with their first game in 22 years on the De Paul floor Jan. 10, coaches Ray Meyer of De Paul and Jerry Lyne of Loyola announced Thursday.

Each team has won 11 games in the series, Meyer and Lyne said the game was rescheduled because it was in the "Best Interest" of the sports.

MONTREAL Canadiens' goalie Ken Dryden drops to his knees to make save on a shot by Buffalo Sabres' Peter McNab in Stanley Cup play Thursday night. Buffalo advanced into the Stanley Cup finals with a 4-3 victory and will meet the winner of the Philadelphia-New York Islanders series.

And in other sports news...

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee for 20 years, died Thursday in Frankfurt, Germany... He was 87... Brundage left for Germany on March 9 to be with his bride, a 39-year-old German princess... The 1975 Hambletonian, harness racing's classic stake for three-year-old trotters, will be televised nationally for the first time and also carry a gross purse of more than $200,000 for the first time... CBS will pay $5,000 for the rights to televise the Golden Anniversary race Aug. 30, and there also is the possibility the event will have pari-mutuel betting for the first time since it came to DuQuoin in 1937.

Greg Luzinski, who grew up in Prospect Heights, drove in three runs Thursday to help give the Philadelphia Phillies a 6-2 victory over St. Louis... Luzinski raised his club-leading RBI total to 20 in the triumph... The Chicago Bears announced the signing of defensive back Earl Douthitt of Iowa to a 1975 contract... Douthitt was the Bears' seventh round draft choice.

Chic Anderson, the veteran race-caller who confused a nation of television watchers when he called Prince Thaur Art instead of Foolish Pleasure during the Kentucky Derby, will be back for both the Preakness and Belmont Stakes, a CBS spokesman said... The Derby was handled by ABC, but CBS will televise the other two Triple Crown races... Bruce Crampton shot a five-under-par 66 to take a one-stroke lead in the opening round of the $175,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic in Dallas.

Parent replies to a parent

In an article last Friday, May 2, signed "A Parent" from Arlington Heights, concerning the need for good coaches, it was apparent to me that this person was more concerned about finding someone that will help out with the $10,000 or $20,000 it will cost him to send his youngster to school than finding a "good" coach. If one of the primary functions of our athletic programs is to get college scholarships for our young athletes, then I'd like to make a motion to do away with high school athletics! # West, East boast solid entries for league meet

by ART MUGALLIAN
Track and Field Editor

East is North and West is South and — after this year — the twins shall never meet in the Central Suburban League.

If that sounds confusing, hold on. The CSL track championship will be decided Saturday at Niles East beginning at 10 a.m. with two of the league's powerhouses, Maine East and Maine West, representing the North and South Divisions, respectively.

This is the last time that will happen, however.

The Maine West Warriors qualified 17 individuals and a pair of relay teams at Tuesday's South Division qualifying meet. The Warriors piled up enough points to take the meaningless divisional crown.

Maine East, meanwhile, ran second in the North meet to Glenbrook North. The Demons will send 15 individuals and all three relay squads to Saturday's finals.

But this is the last year the CSL will operate on a divisional setup. Next year the league begins moving toward an eventual split into two separate circuits.

And that's just fine with Maine East coach John Coughlan and Maine West head man Ron Brown. They could do without the divisional qualifying meets.

"Our kids were running just to qualify Tuesday," said Coughlan. "It was a cold day and there was no need to risk injuries."

Brown was more outspoken. His Warrior 440-yard relay team was disqualified in the preliminaries Tuesday.

"I can understand a team getting disqualified in the finals on Saturday," Brown said. "We won't even get a chance in the finals. But this will be the last year of this divisional business. I'm glad of that."

The top six finishers in each event at the qualifying meets advance to the finals at Niles East, where the overall CSL champion will be decided. Next year the divisions will conduct their own "finals."

And next year, Maine East will move over with Maine West in the South Division, where they'll get to work, but the meaning of teamwork. A coach who can't work with the group doesn't stand much of a chance of teaching teamwork.

Every organization that recruits staff members strives to get the best available. When they get them they place them in positions where they can observe their performances and they give them promotions accordingly, and this includes compatibility with the rest of the staff. Every office has the guys who play for the team and the guy who uses the team and plays for himself, and he usually doesn't make president of the company, unless there's something wrong with the company. Dist. 24 does the same thing from my observations and they have many outstanding assistants who have earned their right to promotion. They are not unknown quantities.

I want a coach who thinks the kids are important! Who takes these kids, with all of their shortcomings, and does the very best that he can. I want a good coach, too, but if he can do these things, I don't care what his record is! If my kids don't get a scholarship, we'll manage somehow to send them to college if they want to go, and we won't blame the coach. We'll thank him for helping to make them better people.

Softball tournament

Dug Out Park, with its first tournament of the season under its belt, is looking for teams to fill out the field for a May 17-18 12-inch slow pitch single elimination tournament.

The entry fee is $35 per team and is due by May 13. It can be mailed to Dug Out Park Rt. 1, Box 321, Trevor, Wis. 53179.

For more information call Tom Furlan at 414-882-9136 after 3 p.m. The park is located on Hwy. 83, two miles north of Antioch.

The next 18-inch tourney will be held May 31-June 1.

Bruning WGA Director

Edwin C. Bruning of Palatine has been elected a Director of the Western Golf Association. He will represent Inverness Golf Club on the WGA board. As a Director, Bruning will handle various phases of the scholarship program and will officiate at WGA Championships.

NU season ticket info

Season tickets to Northwestern football games will go on sale to the general public beginning June 1. Renewal notices to last year's ticket holders have been mailed and must be returned by May 15.

Although the single game ticket prices have been raised to $7.50 because of a new Evanston tax on athletic events admissions, season ticket holders can still pay the $7.00 price. The five game package will cost $35.

Wildcat fans can get their first look at the NU squad when members of the Chicagoland sportswriting media and the NU Alumni Association match coaching strategy in the spring game tomorrow in Dyche Stadium.

Tickets for the game, which has a 1:30 kickoff, are $2 for adults and $1 for children high school age and under. Spectators, because of construction work in progress on the exterior of the stadium, will be admitted only to the east stands.

From campuses nationwide

—Rich Courtney, the second singles player for last year's Fremd High School tennis team, is now playing first singles for the Pacific University team in Oregon.

—There is a lot of news about area athletes coming out of Illinois State University. At the recent winter awards banquet, three area products were recognized for their contributions.

Robin Ruediger, a graduate of Maine West, earned a letter with the ISU gymnastics team while wrestling monograms were awarded to Frank Czarnecki, from Hersey High School, and Randy McAllister of Palatine.

The ISU baseball team has two players from the area on the squad this spring. Elk Grove's Steve Scholten will be starting his junior year with the Redbirds while Jay Liggett of Maine West will begin his freshman season.

ISU senior Linda Angeloff, a graduate of Arlington High School, won the shot put event at the Becky Boone Relays.

—Four students at Eastern Illinois University, including Chuck Cooksley of Des Plaines, broke the world record for the longest continuous tennis doubles match last weekend when they played non-stop for 51 hours and 10 minutes.

Cooksley, a graduate of Forest View, and friends shattered the old mark of 50 hours and five minutes. The record run began at 6 p.m. Friday and continued until 9:10 p.m. Sunday with only five minute breaks on the hour.

—Two area basketball players and a wrestler, have decided where they are going to college to continue their athletic careers.

Mark Furlong of Hersey High School was one of three wrestlers who recently selected the University of Illinois. Furlong took third in the state tournament as a junior then placed second his senior year.

Prospect's 6-9 Paul Wilkey, who helped lead his Knight team to the MSL championship, has signed a national letter of intent with Northern Michigan University in Marquette.

An all-MSL selection in both football and basketball, Forest View's Tony Donlie has indicated he plans to enroll at Beloit College next fall.

—Brad Smith of Arlington Heights and Bob Siemianowski of Elk Grove were among 78 winter sports athletes to earn varsity letters at the University of Iowa. Smith lettered in wrestling and Siemianowski in gymnastics.

—Patricia Snyder, a 1972 graduate of Forest View High School, is a member of the Hope College (Mich.) women's tennis team. A junior majoring in psychology, Ms. Snyder is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Snyder of 703 S. Main St. in Mount Prospect.

—Scott Blitner, from Arlington Heights, has lettered in wrestling at the University of Wisconsin-Stout. He is a freshman majoring in marketing and distributive education.

Hersey, Meadows land victories in tennis play

Bob Milligan stopped Meadows' Ken Maffitt 6-1, 6-2 at third singles for Fremd's only point of a 4-1 loss. Chuck Fischer and Brad Weber won know each other better. But this year, though, it's "South" against "North." "Maine West is probably the favorite to win conference," said Coughlan. "We'll be in there and so will Glenbrook North, but Maine West has the best chance, I think."

Central Suburban track

"I have been kind of surprised with their strength this year," Coughlan continued. "We've met them twice and lost both times, but we'll give them a run for it."

Brown isn't about to let his kids get overconfident. He knows that it will be a close finish Saturday. Deerfield has good sprinters, Miles North is loaded with relay power, and Glenbrook North has hurdler Mike Klepuro and distance men Dave Warren and Steve Mudgett. Glenbrook South's top runner is miller/two-miler Steve Chaplin. And Niles West is strong.

But if it comes down to Maine East and Maine West in the mile relay, the "twain" will be meeting for the final time.

The fourth and fifth late model stock car programs of the season are scheduled to go to the starting line this Saturday and Sunday night at the Waukegan Speedway. Time trials will start at 7:15 with the first race at 8:00 p.m.

Large fields, close racing, new records and wild accidents have highlighted the first three evenings of racing. A total of 41 different late model drivers have collected championship points.

Ray Young won the first two features before 22 year old Larry Schuler scored his first Waukegan feature win last Sunday night. Jim Neset has dominated the hobby class action.

Ten events will be on both programs with a 30-lap feature race topping each card. The track's weather/information phone is (312) 662-8200.

Baker talks about 'yardening'

by MAURICA HELLER

"Welcome soil sisters and soil brothers," said horticulturist Jerry Baker, greeting members of the Little Garden Club of Barrington at a talk on home gardening recently.

Actually, Baker explained, "There is no such thing as one gardeners. You're home yardeners. Out her in suburbia, you have big yards and little gardens."

Baker, who according to some, has revolutionized the thinking on people's relationships to plants through such books as "Plants Are Like People," suggests unconventional gardening methods like stamping one's lawn and feeding table scraps to vegetable gardens.

GRASS IS THE hair of the earth, and I say, shampoo your lawn and beat your trees," Baker admonished.

He tells "yardeners" to wash their lawns once every three weeks with a bio-degradable phosphate-free soap. "It removes surface tension," Baker claims, and he adds, the soapy solution keeps the bugs away.

"If the bugs come to my garden it's a compliment," he adds. "But if those morons stay for the whole meal, that's an insult."

Like most normal heads of hair, Baker says, lawns enjoy a good massage from time to time. One way to massage a lawn, he says, is to walk it with shoes having golf spikes. This he says, helps aerate the soil.

ANOTHER STEP to keeping a healthy lawn, according to Baker is proper mowing.

"You should mow your lawn as many times as it wants to be mowed. Mine gets mowed three times a week. Occasionally a dandelion shows up, and it makes national news."

"Every third time I mow my lawn I feed it."

Baker suggests yardeners feed their lawn "A little desert" of agricultural gypsum in the spring and fall. The gypsum, he says neutralizes sodium damage from dogs, as well as opening the soil, releasing iron into it and helping to make lawn fertilizer go farther.

As far as watering a lawn is concerned, Baker says watering should always be done before 2 p.m. "How would you like to go to bed wet at night?" he rationalizes.

IN THE vegetable garden, Baker explains, vegetables can be produced, not only to provide food, but also for added aesthetic value to the landscape.

"Tomatoes," he says, "were originally ornamentals called 'the love fruit.' In and among evergreens, put them in as borders. They look beautiful."

Parsnips and carrots can be planted along the driveway as a deterrent to those who might otherwise drive up over the lawn.

To determine just how big a vegetable garden to plant, Baker says, add the total height of the members of your family, and square it to find how many square feet of space will produce a sufficient amount of food for everyone in the family.

"On row space," he says, "Use your own height, for example, a six-foot row is just right for me."

"ALWAYS PLANT from west to east," Baker continues "Put the corn in the west to block the wind. Then lettuce and greens. Tomatoes next and the vining crops at the east end, because they grow from west to east."

To prove just how many plants really do resemble people, Baker claims there are girl plants and boy plants. Any plant producing a flower, fruit or vegetable is a girl and should be fed low nitrogen or garden food. Boy plants, that is green foliage plants, should get lawn food.

As a liquid compost for vegetable gardens, Baker says to take table scraps, except for meat and bones, put them in a blender with a pinch of yeast and fill the blender the rest of the way with water. Blend the mixture and spread it around the garden.

"Once in a while," he says, "add a little Epsom salts."

ARE GREEN bugs bugging your tomato plants?

Put a little kicker in the soap and water mixture (the one used to shampoo your lawn)," Baker says. "Put a half a plug of chewing tobacco in a quart of water and marinate it. Put two tablespoons of the marinade in a gallon of spray and spray everything. The bugs never come back."

Turning to outdoor flowers, Baker says, "Every garden should have a rose. We make salads out of them, rose petals. Rose bushes should be washed every two or three weeks with soap and water."

If your tastebuds aren't excited about the rose petals idea, another salad possibility uses mum petals. Mum petals can also be an added attraction to your grandmother's homemade chicken soup recipe. Chicken soup with mum petals is an oriental delicacy, according to Baker.

"AS SOON AS the weather is comfortable, plants should go outdoors," Baker notes. "You'll have your last frost here May 12. Put them in an area where they don't get a lot of sun."

"Keep your eyes on them, and watch for brown edges. Spray them with a weak solution of tea with one drop of detergent. If the big leaves turn yellow, the plant needs iron."

Baker, who would probably be the first one to tell you to treat your plants with tender loving care, advocates one method which uneducated gardeners might term cruelty to plants.

"This is a good time to beat your trees," Baker told the garden club members. "Take a sucker switch or a rolled up newspaper and beat your trees up to the first branch. This sends the growing juices up the tree."

If you're worried about getting strange looks from neighbors, Baker says a good time to beat your trees is late at night when, you hope, no one will be watching.

Control pesty insects

Insects that get inside the home can be controlled with a minimum of effort, says James E. Schuster, horticulture Extension adviser at the DuPage County Cooperative Extension Service.

Flying insects such as flies and mosquitoes may be effectively controlled indoors by using "no pest strips" or "Vapona strips." One strip per 1,000 cubic feet should be adequate. These resin strips give good control in light, enclosed areas for about three months.

Schuster warns, however, do not use resin strips in kitchens, nurseries or rooms where infants, ill or aged persons are confined or in rooms where you have tropical fish.

Flying insects can be temporarily knocked down with an aerosol spray containing pyrethrin . . . but make sure you use it according to all directions and precautions on the label.

For crawling insects such as roaches, carpet beetles and silverfish, Schuster recommends using residual insecticides.

Residual insecticides such as diazinon, Baygon and Dursban remain effective and should control insects from four to eight weeks.

These residual insecticides are available to the home owner as 0.5 per cent solutions in pressurized spray cans. Schuster points out that diazinon may be found as an outside or indoor spray. The difference being the carrier . . . so make sure you get the correct one for your purposes.

To use, spray runways, baseboards, closets, edge of carpeting and other hiding places. A light application will repel the insects and will persist and be effective for several weeks.

A waterbase spray of chlordane or diazinon sprayed on the outside of the foundation of your house will prevent insects such as ants, crickets and spiders from migrating into your house, says Schuster.

Just because the time has come for outdoor gardening doesn't mean that a cool, green look of the outdoors can't be brought indoors. And, there are a few plants that can do that better than reliable ferns... the plant most collectors would choose if they could have but one plant.

It lends itself to either a hanging pot or on a plant stand and it gives a special look of beauty to any room. It's a good bathroom plant where there is the high humidity so beloved by ferns.

Ferns are among the most primitive plants and came upon the earth some 300 millions years ago. In one variety or another of the more than 12,000 varieties they grow everywhere in the world from the subtropics to the Arctic regions. They come in all sizes and shapes from tiny ones found in the South Pacific as small as a postage stamp. At the other end of the scale is the Black Tree fern of New Zealand that towers 60 feet high with leaves that are 20 feet long and six feet wide.

Probably the most popular of ferns is the Boston Fern (Nephrolepis exaltata bostonensis) which is a mutation of the sword fern and was discovered in the Boston area in the early 1880's. Because of its beauty, its good growth and its easy care it became a fixture in Victorian homes along with the Tiffany lamp.

The Boston fern has long, arching fronds that grow up to three feet long. There are mutations of the Boston fern, the most popular of which is the Fluffy Ruffie with more upright fronds that grow to 10-12 inches long.

Ferns do not flower and seed but do produce single-celled spores so small that two of them can be placed across a human hair. However, ferns are produced today by thread-like runners that are potted to produce new plants.

Another virtue of the fern is that it requires little care. It grows best in indirect or diffused light and will thrive in a cool spot but does want humidity. That is easy to provide with regular spraying or by having it in a container which will hold water but not so the pot rests in the water. It likes to be slightly pot bound.

FERNs MAKE great indoor plants, either hanging or in a stand. And what makes them even more appealing is that they require little care.

The object of composting is to convert waste material into organic manure — dark brown crumbly stuff with the good earth fragrance. You pile together leaves, grass clippings, small prunings, straw, spoiled hay, sawdust, green weeds, vegetable harvest refuse, vegetable matter from the kitchen, coffee grounds, egg shells, shredded paper and wood ashes. Soil bacteria can thrive and multiply in this pile and break down the waste materials into a form you can use. With moisture, air and food they decompose rapidly, but even faster if shredded and supplied with extra nitrogen.

The best way to build a compost pile is to start by spreading a layer of refuse 6-8 inches thick over a 4x6 foot area. On top, spread a mixture of both manure and fertilizer, plus garden soil. The greater the amount of fertilizer the richer the compost. A good average for each layer is two cupsful of ammonium sulfate or bone meal. If the soil is acid, add a cup of ground limestone or crushed oyster shells to each layer. Wet layer just enough to carry chemicals down through, but not to wash goodies away.

Repeat the layering until you run out of material or it's four to five feet high. Form a basin at the top for watering and to catch the rain. Keep the pile moist and turn in two to three weeks and again in five weeks. It should be ready to use in about three months.

You can shorten the traditional time by a few weeks if you are selective about the size of refuse that goes into the pile. The fluffier the pile the more efficiently the air and water can penetrate. It pays to have three piles going: one of the fast ones and one of coarser materials for mulching and that's in the first stages.

Build a pile when the weather is warm and you will see heat waves rising above the pile in 24 to 30 hours. Turn the pile to mix and follow with a thorough watering. It will heat again and require turning. Each time you turn, move outer materials to the center where the fastest decomposition takes place.

A word of caution about grass clippings! A good pile of grass alone will make a soggy mass and rotify instead of decaying normally. Use fresh clippings sparingly and mixed with other refuse.

Just making the pile in an obscure corner of the garden is satisfactory, but if your yard has no hideaway spot there are other ways to disguise and even feature it. There are some good-looking bins made of cement block and wood that you can build.

With a minimum of effort you can turn your compost pile into a beauty spot and even grow magnificent pumpkins in it after the heat subsides.

Start small, expand later

by United Press International
If you're planting your first vegetable garden this year, remember that it is better to make a modest one thrive this summer and leave expansion for later.

Don't plant too much of a good thing. Your family can tire of a steady diet of Zucchini, no matter how fresh it is. Plan for a good assortment of vegetables.

tatoes and sweet corn are best adapted to large spaces.

Consider your vacation. If you're going to be away, figure out maturity dates so you don't sow what you won't be home to reap.

Plant at the right time. Some plants need a very early start so they can mature in cool weather; others need to wait until it's warmer. The seed catalog or packet is your best guide to timing.

Hows, whys of gardening

by WILLIAM O. DRINKWATER

UPI — Once your garden is planted, there is plenty of work to do, and a tasty harvest ahead.

Lime probably is the most important amendment needed in a vegetable garden. To feed your growing crop, a single application of fertilizer applied before planting is enough for most short-season vegetables. Those with a long growing season, or vegetables grown on poles or trellises, need a sidedressing of fertilizer halfway through the growing season.

A good supply of water is necessary. Home gardeners have a tendency to apply too little water. When vegetables begin to mature, the garden should be supplied each week with as much water as would come from one inch of rain. For a 20-by-20 foot garden, that would be about 240 gallons.

Weed control should start when plants are in the seedling stage, about half an inch high. This can be done with a hoe or a mechanical cultivator. Avoid deep cultivation, as this will injure roots.

Mulching the garden with lawn clippings or straw provides an excellent alternative to cultivating. Black Polyethylene makes good mulch material for transplanted crops such as cabbage, tomatoes and peppers. Mulches have the dual advantage of controlling weeds and conserving soil moisture.

Insect and disease control must start early. Follow recommendations of your local Cooperative Extension Service.

As the harvest approaches, learn to recognize proper maturity in different vegetables. Here are some examples: Sweet peppers are "ripe" when green, but if left to mature further they will turn red and become slightly sweeter.

Summer squash, such as zucchini, are considered mature when they are about six inches long and the skin is soft. Winter squash is not mature until a hard shell forms.

For maximum sweetness, muskmelons should not be harvested until the stem pulls out easily and completely from the fruit.

Snap beans are mature when pods have formed but seed has not enlarged, while lima beans are not mature until seed has expanded.

Different varieties of the same vegetable can vary a good deal in the growing period required for proper maturity. Length of time to maturity is generally listed in seed catalogues.

Once they are ripe, vegetables should be harvested promptly and handled carefully. Leafy crops are best harvested early in the morning. Carrots, beets, radishes and other root crops should be dug carefully to prevent damage by spade or shovel. Roots should be washed before soil dries on them, and tops should be trimmed to about one inch.

Leafy vegetables generally lose quality faster than most other vegetables. After harvest, they should be refrigerated promptly in a plastic bag or crisper.

Tomatoes just turning color should be stored in a cool dark part of the house, not on the windowsill. Red tomatoes are best kept in the refrigerator.

Sweet corn should be cooked as soon as possible after harvest. Its flavor deteriorates quickly. If you must hold corn even a short time, put it in the coldest part of the refrigerator. Some vegetables, such as winter squash, are suited to long-term storage. They should be handled carefully to avoid puncturing the skin and stored under cool, dry conditions.

Prize seeds are good investment

by Allan A. Swenson

You'll be halfway to a bountiful, tasty harvest when you know how to select the best, most suitable vegetable varieties.

The first step in gardening, and the most important, is preparing and nourishing the soil. But the next most important part of gardening, and the least expensive in terms of both money and time, is your seed. It is essential to get the best varieties available.

There are only pennies difference between one variety at 35 cents and a new improved hybrid at 50 cents per packet. But the difference in germination, early maturity, disease resistance, flavor, and yield can be enormous. In effect, saving a few pennies to begin with can cost many dollars in unthrifty or less than excellent results come harvest time.

Shop for varieties that have been proven successful. Look for named varieties. We are moving into a period when patents are being granted for new plants and varieties with truly unique and valuable characteristics. Seed also will be given patents. But remember: although one firm may have developed a particularly superior variety, it is often offered by many other firms. Companies are only human; they want volume sales of their seeds, too. After all, there may be hundreds of thousands of dollars already invested in developing a new variety. The 50-cent packet is inexpensive, indeed, everything considered.

There is one way to cast light on the situation, however — the All America Selections. This is the big competition among all seed companies, both here and abroad. Plant breeders vie for honors in perfecting new varieties that can capture gold, silver or bronze medals as All America winners.

Every year for more than 40 years, seed firms and independent operation have entered the best of their new vegetable varieties in the All America evaluation trials — one of the first consumer-protection programs in this country.

Only the smallest percentage that are proved superior ever receive awards. In some years, there are few that can be classed as better than present varieties. In some years, no gold medals are given at all.

Seed companies are justifiably proud when one of their new introductions earns any of these awards — so proud, in fact, that they note the honors in their catalogs. Look for this if you want the best varieties available.

From a frugal viewpoint, it pays to wait a year or so after a variety has won to allow ample supplies of seeds to be produced and the price per packet to come down a bit.

Shop early, order early, buy early. Once you have the best seeds, you are that much further on the way to prime productivity.

Plant onion sets now

You can have green onions from your garden in four to six weeks if you plant sets now, says James A. Fizzell, University of Illinois Extension Horticulturist in Cook County.

Planting sets is the easiest and surest way to grow onions. Sets are small bulbs less than an inch in diameter that have been grown from last year's seed. You can buy them in grocery, seed, garden and hardware stores presently.

You can plant onion sets anytime the soil can be worked — March in most of Illinois. A little frost will not injure them, adds Fizzell.

If you plan to use them as green onions, place the sets upright in a furrow about three to four inches deep. By setting them upright you prevent crooked green onions from forming. Place the sets about one inch apart in the row. At this spacing, one pound of sets will plant a 25-foot row.

If you want to grow dry onions to use after the growing season, space the sets three to four inches apart in a furrow one to two inches deep. One pound of onion sets will plant a row 50 feet long.

Early planted sets are less affected by blight or thrips than those grown from seed or transplants, notes Fizzell. Also, weeds are less of a problem when you grow onions from sets.

Dry onions will be ready to harvest in three to four months — about late August or early September. Harvest onions when the necks are thoroughly dry or about 95 per cent of the tops have bent over. Pull the onions and place them under cover to finish drying.

Cut off the tops about an inch above the bulb, place in a well ventilated container such as a mesh bag, and store in a cool, dry place.

A Child's Garden

"I'm a complex fellow in many ways, but basically my needs are very simple. I'll tell you what they are and if you'll supply all of those I can't reach for myself, I'll reward you by being the healthy, vigorous plant you'll be proud to have in your garden. But be sure to follow the good gardener's rule when you give anything — never too much and never too little!"

Roots require a flow of air into the soil and a flow of their respiration product (mostly carbon dioxide) out of the soil. Compacted soil resists air flow, making it difficult for many plants to thrive. So, open up the soil by adding plenty of organic matter.

Most growing failures can be traced to bad water management. Too much water in the soil drives out air and shuts off the oxygen supply causing root damage or death. So, water deeply, but as infrequently as possible to allow air to enter the soil between waterings.

Also, speed up drainage by adding organic matter to heavy soils. Leaves are food factories. They require mineral nutrients in a water solution. But, too much at one time can kill a plant. Light, frequent applications are best. Generally, you get better results with a commercial fertilizer if you can cut the amount called for on the label in half and apply it twice as often.

Some plants tolerate shade and suffer in high light intensities. Most plants, when placed where there's too little light, become weak and thin, or distort their natural growth pattern by searching for more light. So, balanced lighting will result in your plant's balanced growth.

Air pollution — many gases — are toxic to plants. These include sulfur dioxide, fluorides, chlorine and others. There are available booklets that will tell you how to recognize smog damage in your plants.

Keep your garden green

Don't let a luxurious garden slip between your fingers. The surest way to a green thumb is knowing how best to avoid that perennial garden sore thumb, unhealthy plants, by avoiding these gardening mistakes.

Use the right tools. These include a shovel, spading fork, steel rake, wooden rake, hoe, cultivator, grass edger, several types of shears, pen-knife, trowel, wheelbarrow, spreader, sprayer, watering can and gardening gloves. Don't leave tools outdoors or they will rust or corrode. Always wash them after use. Lawn mowers should be kept in good repair. Keep blades sharpened or they will split grass tops and turn them brown.

Become acquainted with insect identification and control. For example, malformed buds and flowers might indicate the presence of aphids, pale plants might suggest lacebug infestation and buds that fail to open may mean that thrips are present. Once you know which bugs are bugging your greenery, then it's a mistake not to control them with an effective insecticide.

Don't forget that plants need the right nutrients to grow strong and beautiful. But grass and flowers need different fertilizers. In general, fertilizers with a high percentage of nitrogen are best for leaf and root crops; flowers and many vegetables do better on a formula with more phosphorus. Don't use too much fertilizer because it can kill plants by dehydrating the roots. And test your soil for lime before applying it. It may turn out to be a needless expense.

In short, it's a mistake not to know your garden — what it needs and what it can do without. It is a community of living things — which requires love and understanding to grow!

Grapes make space saving crop

by BILL MEACHEM

I have to count my garden space in square inches. Maybe you do, too. Well, sometimes it almost feels that way when you're trying to squeeze in as many things as possible, especially plants that will produce edible crops.

There is one space-saving edible that perhaps should be given more attention than it has in the past. This crop is the grape. It is true that only certain sections of the country are looked upon as "grape-growing," but the truth is that it is a home garden crop that can be grown almost universally. There are varieties (or cultivars) that are adaptable to the cold regions; and there are some that can be grown where the weather is mild.

One of the great assets about grapes is that the chances are you already have a spot for them and don't realize it. Grapes are vines, naturally, which means that if you have a fence somewhere you already have a support. This could be any kind of fence, from the confining link fences to decorative post and rail. In this day of growing your own foodstuffs, a grape vine on a decorative fence wouldn't look out of place. (This past summer I even saw vegetable gardens in front yards!)

One of my neighbors put up an old-fashioned grape arbor along the side of his house. I say old-fashioned because they were quite common when I was a youngster. Under the arbor was a favorite place to play in summer because of the delightful shade that was provided by the grape vines. My neighbor is finding this cooling shade delightful, too.

There are many different kinds of grapes you can grow. There are those that are primarily used for fresh eating; there are those that are most desirable for jellies and preserving; and we mustn't forget those that are used to make wine — a hobby in itself.

As you can imagine, grapes are a very versatile fruit, and when given a modicum of care, a vine will produce more than enough fruit for both preserving and fresh use.

Perhaps the most important thing about growing grapes is the pruning. The vines should be pruned quite drastically each year. Since the fruit is produced on the growth made during the growing season, the object of the pruning should be to induce more new, young shoots.

If you are growing grapes on a fence you can use the "arm" system of pruning. This is also called the "kniffen" system. The plant is pruned so that there is one main stem and two or four "arms" coming from it. The plant is pruned to these "arms" every year. Each year you will leave two or four arms of stems that grew the previous year out of the main stem. These are cut back to about eight feet or so. This type of pruning will produce many of the new branches you desire.

If you fail to prune grapes you will have many low-producing stems along with non-producing old ones. This may be what you want on an arbor, but if you want more and better fruit it's wise to prune drastically.

When buying plants of fruits it is hard to determine their yield, which will in turn determine how many we need. With grapes you can estimate that each plant will yield about eight pounds of fruit. Naturally this will vary, not only with the kinds you grow but also the growing conditions and the care the vine receives.

Once grapes are planted, look on them as a permanent thing in your garden. They can continue to grow for many, many years. As a consequence, you should improve the soil with ample peatmoss, compost or manure (if you can get it) before the plants are put in. Also, it would be wise to feed the grapes with a general fertilizer every year in the spring. You will want the fertilizer available to the roots when the plant is making its new shoots. Avoid any fertilizing late in summer, though. This will push more leaf growth at a time when you want fruit.

A SMALL GARDEN 10 feet wide by 16 feet deep, or even larger — up to 25 feet deep — can be spaded by hand and cared for with a rake, hoe and trowel. Machine operated equipment is not essential unless you are cultivating more than ¼ acre, and are able to regain that heavy investment by selling produce for a profit or canning large quantities.

Little gardens for children

When you set out your garden this spring, reserve a small plot for your child.

Children can learn much from watching plants grow, notes Lynda Harriman, University of Illinois Extension family life specialist.

"Give your aspiring young gardener a few seeds that grow more rapidly than most, such as radishes and lettuce. Mark off the child's garden with stakes and a piece of string wrapped around the stakes.

"You can put the child's name on the post," she continues. "Make it very clear that this is Susy's or Johnny's garden and that only Mommy and Daddy go into the other garden."

This may avoid a situation where the child comes running into the house clutching onion sets or some larger seeds claiming to have "found" what Daddy or Mommy "lost" in the ground the night before.

Late rally boosts stocks; Dow up 4 pts. to 850.40

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices made a small gain Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fluctuated most of the day, gained 4.06 to 850.40. It had been about a point higher at the outset, then off almost five points during the afternoon.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 0.48 to 89.46. The average price of an NYSE common share increased 20 cents. Advances topped declines, 969 to 479, among the 1,811 issues crossing the tape.

VOLUME TOTALED 22,900,000 shares, compared with 22,250,000 traded Wednesday.

Steel issues, which had been soft lately on reports demand was slackening and earnings would reflect that, rebounded a bit. U.S. Steel gained 1, Inland Steel 1 5/8, National Steel 1 1/4.

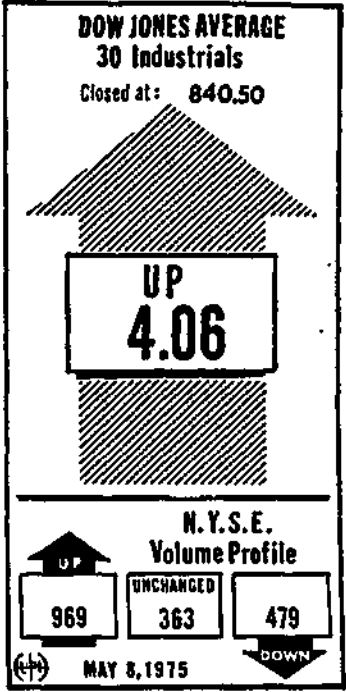

Reports the government has started a program to encourage utilities to use coal sparked rises in coal mining issues. Pittston gained 2 1/8, Continental Oil 2 1/4, and Eastern Gas & Fuel, North American Coal, Kennecott and Bates Manufacturing a point or more each.

American Telephone & Telegraph warrants trading next day delivery led the Big Board actives, up 3-16 to 13-32 on 1,049,000 traded. Browning Ferris followed, up 1 to 6 7/8 on 290,200 shares.

RCA WAS THE third most active issue, up 1/8 to 18 on 277,500 shares. Among the other electronics and computers, Hewlett-Packard gained 3 1/8, National Semiconductor 2 5/8, Burroughs 2 1/8 and Sperry Rand, NCR, Motorola, Digital Equipment and Texas Instruments a point or more each.

Prices closed higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share gained six cents. Volume totaled 2,830,000 shares, compared with 2,460,000 Wednesday.

Clergy observe fast for farm laborers

Several suburban clergymen are participating in a one-day fast beginning at noon today to observe National Farm Worker Week, this week.

National Farm Worker Week is established by the National Council of Churches, the United States Catholic Conference and the Synagogue Council of America, to bring attention to the problems of farm laborers.

A local farm worker spokesman said about 30 churches and synagogues in the Northwest suburbs are observing the week with sermons and bulletins.

Farm worker supporters also will participate Saturday in a two-mile march from Montrose Park in Chicago to publicize the farm workers' cause. Northwest suburban residents will organize a caravan at 9 a.m. at Forest View High School 2121 S. Goebbert Rd., Arlington Heights, before traveling to the march site.

Meat, produce drive up April wholesale prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Higher farm product prices in April reversed a fourth-month decline in the government's Wholesale Price Index, but the Agriculture Department said a good harvest could moderate future farm price increases. The Labor Department said the wholesale index went up 1.5 per cent in April, after dropping every month since December.

Sharply higher prices for livestock, fruits and vegetables were chiefly responsible for the turnaround in the index. The Agriculture Department said good harvests could mean some food prices might drop later in the year after modest gains this summer.

PRESIDENTIAL PRESS secretary Ron Nessen recalled that administration officials had been saying the decline in wholesale prices for farm products "could not be expected to continue."

The over-all rise in the index supported the President's feeling that "inflation is by no means licked," Nessen said, and that the government must try to avoid triggering a heavy new round of inflation through excessive deficit spending.

Nessen, noting the index for industrial commodities rose only one-tenth of 1 per cent in April, said "that pleases the White House."

Industrial prices, which make up two-thirds of the wholesale index, are much less volatile than farm prices and are considered by economists a more reliable indicator of underlying inflationary pressures.

The wholesale index now stands at 172.1, 12.7 per cent higher than in April, 1974, meaning a representative sample of wholesale commodities which cost $100 in 1967 was $172.10 last month.

THE RISE AND fall of wholesale prices generally produces a parallel trend at the retail level a few months later.

The over-all rise in April wholesale prices was 1.5 per cent, seasonally adjusted, and 1 per cent with seasonal factors removed.

Farm products rose 3.9 per cent, seasonally adjusted; processed foods and feeds, 1.2 per cent.

The April-June hike will come primarily from rising prices for beef and pork, agriculture experts said. They predicted smaller increases in poultry, fish, and dairy products and some crop foods, along with some declines in sugar and bakery products.

Retail food prices for the full year 1975 may be held to a 6 to 8 per cent gain over 1974 if farmers get good crops this summer, the Agriculture Department said.

However, if crops are as poor as last year's harvest and demand remains strong, experts said consumers could face sharp price rises later in the year.

MARION ROPER

'Gee' she's $300,000 winner

by JOE SWICKARD
"I can't believe it. I mean gee whiz," said Marion L. Roper of Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Roper, of 402 N. Chesnut Ave., was understandably at a loss for words Thursday night after she won the $300,000 bonanza drawing of the Illinois State Lottery.

"I've never won anything before. Nothing. Not even a $20 winner," she said, her voice straining with excitement and exertion to overcome the hubbub of the victory cocktail party at the WGN studio, where the drawings were conducted.

Mrs. Roper will split her winnings with another couple from Woodstock, regular partners in her weekly purchase of lottery tickets.

"I SPEND $2 every week. That's a Grand Slam $1 ticket, the two 50-cent tickets we buy with our friends and two 50-cent ones for myself," she said.

"I've got to figure out what I'm going to do. After they take the taxes, I'd like to buy a house," she said.

Mrs. Roper, an order and shipping clerk at F. H. Bonn Co., Arlington Heights, said her co-workers were sure she was going to win the big prize.

Her husband, Raymond, was sure, too, but also brought along some extra insurance for her.

"He works at Carl Sandburg School and a P.E. teacher there gave him a lucky charm to bring with us tonight.

It's just a little rock shaped like an egg," she said.

THE LUCKY rock came through for Mrs. Roper, and she said some long-standing plans were going to get a boost with her winnings.

"I'm going to take a vacation. We've had that in the plans for a couple of months. Yes, this will make it a little better," she said.

Kids peddled bicycles in the mild spring night, unaware of their lucky neighbor, as Mrs. Roper returned from the drawing.

When the car stopped, Roper called out: "Here she is." Mrs. Roper, just shook her head and said, "I still can't believe it."

Inside the house, a newspaper clipping of the new Cadillac Seville lay on the coffee table, perhaps something to come with the winnings.

But for the time being, the Ropers plan to continue working. "Well, why not? We've been at this long," Roper chuckled.

MRS. ROPER, still smiling after three hours, said she still just couldn't believe it happened to her.

Her husband was doing his best to convince her. He tuned the television in for the 10 p.m. news to see the winners.

Other winners in the drawing were Matthew Preshire, Hammond, Ind., $50,000; Alexander Grudinski, Chicago; Jane F. Bjoraa, Chicago, and Andrew Cipri, Peoria, all $10,000 winners.

Suit against Centel threatened

by STEVE BROWN

Union officials have threatened court action against Central Telephone Co. unless the company begins to arbitrate several labor disputes by Monday.

The Herald has learned that telephone company officials were put on notice that the court action would be taken by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 338, unless the company submits to arbitration disputes involving recent layoffs and the reclassification of 80 employees.

The move comes on the heels of an announcement that the union has scheduled a strike vote for May 23. The announcement was made a week before contract talks are scheduled to get under way.

THOMAS L. DEAGLEY, president and business manager of the union, charged the company has been dragging its feet on arbitration of the grievances regarding the layoffs that occurred in April.

On top of the threatened court action and the strike vote, the company also is facing discrimination charges filed by several employees.

Several employees said they were discriminated against in the company's reclassification program and that the company ignored seniority regulations in making the changes.

Bernad Kalwunder of Palatine told The Herald he was transferred from a switchboard repairman to janitor in the move. He has filed charges with the Fair Employment Practices Commission and the U. S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission over the dispute.

MARTIN BROWN, a company spokesman, said the company has been in compliance with union contract provisions for arbitration of grievances. He denied the company has dragged its feet on the matter. He added that company officials were surprised by the strike-vote notification.

"We have no reason to believe there will not be a settlement of the contract talks prior to the July 1 expiration date on the contract," Brown said. He noted that the company has not had a strike in its Illinois Division.

The company laid off about three per cent of its 1,200 local employees in March, stating that worsening economic conditions forced the move. The company also reclassified 80 other workers. The action changed their assignments and in most cases caused them to take lower-paying jobs.

TWO YEARS AGO a settlement was reached just 21 hours before workers were scheduled to go on strike.

Union officials have indicated they will seek a substantial pay increase in order to bring their members' pay scale in line with employees of Illinois Bell in the area.

The company provides telephone service to 70,000 customers in Des Plaines, Park Ridge and a portion of Mount Prospect.

group of suburban mayors appointed by County Board Pres. George W. Duane.

THE PLAN calls for an additional 1,000 units of low- and moderate-income housing to be made available during the next year in Cook County. The elderly should be given 400 out of the 1,000 units, the plan says.

Out of the 1,000 units, 200 should be in new buildings, 700 in existing buildings and 100 in rehabilitated buildings that were substandard, the plan says.

The subsidy program is expected to cost all of the $2.8 million the county hopes to get under the housing section of the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

The housing plan calls for rehabilitation of housing in south and southwest Cook County. "The greatest need for rehabilitation appears to be in these areas including abandoned property," the plan says.

In finding units in newly-constructed rental projects, the plan says "the aim is to achieve spatial deconcentration of these housing opportunities, and to make a special effort to provide them near centers of employment."

TERRY HANSEN, an administrative aide to Duane, said during the next year the mayors will work to refine the goals and, for example, to decide if emphasis should be on rehabilitation of existing neighborhoods or on funding locations near employment centers.

HANSEN SAID the county also hopes to work with suburban building departments during the next year to pinpoint substandard buildings that could be rehabilitated with the federal funds.

The subsidies can be spent for housing anywhere in the county, Hansen said, even though the capital improvements funds under the same federal act must be spent in communities which have allowed their populations to be added to the urban county total.

Locally, Palatine, Schaumburg, Wheeling and Rolling Meadows have allowed their populations to be included in the urban county total and the village presidents of Palatine, Wheeling and Schaumburg serve on the county community-development advisory council.

On a spring day, kites and kite flyers come in all shapes and sizes.

U.S. gets low-income housing subsidy program

A countywide plan for housing subsidies to low- and moderate-income families in Chicago and the suburbs has been submitted to the federal government.

The housing-assistance plan is part of a community-development program providing federal funds for capital-improvement projects in the suburbs.

The county housing-assistance plan was drawn up in one week because of tight federal deadlines for submitting the application. It was the work of five members of the county community-development advisory council, a

Membership drive planned

Chamber shows off its insignia

DES PLAINES
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY

THE HALLMARK of the Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce's New Image campaign uses four lines to represent the highways, railroads, river and airport, while the 'd' shows a view of the past and the 'p' looks toward a progressive future, Chamber spokesmen say.

The Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce unveiled a new insignia Thursday and details of a program to expand membership and promote the city as a good place to work and live.

Chamber Pres. Edward J. Bock presented the insignia at a press conference and said the chamber is seeking to create a new image for the group.

After the formal remarks, Bock told The Herald that he wants the Chamber to become a group that looks at the entire city and not just the downtown area.

He said the Chamber needs to shakeup the business community, which has been discouraged over the closing of several downtown businesses and the inability of proponents of the downtown redevelopment to start construction of the $14 million Superblock project.

Bock said in addition to letting the media know what the Chamber is doing, the group's membership committee is seeking to obtain new members for the organization.

The group outlined its activities for the remainder of 1975 which include the traditional Fourth of July drum and bugle competition and parade and a special luncheon meeting with Gov. Daniel Walker.

Bock said the new insignia is designed to illustrate the progressive nature of the organization.

The insignia was designed by Charles D. Spatafore, a graphic designer for Universal Oil Products.

Engineers urge Rte. 62 underpass

by STEVE BROWN

The city apparently has decided to take the low road in an effort to ease traffic problems caused by the trains on the west side of Des Plaines.

Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, chairman of the streets and traffic committee, said the city's engineering department has recommended the city proceed with plans for an underpass on Algonquin Road (Ill. Rte. 62) at the Chicago and North Western Ry. Outer Belt tracks between Wolf and Mount Prospect roads.

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel began discussion about the overpass late last year. Preliminary work on the project was undertaken by the engineering department.

Ward said the underpass concept was selected ahead of the overpass because of the visual effect the structure would have on the surrounding area.

He indicated that preliminary estimates for either an underpass or overpass have placed costs at about $4 million.

He noted that work on getting the project under way would take about three years and he doubted that construction could begin before 1978.

"But you have to begin sometime," Ward added.

He noted that the need to study the environmental assessment of the project, necessary traffic studies and public hearings will take a great deal of time.

BEHREL HAS BEEN told by officials of Universal Oil Products and Illinois Tool Works, two firms just west of the proposed underpass, that they are willing to cooperate to acquire the necessary right-of-way for the project.

The overpass could ease a great deal of traffic congestion in the area because the railroad line is heavily used by freight trains and blocks east-west travel through much of Des Plaines for long periods of time.

Ward said the city also will undertake a study to determine the extent of the delays. The information will be needed to help the city get state and federal approval and possibly financing for the project.

THE ALDERMAN also noted that the city will meet with representatives of the engineering firm of Warren and VanPraag on May 12 to review preliminary information for the work.

The firm will be hired to do the planning for the project.

Ward said an overpass at that location would have had to be built nearly 30 feet above the tracks to clear the trains.

He added that an underpass would be easier to construct because the tracks are already raised several feet above the roadway and less excavation would probably be needed.

City gives transit district tips on improving service

by JOE FRANZ

Des Plaines officials Thursday presented the North Suburban Mass Transit District with recommendations to improve bus service in the city.

Suggestions from Des Plaines and the 20 other municipalities served by NORTRAN will be used to develop a five-year transit development program.

Lots Levey, NORTRAN project manager said it will take nine months to a year to develop the program.

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel and members of the city's special transportation committee emphasized the need for improved intracity bus service in Des Plaines.

CITY OFFICIALS said high-priority areas include commuter bus service to the Chicago and North Western Ry. stations and service to commercial and industrial areas.

The committee also recommended more regular bus routes and increased frequency of service as priority items.

Major streets that should have regular bus service, according to the committee, are Touhy Avenue, Oakton Street, Mannheim Road, Graceland Avenue, River Road, Northwest Highway, Algonquin Road and Thacker Road.

Committee members also said the city's transportation system should be developed to meet the needs of senior citizens, shoppers and students.

ALD GEORGE OLEN, 2nd, chairman of the committee, said he is hopeful an improved transportation system in Des Plaines will renew resident interest in shopping in the downtown area.

"The idea as far as I'm concerned is to bring people into the downtown area by making it more convenient for them," he said. "Bringing them there brings in more tax dollars and a lower tax rate for residents."

Mrs. Levey said NORTRAN has asked all of the member municipalities to complete a survey to help its planning department determine the needs of the area. The suggestions will be used in planning intra-city and inter-city service throughout the NORTRAN area, she said.

In addition to the survey questions, NORTRAN asked all its members to supply information on land use, zoning, street systems, population and traffic patterns.

On tennis-playing charge

No city action against Baldaccini

The Des Plaines City Council Thursday night decided to take no action against Building Comr. William Baldaccini in regard to recent charges that he played tennis on city time.

Franklin Park man gets 6-16 for holdups

A Franklin Park man was sentenced to 6 to 16 years in prison Thursday after pleading guilty to 12 armed robberies including two in Des Plaines and one in Schaumburg.

James L. Ryder, 36, was sentenced by Judge Robert L. Massey in Criminal Court, Chicago.

Ryder pleaded guilty to an armed robbery of a Burger King restaurant, 860 Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, in January 1974 and a holdup of a Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant, 1340 Leo St., Des Plaines, in March 1974.

The Schaumburg robbery occurred in February 1974 at the Ponderosa Steak House, 1823 W. Wise Rd. About $1,300 in cash was taken.

Last week, Ald. Thomas Koplos, 1st, made the charges and called for Baldaccini's resignation. Koplos said he had seen the building commissioner playing tennis in Elk Grove Village on two recent Friday afternoons.

Baldaccini met with the city council for about an hour behind closed doors Thursday. The building commissioner did not offer his resignation at the session, nor did the council take any disciplinary action.

After the meeting, Koplos said the dispute was due to "a lack of communication" between himself and Mayor Herbert H. Behrel, adding that he was satisfied with the outcome.

"I consider the matter to be closed," Koplos said.

Behrel said the dispute arose after Baldaccini signed up for a Friday afternoon tennis club, without asking for the mayor's approval. The mayor said he told Baldaccini he could finish the year, but told him he should not sign up for the club next year.

Behrel said Koplos apparently was unaware of this when he saw Baldaccini playing on the latest of the afternoons in question.

Koplos said after the closed session that Baldaccini no longer would play tennis Friday afternoon. "There was no resignation, but there will be no more tennis playing," Koplos said.

Behrel said Baldaccini took time at the closed session to justify the time he had taken off to play tennis. Baldaccini said he used compensatory time he built up after working extra hours. Baldaccini would not comment after the meeting.

Des Plaines man, 23, indicted in sex case

A 23-year-old Des Plaines man was indicted Thursday for burglary, attempted rape and deviate sexual assault stemming from an assault Dec. 11, 1974, of a woman at International Village, Schaumburg.

The county grand jury returned the indictments against William H. Schmeltzer, 1829 Orchard St. He was originally charged with attempted rape, aggravated assault and deviate sexual assault.

Schmeltzer was arrested later in the parking lot outside his Des Plaines place of employment — where the victim also worked, police said.

No court date has been set.

Forest View band to raise funds for trip to Alabama

Forest View High School Jazz Band members and boosters will sponsor a variety of fund-raising activities this month to send the band to the All-America Jazz Band Festival in Mobile, Ala.

The school band, on the basis of its competition record this year, will be one of eight performing at the festival, June 6 and 7.

The fund-raising activities, which will feature a combination car-wash-jazz concert, May 24, must raise $2,600, said Laurie Woodland, president of the Forest View High School Band Boosters.

The 22-member band, directed by Fred Elliot, qualified for the national festival by winning the Midwest Regional competition at Crown Point, Ind., in February.

THE BAND was invited to the Midwest competition after sweeping the four competitions it entered this year, said Elliot. The band took firsts at Augustana College in Rock Island, the University of Wisconsin at Whitewater, Eastern Illinois University, and Western Illinois University.

Elliot said the band will represent the Midwest at Mobile, along with bands representing other parts of the country. The Mobile performance is not competitive, he said.

Members of the jazz band and music boosters will hold car washes for the next three Saturdays at Ron's 66, Dempster Street and Elmhurst Rd. in Des Plaines. The band will perform at the May 24 car wash.

The band will play in several concerts to raise funds, including one in Franklin Park on June 1 and the band's annual concert at the high school, scheduled for Monday, May 26. The school is at 2121 S. Goebbert Rd., Arlington Heights.

Those interested in accompanying the band to Alabama or in donating money are asked to call Mrs. Woodland at 297-6820.

Trustees call for investigation

Wheeling chief's action in court riles officials

by LUISA GINETTI
Several Wheeling officials called Thursday for an investigation of Police Chief Peter T. Guttilla's action in intervening in a court hearing on hit-and-run charges against his secretary's son-in-law.

Village hall sources reported a heated closed-door meeting Thursday morning between Guttilla and Village Mgr. George Passolt in Passolt's office after the incident was disclosed by The Herald.

Passolt refused comment later on speculation that he would take disciplinary action against Guttilla. He said he expected to finish an inquiry into the matter today.

GUTTILLA INTERCEDED Wednesday on behalf of Luis Arellano, 1530 Park Pl., Des Plaines, and asked Associate Judge James Maher Jr. for a pretrial conference to discuss circumstances in the case.

Arellano was in court facing head-on, hit-and-run accident charges stemming from a March 21 accident two miles north of Hintz Road on Milwaukee Avenue. Arellano's car apparently crossed into northbound traffic and caused a collision with an auto driven by Gwyn Bontrager of Elkhart, Ind.

Peter T. Guttilla

Maher refused to drop charges and continued the case to May 21.

Guttilla said he was at the hearing

only to keep Arellano company and denied he attempted to talk Bontrager into dropping charges against Arellano.

TRUSTEES CONTACTED Thursday said they had no knowledge of the incident until reading about it in The Herald but felt some action should be taken by Passolt.

"I'm very, very concerned after reading the article," Trustee Gilbert Monoson said. "If it's a matter of poor judgment it's serious in that respect alone," he said.

"I think it raises grave questions concerning the man's ability to lead a department and inspire his men when he himself exhibits such poor judgment," Monoson added.

"There are a number of unanswered questions that need to be answered but I definitely plan to pursue it," the trustee said.

TRUSTEE Charles M. Kerr said he did not know about the incident until Thursday. "I didn't know about it until I walked into the office," he said. "I think it is a problem for the manager because the chief is under the manager. I think the action (of the chief) deserves some action from the village manager," Kerr said.

Trustee Otis Hedlund said action should be taken against the chief if he acted improperly. "If the chief used his position in this instance, he used it wrongly," Hedlund said.

"It's something we'll have to take a serious look at because misusing powers in a private matter is a serious thing," Hedlund added.

TRUSTEE William Hein said he was unaware of the incident and declined comment "until I hear both sides of the story."

Trustee John Cole also declined comment on the matter because he said he also was unaware of the situation.

Trustee Donald Jackson could not be reached for comment.

The board will conduct an executive session Monday night after the regular board meeting to discuss personnel matters. The chief's case is expected to be reviewed.

MARION ROPER

'Gee,' she's $300,000 winner

by JOE SWICKARD
"I can't believe it. I mean gee whiz," said Marion L. Roper of Arlington Heights.
Mrs. Roper, of 402 N. Chesnut Ave., was understandably at a loss for words Thursday night after she won the $300,000 bonanza drawing of the Illinois State Lottery.
"I've never won anything before. Nothing. Not even a $20 winner," she said, her voice straining with excitement and exertion to overcome the hubbub of the victory cocktail party at the WGN studio, where the drawings were conducted.
Mrs. Roper will split her winnings with another couple from Woodstock, regular partners in her weekly purchase of lottery tickets.

"I SPEND $2 every week. That's a Grand Slam $1 ticket, the two 50-cent tickets we buy with our friends and two 50-cent ones for myself," she said.
"I've got to figure out what I'm going to do. After they take the taxes, I'd like to buy a house," she said.
Mrs. Roper, an order and shipping clerk at F. H. Bonn Co., Arlington Heights, said her co-workers were sure she was going to win the big prize.
Her husband, Raymond, was sure, too, but also brought along some extra insurance for her.
"He works at Carl Sandburg School and a P.E. teacher there gave him a lucky charm to bring with us tonight.

It's just a little rock shaped like an egg," she said.
THE LUCKY rock came through for Mrs. Roper, and she said some long-standing plans were going to get a boost with her winnings.
"I'm going to take a vacation. We've had that in the plans for a couple of months. Yes, this will make it a little better," she said.
Kids peddled bicycles in the mild spring night, unaware of their lucky neighbor, as Mrs. Roper returned from the drawing.
When the car stopped, Roper called out: "Here she is." Mrs. Roper, just shook her head and said, "I still can't believe it."
Inside the house, a newspaper clipping of her new Cadillac Seville lay on the coffee table, perhaps something to come with the winnings.

But for the time being, the Ropers plan to continue working. "Well, why not? We've been at this long," Roper chuckled.
MRS. ROPER, still smiling after three hours, said she still couldn't believe it happened to her.
Her husband was doing his best to convince her. He tuned the television in for the 10 p.m. news to see the winners.
Other winners in the drawing were Matthew Preshiren, Hammond, Ind., $50,000; Alexander Grudzinski, Chicago; Jane F. Bjoraa, Chicago, and Andrew Cipri, Peoria, all $10,000 winners.

Parks keep Wadford as swim coach

Buffalo Grove Park District officials Thursday offered to keep Virian Wadford as coach of the children's swim team at least for this summer.
Park officials announced they would keep Wadford, 30, in the position but would have to cut the popular coach from the district's swimming pool managerial staff.
The measure was adopted on a motion by Comr. William J. Kiddle before some 50 residents who attended the park board meeting.
The residents, parents of swim team members, were urging park officials to retain Wadford as coach. Last week Wadford said park officials told him he would not be retained as pool manager this summer, which also jeopardized his position as coach.
PARENTS RALLIED behind the coach, however, and Thursday presented park commissioners with a two-page letter asking that Wadford be kept in his position.
Officials said they would evaluate the new setup at the end of the summer to determine Wadford's future as swim coach.
Wadford said, however, he is uncertain if he will be able to accept the position "until I have a chance to sit down with whomever the powers may be."

He said he was concerned about the scheduling of consecutive swim workout periods, saying it was important for swimmers who need two workouts in one day to have a rest in between.
But Comr. Kiddle said the workout schedule could be revised if necessary.
Some residents indicated concern about the park board decision and said Wadford also should be retained as a pool manager.
ONE WOMAN, Rosemary Murray, 918 Crestwood, Palatine, said she thought the board was being "unfair" in announcing that Wadford was being offered only a summer position.
"Are you doing this to pacify the uproar with the hopes of moving him out in the fall," asked Mrs. Murray, who has three children on the swim team.
Kiddle said the entire pool program would be evaluated by officials next fall in "a professional manner."
Wadford has been coaching and managing park district pools for two years.
Park officials said the move was an economic measure as part of a general cutback in pool staffs this summer.

MRS. MOHAMAD MOSTAFI, 23 University Ct., speaks on behalf of about 50 residents who urged Buffalo Grove park officials to keep park district swim coach Virian Wadford on the park district payroll. Park officials voted to retain the popular coach at least for the summer.

Harper will offer evening courses in Wheeling

by WANDALYN RICE

Harper College will offer classes this fall in the Wheeling-Buffer Grove area.

The college's board of trustees Thursday night authorized the administration to negotiate a lease for space in the new Hintz-Buffer Grove shopping center in Wheeling where the college will offer day and evening classes in 10 classrooms.
The board was urged to take the action by Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Edward Fabish, who said, "The idea of a facility close to our community is ideal. I think you will be very surprised at the turnout."

College officials said they expect to negotiate a lease for about $100,000 per year for five years. College Vice Pres. John Birkholtz said as many as 250 students may be attending classes at the center at any one time.

COLLEGE PRES. Robert Lahti said the new center will probably mean a substantial increase in the college's enrollment from the Wheeling area. He said, "We draw a smaller proportion of people from the village of Wheeling, but when you bring services closer to people, participation increases. Why should 40 people drive from Wheeling to Palatine when we can send one instructor there?"

Board member Robert Rausch recommended that the college negotiate for an additional parking lot near the shopping center at the same time it negotiates the lease in the center. College officials indicated the shopping center has space for about 250 cars. Because of that, Rausch said, "It's obvious we're going to need more parking space."

Classes will be offered at the center in business, communications, engineering, science and other fields. The center will be the first place the college will offer off-campus classes both day and evening.

The college now offers off-campus classes in Barrington High School and several smaller locations during evening. The board last month approved a lease agreement with St. Viator High School, Arlington Heights, and will offer evening classes there next fall.

U.S. gets low-income housing subsidy program

A countywide plan for housing subsidies to low- and moderate-income families in Chicago and the suburbs has been submitted to the federal government.

The housing-assistance plan is part of a community-development program providing federal funds for capital-improvement projects in the suburbs.

The county housing-assistance plan was drawn up in one week because of tight federal deadlines for submitting the application. It was the work of five members of the county community-development advisory council, a group of suburban mayors appointed by County Board Pres. George W. Dunne.

THE PLAN calls for an additional 1,000 units of low- and moderate-income housing to be made available during the next year in Cook County. The elderly should be given 400 out of the 1,000 units, the plan says.

Out of the 1,000 units, 200 should be in new buildings, 700 in existing buildings and 100 in rehabilitated buildings that were substandard, the plan says.

The subsidy program is expected to cost all of the $2.8 million the county hopes to get under the housing section of the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

The housing plan calls for rehabilitation of housing in south and southwest Cook County. "The greatest need for rehabilitation appears to be in these areas including abandoned property," the plan says.

In finding units in newly-constructed rental projects, the plan says "the aim is to achieve spatial deconcentration of these housing opportunities, and to make a special effort to provide them near centers of employment."

TERRY HANSEN, an administrative aide to Dunne, said during the next year the mayors will work to refine the goals and, for example, to decide if emphasis should be on rehabilitation of existing neighborhoods or on funding locations near employment centers.

HANSEN SAID the county also hopes to work with suburban building departments during the next year to pinpoint substandard buildings that could be rehabilitated with the federal funds.

The subsidies can be used for housing anywhere in the county, Hansen said, even though the capital improvements funds under the same federal act must be spent in communities which have allowed their populations to be added to the urban county total.

Locally, Palatine, Schaumburg, Wheeling and Rolling Meadows have allowed their populations to be included in the urban county total and the village presidents of Palatine, Wheeling and Schaumburg serve on the county community-development advisory council.

Larson criticized for comments

'Don't speak on policy,' trustees warn staffers

by JOHN MAES

Three Buffalo Grove trustees have said the village's administrative staff members should refrain from making public "evaluative" comments on matters awaiting village board action.

The three, Clarence Rech, Robert Bogart and Dorothy Borth, said they object to staff members, including Village Mgr. Daniel Larson, discussing the merits of annexations or other proposals before they are voted on by the board.

All three denied, however, that Larson and other village staff should be stopped from discussing village business with the press.

"They (staff members) cannot speak for how the board is going to act," Mrs. Rech said. "We're the ones (trustees) who have to stand by our decisions and we're the ones who are going to reap the consequences."

As an example, she mentioned a situation shortly before last month's municipal election, when Larson and former Village Pres. Gary Armstrong made public comments on village water rates. Both said that officials were going to study possible rate rollbacks before the board had been informed, Mrs. Rech said.

"I became angry because I felt it was an election play. The board made no decision but all of a sudden they were committing the village officials to do something that's their prerogative to make their own decision," she said.

Bogart said the statements were not designed to "muzzle anybody" or to restrict information given to the press. But he said, "If the staff infers an annexation is going to be granted, you're getting into weakening the bargaining position of the village board."

The newly elected trustee said that during his campaign, "the citizens were making quite a few comments on what the village staff was saying and who was really running the village."

MRS. BORTH was unavailable for comment Thursday but said Wednesday at a joint village board-plan commission session Larson and his staff should keep from making statements that "evaluate" a proposal before it comes before the village board.

Larson said Thursday he agreed with trustees that they, rather than village administrators should make favorable or unfavorable comments about village matters but denied he has ever taken such positions on project proposals. "It's not my position to," he said.

He also defended allowing staff personnel to discuss recommendations they make to the board. "The staff should be qualified that this is their recommendation and explain the merits of their argument. After the board has adopted it, then it is village policy," he said.

"What they are proposing is nothing different than what is being done. I don't think it's fair to give evaluative statements on anything that's out of my prerogative."

He said village personnel have followed guidelines set down in a two-year-old administrative order banning nonsupervisory staff members from discussing village business with the press.

Canceled fire-district referendum cost $5,000

by BETTY LEE

About $5,000 was spent on the now-defunct Buffalo Grove fire district referendum.

The referendum was to seek approval to disconnect the Long Grove Fire Protection District from serving Lake County Buffalo Grove. The move would allow one fire district, namely the Wheeling Fire Protection District, to cover the entire village.

Buffalo Grove officials, however, abandoned referendum plans Tuesday because of its costs. Officials also said there was a strong possibility of its defeat.

MOST OF THE money spent was by the Long Grove Fire Protection District which objected to the proposal and last year filed a suit to prevent a referendum.

Anton Berg, trustee for the Long Grove district, said about $3,000 to $4,000 was spent by his department in legal fees. The sum included expenses charged by fire consultants hired by the fire district.

The Village of Buffalo Grove expects to pay the bulk of the other expenses. Village Mgr. Daniel Larson Thursday said bills for legal and technical advice have not been received.

"I'd say that it will probably be around $1,000 but it's really hard to say," Larson said.

THE BUFFALO Grove Fire Dept. spent about $100 for the referendum, Chief Wayne Winter said. The money was used to buy paper for printing information fliers distributed to residents, he said.

No funds were spent by the Wheeling Fire Protection District except for legal services whose costs are included in the attorney's salary.

Officials currently are hammering out an agreement with the Long Grove district for Buffalo Grove to start its own municipal fire department.

Long Grove officials said they do not oppose losing territory to a municipal fire department but object giving up the Lake County portion to another fire district.

A municipal fire department most likely will be formed in about five years when the village population reaches 25,000. The village could adopt home-rule status and levy a fire tax to support a fire department.

High schools slate new placement test

Cooper to present 'The Hobbit'

Cooper Junior High School, 1030 W. Plum Grove Rd., Buffalo Grove, will present a musical version of J.R.R. Tolkien's magical adventure, "The Hobbit," today and Saturday at the school.

More than 50 Cooper students are in "The Hobbit," which concerns the adventures of an imaginary meek and mild Hobbit played by Dan Hessler. The Hobbit goes on an adventure with the ancient wizard, Gandalf, played by Caryn Maynen. Their expedition involves a treasure hunt and battle with the terrible dragon, Smaug.

Scenery has been constructed by the Cooper stage crew. The play is directed by Ed Marcicak and produced by Hugh Brady, Cooper teachers. Music will be directed by Renee Gladstone.

The show will begin at 8 p.m. both nights. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children junior high age and older.

Fall referendum may end $8 grade school book fee

Parents of children in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 would be spared an $8-a-year book fee if a fall referendum is approved by voters.

The possibility of a referendum was raised by board of education members Thursday night.

If approved, the $8 annual book fee would be dropped, and the book expense would be paid through taxes. School officials noted that it would not necessarily mean a tax increase, but indicated funds could be diverted from other uses.

The district has charged an $8 book rental fee "for many years," Supt. Kenneth Gill said. But annual textbook costs to the district have risen to twice that amount, he said.

MARJORIE DEU, associate superintendent for instruction, said textbook costs to the district have risen because the district is in the process of replacing some textbooks, some of which are five years old.

During the current year, Dist. 21 has spent $149,988 on textbooks and workbooks through February. But it took in only $66,520 for those books through the current $8 rental fee, said James Gochis, Dist. 21 business manager.

Illinois school law states that school districts must charge for textbooks unless voters pass a special referendum to pick up the tab. According to a recent Rockford court decision, districts may charge for consumable materials such as workbooks, pencils and paper, whether or not they pass a textbook referendum, said Dist. 21 attorney Everett Nicholas.

"I think we're faced with a decision of bringing the book-rental fee in line, (with district book costs) or going to a referendum," Edwin Smith, board member, said.

Gill and Associate Supt. John Barger said that if the district picked up the full cost of providing textbooks, the money would have to come from the operating budget. The funds needed to provide free textbooks would be the equivalent of six teacher salaries, Barger said.

The board postponed further discussion of a free textbook referendum until its first meeting in June so it would have a full board present. Board member Jack Lane was not present Thursday.

Wheeling chief hit for court action

by LUISA GINETTI

Several Wheeling officials called Thursday for an investigation of Police Chief Peter T. Guttilla's action in interceding in a court hearing on hit-and-run charges against his secretary's son-in-law.

Village hall sources reported a heated closed-door meeting Thursday morning between Guttilla and Village Mgr. George Passolt in Passolt's office after the incident was disclosed by The Herald.

Passolt refused comment later on speculation that he would take disciplinary action against Guttilla. He said he expected to finish an inquiry into the matter today.

GUTTILLA INTERCEDED Wednesday on behalf of Luis Arellano, 1530 Park Pl., Des Plaines, and asked Associate Judge James Maher Jr. for a pretrial conference to discuss circumstances in the case.

Arellano was in court facing head-on, hit-and-run accident charges stemming from a March 21 accident two miles north of Iltz Road on Milwaukee Avenue. Arellano's car apparently crossed into northbound traffic and caused a collision with an auto driven by Gwyn Dontrager of Elkhart, Ind.

Maher refused to drop charges and continued the case to May 21.

Guttilla said he was at the hearing only to keep Arellano company and denied he attempted to talk Dontrager into dropping charges against Arellano.

TRUSTEES CONTACTED Thursday said they had no knowledge of the incident until reading about it in The Herald but felt some action should be taken by Passolt.

"I'm very, very concerned after reading the article," Trustee Gilbert Moroson said. "If it's a matter of poor judgment it's serious in that respect alone," he said.

"I think it raises grave questions concerning the man's ability to lead a department and inspire his men when he himself exhibits such poor judgment," Moroson added.

"There are a number of unanswered questions that need to be answered but I definitely plan to pursue it," the trustee said.

TRUSTEE Charles M. Kerr said he did not know about the incident until Thursday. "I didn't know about it until I walked into the office," he said. "I think it is a problem for the manager because the chief is under the manager. I think the action (of the chief) deserves some action from the village manager," Kerr said.

Peter T. Guttilla

Trustee Otis Hedlund said action should be taken against the chief if he acted improperly. "If the chief used his position in this instance, he used it wrongly," Hedlund said.

"It's something we'll have to take a serious look at because misusing powers in a private matter is a serious thing," Hedlund added.

TRUSTEE William Hein said he was unaware of the incident and declined comment "until I hear both sides of the story."

Trustee John Cole also declined comment on the matter because he said he also was unaware of the situation.

Trustee Donald Jackson could not be reached for comment.

The board will conduct an executive session Monday night after the regular board meeting to discuss personnel matters. The chief's case is expected to be reviewed.

Woman sues village, bank over arrest

A Schaumburg woman has filed suit against the Village of Wheeling and the Wheeling Trust & Savings Bank for false arrest resulting from a bad-check charge reported a year ago.

Gail Fern, 711 Tipperary Ln., Schaumburg, is seeking $50,000 in damages from Del. Kenneth R. Dawson, of the Wheeling police force, the Village of Wheeling, the bank, assistant cashier John Cargill, and her former husband, Raymond Fern of Wheeling.

Mrs. Fern was arrested Sept. 20, 1974, on a charge of forgery, but the charge was dropped when she appeared in Circuit Court Feb. 21, 1975. Later that day she was charged with theft and was acquitted, the suit says.

Wheeling police said they received a report from the bank on May 9, 1974, that a $300 check had been written on Fern's closed account at the First National Bank of Mount Prospect. Fern told police he did not write the check but said his wife could have done it, police said.

Police said Mrs. Fern denied writing the check and it was sent to a crime laboratory. A warrant for her arrest was issued Sept. 19, 1974, and Mrs. Fern was arrested at her office in Des Plaines, and charged with forgery.

Mrs. Fern's suit charges that she was held for several hours in the village jail, "deprived of her liberty and confined in a jail in an unlawful manner and upon a charge that was false and fictitious."

MARION ROPER

'Gee' she's $300,000 winner

by JOE SWICKARD
"I can't believe it. I mean gee whiz," said Marion L. Roper of Arlington Heights.
Mrs. Roper, of 402 N. Chesnut Ave., was understandably at a loss for words Thursday night after she won the $300,000 bonanza drawing of the Illinois State Lottery.
"I've never won anything before. Nothing. Not even a $20 winner," she said, her voice straining with excitement and exertion to overcome the hubbub of the victory cocktail party at the WGN studio, where the drawings were conducted.
Mrs. Roper will split her winnings with another couple from Woodstock, regular partners in her weekly purchase of lottery tickets.

"I SPEND $2 every week. That's a Grand Slam $1 ticket, the two 50-cent tickets we buy with our friends and two 50-cent ones for myself," she said.
"I've got to figure out what I'm going to do. After they take the taxes, I'd like to buy a house," she said.
Mrs. Roper, an order and shipping clerk at F. H. Bonn Co., Arlington Heights, said her co-workers were sure she was going to win the big prize.
Her husband, Raymond, was sure, too, but also brought along some extra insurance for her.
"He works at Carl Sandburg School and a P.E. teacher there gave him a lucky charm to bring with us tonight.

It's just a little rock shaped like an egg," she said.
THE LUCKY rock came through for Mrs. Roper, and she said some long-standing plans were going to get a boost with her winnings.
"I'm going to take a vacation. We've had that in the plans for a couple of months. Yes, this will make it a little better," she said.
Kids peddled bicycles in the mild spring night, unaware of their lucky neighbor, as Mrs. Roper returned from the drawing.
When the car stopped, Roper called out: "Here she is." Mrs. Roper, just shook her head and said, "I still can't believe it."
Inside the house, a newspaper clipping of the new Cadillac Seville lay on the coffee table, perhaps something to come with the winnings.

But for the time being, the Ropers plan to continue working. "Well, why not? We've been at this long," Roper chuckled.
MRS. ROPER, still smiling after three hours, said she still just couldn't believe it happened to her.
Her husband was doing his best to convince her. He tuned the television in for the 10 p.m. news to see the winners.
Other winners in the drawing were Matthew Preshire, Hammond, Ind., $50,000; Alexander Grudzinski, Chicago; Jane F. Bjoraas, Chicago, and Andrew Cipri, Peoria, all $10,000 winners.

Harper College will offer classes this fall in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area.

The college's board of trustees Thursday night authorized the administration to negotiate a lease for space in the new Hinz-Buffalo Grove shopping center in Wheeling where the college will offer day and evening classes in 10 classrooms.

The board was urged to take the action by Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Edward Fabish, who said, "The idea of a facility close to our community is ideal. I think you will be very surprised at the turnout."

College officials said they expect to negotiate a lease for about $100,000 per year for five years. College Vice Pres. John Birkholtz said as many as 250 students may be attending classes at the center at any one time.

COLLEGE PRES. Robert Lahti said the new center will probably mean a substantial increase in the college's enrollment from the Wheeling area. He said, "We draw a smaller proportion of people from the village of Wheeling, but when you bring services closer to people, participation increases. Why should 40 people drive from Wheeling to Palatine when we can send one instructor there?"

Board member Robert Rausch recommended that the college negotiate for an additional parking lot near the shopping center at the same time it negotiates the lease in the center. College officials indicated the shopping center has space for about 250 cars. Because of that, Rausch said, "It's obvious we're going to need more

U.S. gets low-income housing subsidy program

A countywide plan for housing subsidies to low- and moderate-income families in Chicago and the suburbs has been submitted to the federal government.

The housing-assistance plan is part of a community-development program providing federal funds for capital-improvement projects in the suburbs.

The county housing-assistance plan was drawn up in one week because of tight federal deadlines for submitting the application. It was the work of five members of the county community-development advisory council, a group of suburban mayors appointed by County Board Pres. George W. Dunne.

THE PLAN calls for an additional 1,000 units of low- and moderate-income housing to be made available during the next year in Cook County. The elderly should be given 400 out of the 1,000 units, the plan says.

Out of the 1,000 units, 200 should be in new buildings, 700 in existing buildings and 100 in rehabilitated buildings that were substandard, the plan says.

The subsidy program is expected to cost all of the $2.8 million the county hopes to get under the housing section of the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

The housing plan calls for rehabilitation of housing in south and southwest Cook County. "The greatest need for rehabilitation appears to be in these areas including abandoned property," the plan says.

In finding units in newly-constructed rental projects, the plan says "the aim is to achieve spatial deconcentration of these housing opportunities, and to make a special effort to provide them near centers of employment."

TERRY HANSEN, an administrative aide to Dunne, said during the next year the mayors will work to refine the goals and, for example, to decide if emphasis should be on rehabilitation of existing neighborhoods or on funding locations near employment centers.

HANSEN SAID the county also hopes to work with suburban building departments during the next year to pinpoint substandard buildings that could be rehabilitated with the federal funds.

The subsidies can be spent for housing anywhere in the county, Hansen said, even though the capital improvement funds under the same federal act must be spent in communities which have allowed their populations to be added to the urban county total.

Locally, Palatine, Schaumburg, Wheeling and Rolling Meadows have allowed their populations to be included in the urban county total and the village presidents of Palatine, Wheeling and Schaumburg serve on the county community-development advisory council.

Hamer's opinion against extrustee

Bruhn's police, fire appointment in doubt

Former trustee Ronald Bruhn, appointed to the Wheeling Fire and Police Commission by the outgoing village board while he was still a trustee, will not be allowed to assume his commission post, The Herald has learned.

Several trustees on the new board, which took office May 1, questioned the legality of Bruhn's appointment saying state statutes prohibit sitting aldermen or village trustees from appointment to boards or commissions.

The trustees contended that although Bruhn's appointment to the commission did not take effect until May 1, he was officially appointed while still a trustee.

TRUSTEE OTIS Hedlund, chairman of the judiciary and purchasing committee, asked Village Atty. Paul Hamer for a written opinion on the matter.

Hamer Thursday said he has reached a decision and the board will have his opinion Monday. Hamer refused to disclose the opinion but The Herald has learned that the opinion goes against Bruhn.

The opinion says that based on Hamer's interpretation of state statutes, Bruhn was indeed appointed to the commission while still an elected trustee, making the appointment void.

Hedlund also asked the Illinois Attorney General's office for an opinion on the law but it is expected the board will follow Hamer's opinion.

Bruhn, a former member of the commission, was appointed to fill a three-year term after the board voted against reappointing Michael Moran to his seat on the commission.

VILLAGE PRES. Ted C. Scanlon said at the time trustees raised the issue that Bruhn's appointment was valid because it did not take effect until May and Bruhn's term as a trustee officially ended April 30.

Trustees on the new board, including Donald Jackson, John Cole, Hedlund and Gilbert Monson, questioned the appointment as being contrary to the law and said they talked to attorneys who agreed with their position.

Jackson, who was a member of the old board, voted against Bruhn's appointment saying the new board should be allowed to make the choice. Scanlon said the appointment had to be made by April 30 because the law requires appointments to the fire and police commission be made by that date.

McDonald Creek flood aid year away

by LYNN ASINOF

Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights residents living along McDonald Creek can expect flood relief by next spring, state officials say.

A project that includes the widening and dredging of the lower portion of McDonald Creek is tentatively slated for completion in early 1976. The project will allow the opening of the Soo Line culvert, west of Quince Lane, which in turn is expected to reduce upstream creek levels substantially.

The widening and dredging will affect portions of the creek from the Soo Line culvert south to the Des Plaines River.

This section is narrower than the upstream part of the creek. Residents in the area pushed for the widening and dredging work, fearing they would be flooded if the culvert was opened without downstream improvements.

LEON WINN, engineer with the state division of water resources, said his department is in the process of obtaining easements and property along the creek. He said appraisals of the property needed should be completed by the middle of this month, with residents contacted shortly thereafter.

Winn said if there are no problems in obtaining the right-of-way the project should go to bid in December.

Actual construction is estimated at about $170,000 Winn said, with the total project costing about $300,000.

"The over-all project will not take too terribly long to do," Winn said. "And I would like to do it in the winter because it is a winter job."

Winn estimated that it would take three to four months to complete the widening and dredging. The state is planning to make McDonald Creek 28 feet wide from Foundry Road south to the Des Plaines River, but officials do not think people will lose patios or garages as part of the project.

NANCY PHILIPPE of the Governor's Task Force on Flood Control said the state is hoping that Mount Prospect will sponsor the project. This would mean that the village would help in obtaining easements and also would maintain the creek once it is improved.

"It is very important to us that we get a maintenance agreement," Mrs. Philippe said, noting that the creek could quickly become overgrown if not maintained.

Mrs. Philippe said residents along the creek seem satisfied with the state's plans. She said previously the upstream residents were unhappy because the culvert was not opened while the downstream residents feared the culvert would be opened without any improvements.

"It is the most positive response from the people we have gotten," Mrs. Philippe said of a recent meeting where the plans were explained. "By in large everyone was very positive."

$400 outboard motor stolen from boat

A $400 outboard motor was stolen Wednesday or late Tuesday from a boat kept at 1201 Pleasant Run Dr., Wheeling police said.

The boat and motor are owned by Julius C. Grumbeck of that address.

Police also reported the theft of a $250 citizens band radio from a truck owned by Sean M. Smith, 582 Fairway View Dr., Tuesday or Wednesday.

Fall referendum may end $8 grade school book fee

Parents of children in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 would be spared an $8-a-year book fee if a fall referendum is approved by voters.
The possibility of a referendum was raised by board of education members Thursday night.
If approved, the $8 annual book fee would be dropped, and the book expense would be paid through taxes.
School officials noted that it would not necessarily mean a tax increase, but indicated funds could be diverted from other uses.
The district has charged an $8 book rental fee "for many years," Supt.

Kenneth Gill said. But annual textbook costs to the district have risen to twice that amount, he said.
MARJORIE BEU, associate superintendent for instruction, said textbook costs to the district have risen because the district is in the process of replacing some textbooks, some of which are five years old.
During the current year, Dist. 21 has spent $149,083 on textbooks and workbooks through February. But it took in only $66,520 for those books through the current $8 rental fee, said James Gochis, Dist. 21 business manager.

Illinois school law states that school districts must charge for textbooks unless voters pass a special referendum to pick up the tab. According to a recent Rockford court decision, districts may charge for consumable materials such as workbooks, pencils and paper, whether or not they pass a textbook referendum, said Dist. 21 attorney Everett Nicholas.
"I think we're faced with a decision of bringing the book-rental fee in line, (with district book costs) or going to a referendum," Edwin Smith, board member, said.
Gill and Associate Supt. John Barger said that if the district picked up the full cost of providing textbooks, the money would have to come from the operating budget. The funds needed to provide free textbooks would be the equivalent of six teacher salaries, Barger said.
The board postponed further discussion of a free textbook referendum until its first meeting in June so it would have a full board present.
Board member Jack Lane was not present Thursday.

Schaumburg woman sues over arrest

A Schaumburg woman has filed suit against the Village of Wheeling and the Wheeling Trust & Savings Bank for false arrest resulting from a bad-check charge reported a year ago.
Gail Fern, 711 Tipperary Ln., Schaumburg, is seeking $50,000 in damages from Det. Kenneth R. Dawson, of the Wheeling police force, the Village of Wheeling, the bank, assistant cashier John Cargill, and her former husband, Raymond Fern of Wheeling.
Mrs. Fern was arrested Sept. 20, 1974, on a charge of forgery, but the charge was dropped when she appeared in Circuit Court Feb. 21, 1975.
Later that day she was charged with theft and was acquitted, the suit says.

Wheeling police said they received a report from the bank on May 9, 1974, that a $300 check had been written on Fern's closed account at the First National Bank of Mount Prospect. Fern told police he did not write the check but said his wife could have done it, police said.

Police said Mrs. Fern denied writing the check and it was sent to a crime laboratory. A warrant for her arrest was issued Sept. 19, 1974, and Mrs. Fern was arrested at her office in Des Plaines, and charged with forgery.

Mrs. Fern's suit charges that she was held for several hours in the village jail, "deprived of her liberty and confined in a jail in an unlawful manner and upon a charge that was false and fictitious."

chief) deserves some action from the village manager," Kerr said.
Trustee Oils Hedlund said action should be taken against the chief if he acted improperly. "If the chief used his position in this instance, he used it wrongly," Hedlund said.
"It's something we'll have to take a serious look at because misusing powers in a private matter is a serious thing," Hedlund added.
TRUSTEE William Hein said he was unaware of the incident and declined comment "until I hear both sides of the story."
Trustee John Cole also declined comment on the matter because he said he also was unaware of the situation.
Trustee Donald Jackson could not be reached for comment.
The board will conduct an executive session Monday night after the regular board meeting to discuss personnel matters. The chief's case is expected to be reviewed.

'Soul-searching' meeting

Function of board mulled by schools

by DOROTHY OLIVER

The Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education agreed Thursday night that its function is to set standards for the district, determine goals, evaluate how the district is meeting those goals and educate the community on what the board is doing.

In a committee-of-the-whole meeting, board members discussed the importance of determining the future of the district by setting standards and goals now.

The meeting is the first of three the board will hold to discuss its function, problems facing the district and ways to solve the problems.

Board members also agreed that their primary function should include determining curriculum, providing buildings, hiring staff and administration, budgeting with fiscal responsibility, becoming involved in state legislation of education and being consistent.

"IN SETTING goals we are trying to set a distinct direction that passes from one board to another," said Board Pres. Edward Bedard. "Future boards can modify it as they see fit."

Board member Dr. Edgar Feldman raised another election issue that the board was constantly bogged down by details. "I think the board should be broad based," he said. "There are certain things any board should be a rubber stamp for, like the height of the pile of the carpeting."

Feldman said the board should be decision makers basing their decisions on the expert opinions of the staff.

Board member Sherry Reynolds challenged Feldman, saying if the board relies only on the information provided by the administration, the district loses the system of checks and balances.

"How does the board adequately evaluate if it doesn't have first-hand information," she said.

DIST. SUPT. Wayne Schable said "It is impossible for us to keep seven people that well informed." Schable said the administration expects the board to "set goals so we know where to go, set policy so we know what you want us to do. It is my job as chief executive officer to carry out your policy. If a superintendent doesn't do that, then he should be replaced."

Discussion at one point also revolved around how much the board should listen to the community. Former board member Adam Jelen, who attended the meeting, said one area he felt most board members were lax in is that they don't go out to the community to talk to the people.

He asked board members how much their decisions should be influenced by the desires of the community.

Board member Gordon Thoren said, "I think it's obvious decisions are made by the seven board members with input from the professionals. The community does not have the knowledge or the expertise."

Bedard said "Input from the community is provided for by annual elections. They give people a voice and involvement."

He added as a part-time board member it would be impossible to spend the amount of time necessary to go into the community to seek opinions.

The committee-of-the-whole will meet May 22 from 6 to 10:30 p.m. at Keller Junior High School, 820 Bode Rd., Schaumburg, to discuss problems facing the board.

First since October

Township welfare cases finally showing a drop

by STIRLING MORITA

The Schaumburg Township welfare caseload is showing signs of slackening for the first time since October.

The temporary welfare load for March and April dropped from the all-time high of 90 for February. In the last two months, there were only 78 new families coming to the township for help.

Because of the economy crunch and job layoffs, the caseload has been double and even 2½ times higher than last year. Although the numbers did decline, March and April have been typically slow months for township welfare, records show.

THE FIGURES for both months are more than triple the amount for the two months in 1974.

However, township officials are encouraged by the apparent reduction.

"It's slackening a little. There are not as many new people coming in for unemployment reasons," said Edith Hovious, township caseworker.

"It's encouraging. Something is happening," said Vernon Laubenstein, township supervisor, adding there might be a seasonal upsurge in the job market with a possible increase in building construction.

HOWEVER, the financial pinch for the general assistance fund is still haunting the township. Emergency funds and tax anticipation warrants have been funneled into the fund to meet the unexpected heavy increase in caseload.

General assistance funds have dwindled to less than $3,000, and incoming tax money for the new fiscal year cannot be spent, but must be set aside to pay off the $50,000 in tax anticipation warrants.

Laubenstein said the township board will try to investigate other ways of securing funds for the sagging fund.

He noted the recently instituted jobs in the villages of Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg and the Hoffman Estates Park District have helped lower the caseload "tremendously." He explained the seven jobs available under the federal Emergency Manpower Act six were filled by persons on the township welfare rolls.

The Schaumburg Park District recently received federal funds to add a job to its maintenance department for an unemployed person.

In anticipation of a continual large township caseload, the township board has approved a $200,000 general assistance fund for the 1975-76 fiscal year, less than three times the amount budgeted for the previous year.

Des Plaines man, 23, indicted in sex case

A 23-year-old Des Plaines man was indicted Thursday for burglary, attempted rape and deviate sexual assault stemming from an assault Dec. 11, 1974, of a woman at International Village, Schaumburg.

The county grand jury returned the indictments against William H. Schmeltzer, 1820 Orchard St. He was originally charged with attempted rape, aggravated assault and deviate sexual assault.

Police said a man, using a gun, forced his way into the apartment of a 21-year-old woman and tied her up. The intruder ransacked the apartment and stripped the clothes from the woman, but was interrupted by a friend of the woman and fled, authorities said.

LUCKY ROCK. Marion L. Roper holds a lucky rock lent her for the Illinois Lottery Thursday. Mrs. Roper came home to Arlington Heights a $300,000 bonanza winner.

A working mother, Mrs. Roper said she will continue working and hopes to buy a house with her share. She shared the prize ticket with friends.

'Gee whiz!'

Woman speechless after winning $300 grand in Lottery; plans to buy house, keep working

by JOE SWICKARD

"I can't believe it. I mean gee whiz," said Marion L. Roper of Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Roper, of 402 N. Chesnut Ave., was understandably at a loss for words Thursday night after she won the $300,000 bonanza drawing of the Illinois State Lottery.

"I've never won anything before. Nothing. Not even a $20 winner," she said, her voice straining with excitement and exertion to overcome the hubbub of the victory cocktail party at the WGN studio, where the drawings were conducted.

Mrs. Roper will split her winnings with another couple from Woodstock, regular partners in her weekly purchase of lottery tickets.

"I SPEND $2 every week. That's a Grand Slam $1 ticket, the two 50-cent tickets we buy with our friends and two 50-cent ones for myself," she said.

"I've got to figure out what I'm going to do. After they take the taxes, I'd like to buy a house," she said.

Mrs. Roper, an order and shipping clerk at F. H. Bonn Co., Arlington Heights, said her co-workers were sure she was going to win the big prize.

Her husband, Raymond, was sure, too, but also brought along some extra insurance for her.

"He works at Carl Sandburg School and a P.E. teacher there gave him a lucky charm to bring with us tonight. It's just a little rock shaped like an egg," she said.

THE LUCKY rock came through for Mrs. Roper, and she said some long-standing plans were going to get a boost with her winnings.

"I'm going to take a vacation. We've had that in the plans for a couple of months. Yes, this will make it a little better," she said.

Kids peddled bicycles in the mild spring night, unaware of their lucky neighbor, as Mrs. Roper returned from the drawing.

When the car stopped, Roper called out: "Here she is." Mrs. Roper, just shook her head and said, "I still can't believe it."

Inside the house, a newspaper clipping of the new Cadillac Seville lay on the coffee table, perhaps something to come with the winnings.

But for the time being, the Ropers plan to continue working. "Well, why not? We've been at this long," Roper chuckled.

MRS. ROPER, still smiling after three hours, said she still just couldn't believe it happened to her.

Her husband was doing his best to convince her. He tuned the television in for the 10 p.m. news to see the winners.

Other winners in the drawing were Matthew Preshire, Hammond, Ind., $50,000; Alexander Grudzinski, Chicago; Jane F. Bjornas, Chicago, and Andrew Cipri, Peoria, all $10,000 winners.

U.S. gets low-income housing subsidy program

A countywide plan for housing subsidies to low- and moderate-income families in Chicago and the suburbs has been submitted to the federal government.

The housing-assistance plan is part of a community-development program providing federal funds for capital-improvement projects in the suburbs.

The county housing-assistance plan was drawn up in one week because of tight federal deadlines for submitting the application. It was the work of five members of the county community-development advisory council, a group of suburban mayors appointed by County Board Pres. George W. Dunne.

THE PLAN calls for an additional 1,000 units of low- and moderate-income housing to be made available during the next year in Cook County. The elderly should be given 400 out of the 1,000 units, the plan says.

Out of the 1,000 units, 200 should be in new buildings, 700 in existing buildings and 100 in rehabilitated buildings that were substandard, the plan says.

The subsidy program is expected to cost all of the $2.8 million the county hopes to get under the housing section of the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

The housing plan calls for rehabilitation of housing in south and southwest Cook County. "The greatest need for rehabilitation appears to be in these areas including abandoned property," the plan says.

In finding units in newly-constructed rental projects, the plan says "the aim is to achieve spatial deconcentration of these housing opportunities, and to make a special effort to provide them near centers of employment."

TERRY HANSEN, an administrative aide to Dunne, said during the next year the mayors will work to refine the goals and, for example, to decide if emphasis should be on rehabilitation of existing neighborhoods or on funding locations near employment centers.

HANSEN SAID the county also hopes to work with suburban building departments during the next year to pinpoint substandard buildings that could be rehabilitated with the federal funds.

The subsidies can be spent for housing anywhere in the county, Hansen said, even though the capital improvement funds under the same federal act must be spent in communities which have allowed their populations to be added to the urban county total.

Locally, Palatine, Schaumburg, Wheeling and Rolling Meadows have allowed their populations to be included in the urban county total and the village presidents of Palatine, Wheeling and Schaumburg serve on the county community-development advisory council.

Franklin Park man gets 6-16 for holdups

A Franklin Park man was sentenced to 6 to 16 years in prison Thursday after pleading guilty to 12 armed robberies including two in Des Plaines and one in Schaumburg.

James L. Ryder, 36, was sentenced by Judge Robert L. Massey in Criminal Court, Chicago.

Ryder pleaded guilty to an armed robbery of a Burger King restaurant, 860 Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, in January 1974 and a holdup of a Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant, 1340 Lee St., Des Plaines, in March 1974.

The Schaumburg robbery occurred in February 1974 at the Ponderosa Steak House, 1823 W. Wise Rd. About $1,300 in cash was taken.

Township gets $100,000 more in revenue-sharing

Schaumburg Township officials have been notified that the township's share of federal revenue-sharing funds for the year starting July 1 will increase more than $100,000.

Vernon Laubenstein, township supervisor, said the federal government will be sending about $295,000 in revenue-sharing funds. In the past, the township has received about $189,000.

Laubenstein said he was glad to see the increase, "especially because we have been trying to pinch some pennies and make some tough decisions" when various groups come in requesting funds.

The supervisor said the increase was probably because of the population growth in the township. For past allotments, the township's 1970 census of 30,000 residents had been used. It was estimated that the population presently exceeds 80,000 persons.

He noted there seemed to be more community service groups coming in for money because of a growing awareness of the funds. Most of the township's portion of the revenue-sharing funds have gone to mental health and senior citizens' concerns.

The township revenue-sharing committee is slated to hear requests May 20 from The Big Brothers of Metropolitan Chicago, the Northwest Opportunity Center of Arlington Heights and the Northwest Suburban Head Start program. The meeting starts at 8:45 p.m. at the township office in the Buttery office building, 105 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg.

High school board backs dismissal of supervisor

The High School Dist. 211 Board of Education Thursday night upheld the firing of a faculty-services supervisor after a public hearing.

Fran Jennings, supervisor of the clerical staff serving faculty at Hoffman Estates High School, was fired March 17 for "poor interpersonal relations and unsatisfactory response to administrative directives." She took her case to the district administration, which ruled against her. She then appealed to the board.

The board ruled out other charges, which included being late to work, smoking in unauthorized areas of the school, leaving her station without notice and an outstanding debt of $5.85 at the school bookstore. Board Pres. Robert Creek agreed to set aside the charge of poor relations with coworkers and focused on her relationship with her supervisors.

HOFFMAN ESTATES High School Principal Thomas Hillestien said Mrs. Jennings questioned assistant principal Raymond Perlberg on the sick leave due one of her workers. Perlberg said he told Mrs. Jennings the worker's sick leave had been exhausted for the year. Mrs. Jennings then called the district office to check on the sick leave again.

Hillestien said he considered Mrs. Jennings' act "going over the head" of her supervisor and he did not want her working at the school.

The board voted 6 to 0 to uphold the firing of Mrs. Jennings. Board member Jean Fiesler abstained from voting, saying, "I don't feel she had the opportunity to state her case."

Harper College to offer classes in shop center

by WANDALYN RICE

Harper College will offer classes this fall in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area.

The college's board of trustees Thursday night authorized the administration to negotiate a lease for space in the new Hintz-Buffalo Grove shopping center in Wheeling where the college will offer day and evening classes in 10 classrooms.

The board was urged to take the action by Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Edward Fabish, who said, "The idea of a facility close to our community is ideal. I think you will be very surprised at the turnout."

College officials said they expect to negotiate a lease for about $100,000 per year for five years. College Vice Pres. John Birkholtz said as many as 250 students may be attending classes at the center at any one time.

COLLEGE PRES. Robert Lahti said the new center will probably mean a substantial increase in the college's enrollment from the Wheeling area. He said, "We draw a smaller proportion of people from the village of Wheeling, but when you bring services closer to people, participation increases. Why should 40 people drive from Wheeling to Palatine when we can send one instructor there?"

Board member Robert Rausch recommended that the college negotiate for an additional parking lot near the shopping center at the same time it negotiates the lease in the center. College officials indicated the shopping center has space for about 250 cars. Because of that, Rausch said, "It's obvious we're going to need more parking space."

Classes will be offered at the center in business, communications, engineering, science and other fields. The center will be the first place the college will offer off-campus classes both day and evening.

The college now offers off-campus classes in Barrington High School and several smaller locations during evening. The board last month approved a lease agreement with St. Viator High School, Arlington Heights, and will offer evening classes there next fall.

Guardsmen Boosters plan dinner dance

The Guardsmen Junior Drum and Bugle Corps Boosters will hold a May 24 "Guardsmen Preview '75" dinner dance at Moon Lake Village Recreational Center, 1825 Jennifer Ln., Hoffman Estates.

The event will begin with a 6:30 p.m. standstill exhibition by the Cadet and "A" Corps, followed by dinner at 7 p.m. Music for dancing will be provided from 9 p.m. to midnight by Dick Bunker and the "Banknotes" and a cash bar will be available to guests 19 and over.

Tickets may be reserved by calling 329-3170 before Thursday. The cost is $4.50 for adults, $3.50 for children over 10 and $2 for younger children.

Persons attending the event after 8 p.m. will be charged a $3 entrance fee.

Pledges total $27,356 in walk for Twinbrook Y

Pledges totaling $27,356 are expected to be collected from Saturday's 15-mile Walk for Twinbrook YMCA, Barry Goldberg, walk chairman.

Proceeds from the event, in which 800 persons participated, will help pay for the remaining $51,000 mortgage on a 15-acre Wise Road site, planned for a YMCA building.

Goldberg said many persons called the YMCA office Monday and Tuesday to increase their pledges to donate extra money to the fund.

"With less than $20,000 to go, we have decided we want to collect the entire sum before June 30 so that on July 1 we can start rolling toward the building," said Goldberg. Additional fund-raising activities will be planned in the next few weeks, he said.

Builder asks 'small-lot' development

Rolling Meadows may see within a year its first "zero-lot-line" development of houses built to take advantage of small lots.

Edward Zale, president of Zale Construction Co., presented the concept at a preliminary hearing before the city plan commission this week. Chairman Carl Couve Thursday said the commission appeared to approve of the concept.

Houses built on the zero-lot-line concept eliminate traditional side and rear yards so that houses can be built on smaller than average lots.

ZALE CURRENTLY is selling townhouses in the first phase of his Meadow Edge project, north of Old Plum Grove Road between Meacham and Quentín roads. The development totals 62 acres, and Zale is building 225 townhomes on the first 25 acres. The plan offered this week was for 150 houses in small compact clusters on the remaining 37 acres.

Zale described the cluster area as a group of "pinwheels," with groups of eight homes, each built around branch roads from the main interior streets, Couve said. The branch roads would split into driveways leading to two or three homes, which would be built on angles to the driveways, producing the pinwheel effect.

Couve said the angling of lots should give residents a view of a much larger expanse of land from their windows than they would have in a traditional row-house concept. Although each home would have a relatively small yard, Couve said, residents would have the use of large landscaped areas, in effect combining the space that would have been taken by putting larger yards around each house.

The builder is "deeding out a lot size which barely fits the house," and the owner is responsible for maintenance of only that small area, Couve said. The other portions of land are cared for through a homeowner association with yearly maintenance fees.

ZALE'S PLAN produces no higher density than would have been permitted with a traditional layout, Couve said. The density is about four units to the acre, and lot sizes range from 4,800 to 10,200 square feet.

Couve said the zero-lot-line plan showed "a lot of thought," and creates a "feeling of openness," although he personally feels there should be fewer homes in each cluster. The project is expected to attract young couples, Couve said. The homes would have 1,600 to 2,200 square feet, and sell for from $65,000 to $75,000, he said.

Zale is to present more details on the proposal in June, when he also will be required to explain a proposed change in the layout for the townhouse section of Meadow Edge, Couve said. The aspect of the project the commission "criticized most" is a change in the proposed site plan for the townhouse, and their location in relationship to an artificial storm water retention lake, Couve said.

COUVE SAID the commission emphasized that Zale must obtain its approval and the consent of the City Council to make the change, and probably will have to present now reports on what the altered plan will do to storm water drainage.

Zale now is seeking only preliminary approval for the zero-lot-line homes. Before he can proceed with building, he must submit engineering plans and more detailed information for final plan approval.

Zale hopes to have models of the homes completed by next spring.

LUCKY ROCK. Marion L. Roper holds a lucky rock lent her for the Illinois Lottery Thursday. Mrs. Roper came home to Arlington Heights a $300,000 bonanza winner. A working mother, Mrs. Roper said she will continue working and hopes to buy a house with her share. She shared the prize ticket with friends.

'Gee whiz!'

Woman speechless after winning $300 grand in Lottery; plans to buy house, keep working

by JOE SWICKARD

"I can't believe it. I mean gee whiz," said Marion L. Roper of Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Roper, 402 N. Chesnut Ave., was understandably at a loss for words Thursday night after she won the $300,000 bonanza drawing of the Illinois State Lottery.

"I've never won anything before. Nothing. Not even a $20 winner," she said, her voice straining with excitement and exertion to overcome the hubbub of the victory cocktail party at the WGN studio, where the drawings were conducted.

Mrs. Roper will split her winnings with another couple from Woodstock, regular partners in her weekly purchase of lottery tickets.

"I SPEND $2 every week. That's a grand slam $1 ticket, the two 50-cent tickets we buy with our friends and two 50-cent ones for myself," she said.

"I've got to figure out what I'm going to do. After they take the taxes, I'd like to buy a house," she said.

Mrs. Roper, an order and shipping clerk at F. H. Bonn Co., Arlington Heights, said her co-workers were sure she was going to win the big prize.

Her husband, Raymond, was sure, too, but also brought along some extra insurance for her.

"He works at Carl Sandburg School and a P.E. teacher there gave him a lucky charm to bring with us tonight. It's just a little rock shaped like an egg," she said.

THE LUCKY rock came through for Mrs. Roper, and she said some long-standing plans were going to get a boost with her winnings.

"I'm going to take a vacation. We've had that in the plans for a couple of months. Yes, this will make it a little better," she said.

Kids peddled bicycles in the mild spring night, unaware of their lucky neighbor, as Mrs. Roper returned from the drawing.

When the car stopped, Mrs. Roper called out: "Here she is." Mrs. Roper, just shook her head and said, "I still can't believe it."

Inside the house, a newspaper clipping of her new Cadillac Seville lay on the coffee table, perhaps something to come with the winnings.

But for the time being, the Ropers plan to continue working. "Well, why not? We've been at this long," Roper chuckled.

MRS. ROPER, still smiling after three hours, said she still just couldn't believe it happened to her.

Her husband was doing his best to convince her. He tuned the television in for the 10 p.m. news to see the winners.

Other winners in the drawing were Matthew Preshire, Hammond, Ind., $30,000; Alexander Grudzinski, Chicago; Jane F. Bjoraa, Chicago, and Andrew Cipri, Peoria, all $10,000 winners.

Cops to take 'hard line' on bicycles

The Rolling Meadows Police Dept. says it will take a hard line on bicycle law enforcement this summer.

Bicycle court opened this week and Police Chief Lewis R. Case and Service Officer Al Jurs stressed the importance of bicyclists obeying city and state laws to protect their own lives.

Jurs reported on an inspection and safety lane program held Monday for first through third graders at Salk School. Of the estimated 75 bikes examined, "there wasn't one that had all the equipment and everything in good shape," Jurs said. He said about 70 per cent of the bikes did not have 50-cent city licenses, and only about 10 persons took advantage of an offer the department made last year to engrave identification numbers on bikes. "In the last year, we've sold more than 200 bikes, bikes that belonged to people" and were lost or stolen and left someplace by the thief. "If they (the owners) had spent 30 cents, they'd have gotten them back," Jurs said.

THE LICENSES serve another purpose, Jurs said. If a bicyclist is injured in an accident with an auto, the license serves as a means of identification.

"We're doing all we can, but we need help from the people" to protect bicycle riders of all ages in the city, Case said. Service officers visit all schools to explain safety laws and required equipment. They conduct safety lanes and inspections whenever the schools invite them, and will schedule similar programs for other groups, such as Scouts.

But adults and children still "are not taking the idea of bike safety seriously. They are ignoring the laws," Jurs said. "Parents are not cooperating with us, not instilling the thought in their kids of how serious bike safety is," Jurs said. He also noted bike riding has become more of a sport for adults, and cited National Safety Council estimates there will be eight million bikes on the nation's streets this summer.

Bicycle-law violators can be ticketed and taken to Circuit Court, Jurs said. In the case of youngsters, their parents must answer the charges in Circuit Court if a citation is issued.

"If we can't get to them any other way, we will have to" start issuing citations and bringing the cases to full court process, skipping the bicycle court in serious violation cases, he said.

High schools slate new placement test

A makeup placement test for prospective freshmen in High School District 214 schools will be given at 7:45 a.m. Saturday in the Hersey High School cafeteria, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights.

Students who missed the placement test earlier this year are asked to take the test, which will last until noon. Students are to bring two, No. 2 pencils.

Vinezeano taken out of CD post

Carmen Vinezeano has been removed as deputy director of Rolling Meadows Civil Defense, a group he led as director or deputy for 12 years. The deputy's position is being rotated among the four Civil Defense captains.

Vinezeano's appointment as deputy was withdrawn two months ago by Ald. Merrill A. Wuersch, 1st, who has been director since late 1972. The decision to remove Vinezeano was not announced publicly. Wuersch said he acted with the approval of Mayor Roland J. Meyer in withdrawing Vinezeano because they believed he was active in too many civic groups and was not devoting enough time to his Civil Defense responsibilities. Wuersch said Vinezeano has been active for several years in Rolling Meadows Community Chest, and is organizing the parade for this month's 20th Anniversary celebration.

VINEZEANO SAID he believes there has been a personality conflict, and said his position in coordinating Civil Defense required initiative. He added that he could not "run around getting OKs from everyone" every time he wanted to do something, and (Continued on Page 8)

U.S. gets low-income housing subsidy program

A countywide plan for housing subsidies to low- and moderate-income families in Chicago and the suburbs has been submitted to the federal government.

The housing-assistance plan is part of a community-development program providing federal funds for capital-improvement projects in the suburbs.

The county housing-assistance plan was drawn up in one week because of tight federal deadlines for submitting the application. It was the work of five members of the county community-development advisory council, a group of suburban mayors appointed by County Board Pres. George W. Dunne.

THE PLAN calls for an additional 1,000 units of low- and moderate-income housing to be made available during the next year in Cook County. The elderly should be given 400 out of the 1,000 units, the plan says.

Out of the 1,000 units, 300 should be in new buildings, 700 in existing buildings and 100 in rehabilitated buildings that were substandard, the plan says.

The subsidy program is expected to cost all of the $2.8 million the county hopes to get under the housing section of the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

The housing plan calls for rehabilitation of housing in south and southwest Cook County. "The greatest need for rehabilitation appears to be in these areas including abandoned property," the plan says.

In finding units in newly-constructed rental projects, the plan says "the aim is to achieve spatial deconcentration of these housing opportunities, and to make a special effort to provide them near centers of employment."

TERRY HANSEN, an administrative aide to Dunne, said during the next year the mayors will work to refine the goals and, for example, to decide if emphasis should be on rehabilitation of existing neighborhoods or on funding locations near employment centers.

HANSEN said the county also hopes to work with suburban building departments during the next year to pinpoint substandard buildings that could be rehabilitated with federal funds.

The subsidies can be spent for housing anywhere in the county, Hansen said, even though the capital improvements funds under the same federal act must be spent in communities which have allowed their populations to be added to the urban county total.

Locally, Palatine, Schaumburg, Wheeling and Rolling Meadows have allowed their populations to be included in the urban county total and the village presidents of Palatine, Wheeling and Schaumburg serve on the county community-development advisory council.

Food price wars fraud, citizen group charges

by DIANE MERMIGAS

An official of the Citizens Action Program (CAP) has charged that the "price wars" in Palatine grocery stores are a hoax and that prices should be drastically reduced before the consumer can begin to benefit.

Jackie Kendall, cochairman of CAP's consumer coalition, based the charges on price surveys the coalition made in Palatine's five major grocery chains in March and last week.

"We found very slim decreases in prices that were attributed more to the drop in the price of sugar rather than to these so-called price wars," she said.

"If there is a price war going on, then the stores are shooting with blanks. The money that these chain stores are using on lavish advertising of these so-called low prices could have been better used to really lower prices for the consumer," said Mrs. Kendall, a Palatine resident.

CAP, A COMMUNITY group that started in Chicago, has been surveying the prices of about 40 staple products in major grocery stores in Palatine, Evanston, Highland Park and Morton Grove.

The products surveyed include bread, peanut butter, milk, eggs, apples, carrots, lettuce, and various cuts of meats.

EAGLE DISCOUNT supermarket, 130 W. Baldwin Rd., offered the lowest grocery bill of the Palatine grocery stores surveyed.

The 40 staple items totaled $27.62 this month, a 76-cent reduction from the March grocery bill from Eagle, Mrs. Kendall said.

National Super Market, Hicks and Baldwin roads, had the second lowest cost for all the items in both surveys. Dominick's Finer Foods, 223 E. Northwest Hwy., had the third lowest price for all the items in the most recent survey and the second highest price for the items in CAP's survey two months ago.

THE TREASURE Island Store, Northwest Highway and Baldwin Road, had the fourth lowest over-all price for the items in both surveys.

"The interesting thing is that Jewel, who did so much overpraising on their miracle prices the past several weeks, had the highest over-all prices for the grocery items we surveyed — which goes to show that there really was no price war or drastic reductions," Mrs. Kendall said.

Jewel Food Store, 45 S. Plum Grove Rd., had the only increase in total cost of the items in the most recent survey. The 40 surveyed items cost $30.27, a 14-cent increase over what the same items cost at that store in March, Mrs. Kendall said.

Both of the Palatine area Jewels ranked highest priced in the most recent survey, although the Jewel at Hicks and Dundee roads, Palatine Township, showed an over-all $1.88 decrease this month in the price of the items, she said.

SOME OF THE items we surveyed only went down a cent or two which isn't enough to make a difference to the consumer. The prices could afford to go much lower and the stores would still be making a profit," she said.

Mrs. Kendall said that a noticeable increase in the price of produce over the past two months could not be justified because the Bureau of Labor Statistics recently projected that the wholesale price index would decrease 20 per cent this year.

In one of the Palatine stores, potatoes increased nearly 20 cents per five-pound bag, green peppers increased 20 cents per pound and lettuce increased 16 cents per head during the past two months, she said.

CAP intends to use the survey results to encourage the stores to lower their prices. Its consumer coalition has launched a massive pledge drive which requires consumers to state on pledge cards where they shop and their average weekly food bill.

"We hope to begin negotiations with some of the area stores within the next few months when we have enough pledge cards signed. Then we will be able to pressure stores into lowering their prices by threatening to have the pledgers boycott the store for a week or two because the prices are too high," Mrs. Kendall said.

MORE THAN 300 Palatine residents have signed cards and pledged to support the consumers' coalition by calling CAP at 358-6937, Mrs. Kendall said.

Residents have suggested that stores "stop their fancy, advertising gimmicks" as one way to reduce food prices even more. Other residents have suggested that area stores not stay open 24 hours and close early so they don't have to pay for additional staff and utilities "when no one out here shops that late," she said.

Consumers also have suggested to CAP officials that grocery stores begin acting more as "the consumer's buying agent" and refuse to stock

Price survey not realistic — grocers

Representatives of major grocery stores in Palatine say the Citizens Action Program's (CAP) recent food price survey is not valid and have denied the group's charges that the store are not lowering prices enough.

"I support the efforts of this kind of group, but the survey of 40 staple items can not indicate what the prices are for the total market. They would have to take a price survey on a greater number of items before it would be valid," said William Newby, vice president of public relations for Jewel Food Stores.

Newby said "possible distortions" can occur in any survey of products that are the same in size but are made by different manufacturers.

"YOU HAVE TO make absolutely sure that what you are comparing in two stores is the same product in all respects or else the comparison is not valid," he said.

CAP members surveying prices in the store said they are comparing the same sizes of major brands or comparing the house brands of each store.

Newly defended Jewel's "miracle price" campaign by saying that 3,327 items of about 10,000 that each Jewel store carries have been reduced in price from 1 cent to 74 cents.

"There is great pressure on all of the grocery stores to lower prices right now because there is so much competition in the food business. But, we are hoping that people continue to buy in great volumes so that we can afford to keep the prices low," Newby said.

NEWBY SAID Jewel has been reducing its advertising "over a period of time" and that the amount of money the company has spent on advertising "would not make a depreciable difference in the price of the items in the store," he said.

"The people must expect us to kick off a new sales campaign like this with some advertising, but the advertising is paying off and the response we have been getting during the past several weeks has met our expectations," he said.

Sam Garapolo, manager of the National Super Market, Hicks and Baldwin roads, agreed with Newby in saying that the group's objectives "are good," but said the survey, unless it is done "in greater depth," is not effective.

Garapolo mentioned National's price-protection policy which was started several weeks ago. The company announced that it would refuse to stock products in its store if the cost of those products was increased by the manufacturer, he said.

"WE ARE DOING all we can to give the consumer the lowest prices we can and I think the survey indicates that," Garapolo said of his store which has offered the second lowest prices in CAP's two recent surveys.

Garapolo also said he agrees with the group's suggestion that area stores close earlier each night to reduce cost of utilities and staff.

Larry Nauman, director of public relations for Dominick's Finer Food, said the recent reduction in prices in all stores is not a price war but "a clear indication that the grocery stores are concerned about the prices people are paying for their food."

"Every survey has its limitations and often they can be deceptive. The best way for a comparison to be done is for the consumer to compare the prices of things he buys the most of himself," Nauman said.

"Another thing the consumer and these special interest groups have to remember is that stores can not afford to have long-term reductions on produce and meat because there are so many variables that affect their cost and volume," he said.

products if they are priced too high, she said.

CAP originally was formed in Chicago to oppose pollution and to promote tax reform and lakefront preservation. The group also has an interest in a new computer checkout system for grocery stores and in the inconsistent packaging and weighing of food.

BARBARA POLOCCHIO, of Palatine, a member of the Citizens Action Program's consumer coalition, helps survey food prices in the village's major grocery stores. The price comparisons are being done by the group to alert consumers to the stores with the most drastic reductions and their prices.

Wheeling chief hit for court action

by LUISA GINETTI

Several Wheeling officials called Thursday for an investigation of Police Chief Peter T. Guttilla's action in interceding in a court hearing on hit-and-run charges against his secretary's son-in-law.

Village hall sources reported a heated closed-door meeting Thursday morning between Guttilla and Village Mgr. George Passolt in Passolt's office after the incident was disclosed by The Herald.

Passolt refused comment later on speculation that he would take disciplinary action against Guttilla. He said he expected to finish an inquiry into the matter today.

GUTTILLA INTERCEDED Wednesday on behalf of Luis Arellano, 1530 Park Pl., Des Plaines, and asked Associate Judge James Maher Jr. for a pretrial conference to discuss circumstances in the case.

Arellano was in court facing head-on, hit-and-run accident charges stemming from a March 21 accident two miles north of Hintz Road on Milwaukee Avenue. Arellano's car apparently crossed into northbound traffic and caused a collision with an auto driven by Gwyn Bontrager of Elkhart, Ind.

Maher refused to drop charges and continued the case to May 21. Guttilla said he was at the hearing only to keep Arellano company and denied he attempted to talk Bontrager into dropping charges against Arellano.

TRUSTEES CONTACTED Thursday said they had no knowledge of the incident until reading about it in The Herald but felt some action should be taken by Passolt.

"I'm very, very concerned after reading the article," Trustee Gilbert Monoson said. "If it's a matter of poor judgment it's serious in that respect alone," he said.

"I think it raises grave questions concerning the man's ability to lead a department and inspire his men when he himself exhibits such poor judgment," Monoson added.

"There are a number of unanswered questions that need to be answered but I definitely plan to pursue it," the trustee said.

TRUSTEE Charles M. Kerr said he did not know about the incident until Thursday. "I didn't know about it until I walked into the office," he said. "I think it is a problem for the manager because the chief is under the manager. I think the action (of the chief) deserves some action from the village manager," Kerr said.

Trustee Otis Hedlund said action should be taken against the chief if he acted improperly. "If the chief used his position in this instance, he used it wrongly," Hedlund said.

"It's something we'll have to take a serious look at because misusing powers in a private matter is a serious thing," Hedlund added.

TRUSTEE William Hein said he was unaware of the incident and declined comment "until I hear both sides of the story."

Trustee John Cole also declined comment on the matter because he said he also was unaware of the situation.

Trustee Donald Jackson could not be reached for comment.

The board will conduct an executive session Monday night after the regular board meeting to discuss personnel matters. The chief's case is expected to be reviewed.

Stores 'shooting blanks'

Grocery-price wars phony, group insists

by DIANE MERNIGAS

An official of the Citizens Action Program (CAP) has charged that the "price wars" in Palatine grocery stores are a hoax and that prices should be drastically reduced before the consumer can begin to benefit.

Jackie Kendall, co-chairman of CAP's consumer coalition, based the charges on price surveys the coalition made in Palatine's five major grocery chains in March and last week.

Northwest Hwy., had the third lowest price for all the items in the most recent survey and the second highest price for the items in CAP's survey two months ago.

THE TREASURY Island Store, Northwest Highway and Baldwin Road, had the fourth lowest over-all price for the items in both surveys.

"The interesting thing is that Jewel, who did so much advertising on their miracle prices the past several weeks, had the highest over-all prices for the grocery items we surveyed — which goes to show that there really was no price war or drastic reductions," Mrs. Kendall said.

Jewel Food Store, 45 S. Plum Grove Rd., had the only increase in total cost of the items in the most recent survey. The 40 surveyed items cost $30.27, a 14-cent increase over what the same items cost at that store in March, Mrs. Kendall said.

Both of the Palatine area Jewels ranked highest priced in the most recent survey, although the Jewel at Hicks and Dundee roads, Palatine Township, showed an over-all $1.68 decrease this month in the price of the items, she said.

SOME OF THE items we surveyed only went down a cent or two which isn't enough to make a difference to the consumer. The prices could afford to go much lower and the stores

Price survey invalid: grocers

Representatives of major grocery stores in Palatine say the Citizens Action Program's (CAP) recent food price survey is not valid and have denied the group's charges that the store are not lowering prices enough.

"I support the efforts of this kind of group, but the survey of 40 staple items can not indicate what the prices are for the total market. They would have to take a price survey on a greater number of items before it would be valid," said William Newby, vice president of public relations for Jewel Food Stores.

Newby said "possible distortions" can occur in any survey of products that are the same in size but are made by different manufacturers.

"YOU HAVE TO make absolutely sure that what you are comparing in two stores is the same product in all respects or else the comparison is not valid," he said.

CAP members surveying prices in the store said they are comparing the same sizes of major brands or comparing the house brands of each store.

Newby defended Jewel's "miracle price" campaign by saying that 3,327 items of about 10,000 that each Jewel store carries have been reduced in price from 1 cent to 74 cents.

"There is great pressure on all of the grocery stores to lower prices right now because there is so much competition in the food business. But, we are hoping that people continue to buy in great volumes so that we can afford to keep the prices low," Newby said.

NEWBY SAID Jewel has been reducing its advertising "over a period of time" and that the amount of money the company has spent on advertising "would not make a depreciable difference in the price of the items in the store," he said.

"The people must expect us to kick off a new sales campaign like this with some advertising, but the advertising is paying off and the response we have been getting during the past several weeks has met our expectations," he said.

Sam Garapolo, manager of the National Super Market, Hicks and Baldwin roads, agreed with Newby in saying that the group's objectives "are good," but said the survey, unless it is done "in greater depth," is not effective.

Garapolo mentioned National's price-protection policy which was started several weeks ago. The company announced that it would refuse to stock products in its store if the cost of those products was increased by the manufacturer, he said.

"WE ARE DOING all we can to give the consumer the lowest prices we can and I think the survey indicates that," Garapolo said of his store which has offered the second lowest prices in CAP's two recent surveys.

Garapolo also said he agrees with the group's suggestion that area stores close earlier each night to reduce cost of utilities and staff.

Larry Nauman, director of public relations for Dominick's Finer Food, said the recent reduction in prices in LUCKY ROCK. Marion L. Roper holds a lucky rock lent her for the Illinois Lottery Thursday. Mrs. Roper came home to Arlington Heights a $300,000 bonanza winner. A working mother, Mrs. Roper said she will continue working and hopes to buy a house with her share. She shared the prize ticket with friends.

'Gee whiz!'

Woman speechless after winning $300 grand in Lottery; plans to buy house, keep working

by JOE SWICKARD

"I can't believe it. I mean gee whiz," said Marion L. Roper of Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Roper, of 402 N. Chesnut Ave., was understandably at a loss for words Thursday night after she won the $300,000 bonanza drawing of the Illinois State Lottery.

"I've never won anything before. Nothing. Not even a $20 winner," she said, her voice straining with excitement and exertion to overcome the hubbub of the victory cocktail party at the WGN studio, where the drawings were conducted.

Mrs. Roper will split her winnings with another couple from Woodstock, regular partners in her weekly purchase of lottery tickets.

"I SPEND $2 every week. That's a Grand Slam $1 ticket, the two 50-cent tickets we buy with our friends and two 50-cent ones for myself," she said.

"I've got to figure out what I'm going to do. After they take the taxes, I'd like to buy a house," she said.

Mrs. Roper, an order and shipping clerk at F. H. Bonn Co., Arlington Heights, said her co-workers were sure she was going to win the big prize.

Her husband, Raymond, was sure, too, but also brought along some extra insurance for her.

"He works at Carl Sandburg School and a P.E. teacher there gave him a lucky charm to bring with us tonight. It's just a little rock shaped like an egg," she said.

THE LUCKY rock came through for Mrs. Roper, and she said some long-standing plans were going to get a boost with her winnings.

"I'm going to take a vacation. We've had that in the plans for a couple of months. Yes, this will make it a little better," she said.

Kids peddled bicycles in the mild spring night, unaware of their lucky neighbor, as Mrs. Roper returned from the drawing.

When the car stopped, Roper called out: "Here she is." Mrs. Roper, just shook her head and said, "I still can't believe it."

Inside the house, a newspaper clipping of her new Cadillac Seville lay on the coffee table, perhaps something to come with the winnings.

But for the time being, the Ropers plan to continue working. "Well, why not? We've been at this long," Roper chuckled.

MRS. ROPER, still smiling after three hours, said she still just couldn't believe it happened to her.

Her husband was doing his best to convince her. He tuned the television in for the 10 p.m. news to see the winners.

Other winners in the drawing were Matthew Preshiren, Hammond, Ind., $50,000; Alexander Grudzinski, Chicago; Jane F. Bjoraa, Chicago, and Andrew Cipri, Peoria, all $10,000 winners.

would still be making a profit," she said.

Mrs. Kendall said that a noticeable increase in the price of produce over the past two months could not be justified because the Bureau of Labor Statistics recently projected that the wholesale price index would decrease 29 per cent this year.

In one of the Palatine stores, potatoes increased nearly 20 cents per five-pound bag, green peppers increased 20 cents per pound and lettuce increased 18 cents per head during the past two months, she said.

CAP intends to use the survey results to encourage the stores to lower their prices. Its consumer coalition has launched a massive pledge drive which requires consumers to state on pledge cards where they shop and their average weekly food bill.

"We hope to begin negotiations with some of the area stores within the next few months when we have enough pledge cards signed. Then we will be able to pressure stores into lowering their prices by threatening to have the pledgers boycott the store for a week or two because the prices are too high," Mrs. Kendall said.

MORE THAN 300 Palatine residents have signed cards and pledged to support the consumers' coalition by calling CAP at 358-6957, Mrs. Kendall said.

Residents have suggested that

U.S. gets low-income housing subsidy program

A countywide plan for housing subsidies to low- and moderate-income families in Chicago and the suburbs has been submitted to the federal government.

The housing-assistance plan is part of a community-development program providing federal funds for capital-improvement projects in the suburbs.

The county housing-assistance plan was drawn up in one week because of tight federal deadlines for submitting the application. It was the work of five members of the county community-development advisory council, a group of suburban mayors appointed by County Board Pres. George W. Dunne.

THE PLAN calls for an additional 1,000 units of low- and moderate-income housing to be made available during the next year in Cook County. The elderly should be given 400 out of the 1,000 units, the plan says.

Out of the 1,000 units, 200 should be in new buildings, 700 in existing buildings and 100 in rehabilitated buildings that were substandard, the plan says.

The subsidy program is expected to cost all of the $2.8 million the county hopes to get under the housing section of the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

The housing plan calls for rehabilitation of housing in south and southwest Cook County. "The greatest need for rehabilitation appears to be in these areas including abandoned property," the plan says.

In finding units in newly-constructed rental projects, the plan says "the aim is to achieve spatial decentralization of these housing opportunities, and to make a special effort to provide them near centers of employment."

TERRY HANSEN, an administrative aide to Dunne, said during the next year the mayors will work to refine the goals and, for example, to decide if emphasis should be on rehabilitation of existing neighborhoods or on funding locations near employment centers.

HANSEN SAID the county also hopes to work with suburban building departments during the next year to pinpoint substandard buildings that could be rehabilitated with the federal funds.

The subsidies can be spent for housing anywhere in the county, Hansen said, even though the capital improvement funds under the same federal act must be spent in communities which have allowed their populations to be added to the urban county total.

Locally, Palatine, Schaumburg, Wheeling and Rolling Meadows have allowed their populations to be included in the urban county total and the village presidents of Palatine, Wheeling and Schaumburg serve on the county community-development advisory council.

Harper to offer classes at Wheeling shop center

by WANDALYN RICE
Harper College will offer classes this fall in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area.

The college's board of trustees Thursday night authorized the administration to negotiate a lease for space in the new Hinz-Buffalo Grove shopping center in Wheeling where the college will offer day and evening classes in 10 classrooms.

The board was urged to take the action by Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Edward Fabish, who said, "The idea of a facility close to our community is ideal. I think you will be very surprised at the turnout."

College officials said they expect to negotiate a lease for about $100,000 per year for five years. College Vice Pres. John Birkholtz said as many as 250 students may be attending classes at the center at any one time.

COLLEGE PRES. Robert Lahti said the new center will probably mean a substantial increase in the college's enrollment from the Wheeling area. He said, "We draw a small proportion of people from the village of Wheeling, but when you bring services closer to people, participation increases. Why should 40 people drive from Wheeling to Palatine when we can send one instructor there?"

Board member Robert Rausch recommended that the college negotiate for an additional parking lot near the shopping center at the same time it negotiates the lease in the center. College officials indicated the shopping center has space for about 250 cars. Because of that, Rausch said, "It's obvious we're going to need more parking space."

Classes will be offered at the center in business, communications, engineering, science and other fields. The center will be the first place the college will offer off-campus classes both day and evening.

The college now offers off-campus classes in Barrington High School and several smaller locations during evening. The board last month approved a lease agreement with St. Viator High School, Arlington Heights, and will offer evening classes there next fall.

Violates county law: state's attorney

Move to shut riding stable put off

A hearing on the request for a court order to close the former Pallington Stables in Palatine Township has been postponed until June 10.

The trial, which was to have begun Thursday, was postponed upon the court's request because of a backlog of cases, said Nancy Krueger of the State's Attorney's office.

The State's Attorney's office is seeking an injunction to stop use of the 8.2-acre parcel on Northwest Highway near Dundee Road as a riding stable and academy.

The late Joseph P. Hough in 1970 was denied a change in zoning by the County Board for a stable. The operation of the stable violates the county ordinance, according to the complaint filed by the State's Attorney's office.

The property owners have submitted another request for a zoning change to permit the stable, but the new request has not been acted on. The rescheduled trial will be held at 2 p.m. before Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen at the Chicago Civic Center.

Charged cop's hearing today

A Palatine Police and Fire Commission hearing is scheduled today on charges of inattention to duty placed against a policeman involved in an April 1 car accident.

Police Chief Jerry Bratcher placed the charges against patrolman John Johnson whose squad car allegedly struck an auto waiting for a traffic signal on Northwest Highway at Smith Street. No one was injured in the accident, police said. Johnson has been relieved of duties that require him to operate a motor vehicle pending the commission's decision.

The hearing will be at 8 p.m. at the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Administration Center, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine.

Police officers investigating the case and the drive involved in the accident will testify on behalf of the Police Dept., Bratcher said. Johnson was not available for comment.

stores "stop their fancy, advertising gimmicks" as one way to reduce food prices even more. Other residents have suggested that area stores not stay open 24 hours and close early so they don't have to pay for additional staff and utilities "when no one out here shops that late," she said.

Consumers also have suggested to CAP officials that grocery stores begin acting more as "the consumer's buying agent" and refuse to stock products if they are priced too high, she said.

CAP originally was formed in Chicago to oppose pollution and to promote tax reform and lakefront preservation. The group also has an interest in a new computer checkout system for grocery stores and in the inconsistent packaging and weighing of food.

Price survey not realistic — grocers

all stores is not a price war but "a clear indication that the grocery stores are concerned about the prices people are paying for their food."

"Every survey has its limitations and often they can be deceptive. The best way for a comparison to be done is for the consumer to compare the prices of things he buys the most of himself," Nauman said.

"Another thing the consumer and these special interest groups have to remember is that stores can not afford to have long-term reductions on produce and meat because there are so many variables that affect their cost and volume," he said.

BARBARA POLOCICHIO, of Palatine, a member of the Citizens Action Program's consumer coalition, helps survey food prices in the village's major grocery stores. The price comparisons are being done by the group to alert consumers to the stores with the most drastic reductions and their prices.

Wheeling officials rip chief's action in court

by LUISA GINETTI

Several Wheeling officials called Thursday for an investigation of Police Chief Peter T. Guttilla's action in interceding in a court hearing on hit-and-run charges against his secretary's son-in-law.

Village hall sources reported a heated closed-door meeting Thursday morning between Guttilla and Village Mgr. George Passolt in Passolt's office after the incident was disclosed by The Herald.

Passolt refused comment later on speculation that he would take disciplinary action against Guttilla. He said he expected to finish an inquiry into the matter today.

GUTTILLA INTERCEDED Wednesday on behalf of Luis Arellano, 1530 Park Pl., Des Plaines, and asked Associate Judge James Maher Jr. for a pretrial conference to discuss circumstances in the case.

Arellano was in court facing head-on, hit-and-run accident charges stemming from a March 21 accident two miles north of Hinz Road on Milwaukee Avenue. Arellano's car apparently crossed into northbound traffic and caused a collision with an auto driven by Gwyn Bontrager of Elkhardt, Ind.

Maher refused to drop charges and continued the case to May 21.

Guttilla said he was at the hearing only to keep Arellano company and denied he attempted to talk Bontrager into dropping charges against Arellano.

TRUSTEES CONTACTED Thursday said they had no knowledge of the incident until reading about it in The Herald but felt some action should be taken by Passolt.

"I'm very, very concerned after reading the article," Trustee Gilbert Monson said. "If it's a matter of poor judgment it's serious in that respect alone," he said.

"I think it raises grave questions concerning the man's ability to lead a department and inspire his men when he himself exhibits such poor judgment," Monson added.

"There are a number of unanswered questions that need to be answered but I definitely plan to pursue it," the trustee said.

TRUSTEE Charles M. Kerr said he did not know about the incident until Thursday. "I didn't know about it until I walked into the office," he said. "I think it is a problem for the manager because the chief is under the manager. I think the action (of the chief) deserves some action from the village manager," Kerr said.

Trustee Otis Hedlund said action should be taken against the chief if he acted improperly. "If the chief used his position in this instance, he used it wrongly," Hedlund said.

"It's something we'll have to take a serious look at because misusing powers in a private matter is a serious thing," Hedlund added.

TRUSTEE William Hein said he was unaware of the incident and declined comment "until I hear both sides of the story."

Trustee John Cole also declined comment on the matter because he said he also was unaware of the situation.

Trustee Donald Jackson could not be reached for comment.

The board will conduct an executive session Monday night after the regular board meeting to discuss personnel matters. The chief's case is expected to be reviewed.

Jones 'surprised' to find $100,000 budget surplus

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones says a budget surplus of more than $100,000 at the start of the 1975-76 fiscal year has eliminated the need for the village to issue tax-anticipation warrants.

Jones said the amount of the surplus won't be known for another month until all the bills and revenues from the 1974-75 fiscal year, which ended April 30, are received, but said the surplus could be as high as $300,000.

A year-end budget report indicates the village received $700,000 more than it budgeted in revenues. Jones said the village budgeted revenues at $1.8 million and will receive about $2.6 million. Expenditures totalled about $2.3 million.

"It looks very good. I am pleasantly surprised," Jones said. He said that despite the recession the sales tax revenue in the village had gone up and he predicted it would reach the $1 million mark.

Jones also attributed the surplus to the village board's "belt-tightening" in January when it amended the budget and made several cuts in spending.

McDonald Creek area

Flood relief 'next spring,' state says

by LYNN ASINOF

Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights residents living along McDonald Creek can expect flood relief by next spring, state officials say.

A project that includes the widening and dredging of the lower portion of McDonald Creek is tentatively slated for completion in early 1976. The project will allow the opening of the Soo Line culvert, west of Quince Lane, which in turn is expected to reduce upstream creek levels substantially.

The widening and dredging will affect portions of the creek from the Soo Line culvert south to the Des Plaines River.

This section is narrower than the upstream part of the creek. Residents in the area pushed for the widening and dredging work, fearing they would be flooded if the culvert was opened without downstream improvements.

LEON WINN, engineer with the state division of water resources, said his department is in the process of obtaining easements and property along the creek. He said appraisals of the property needed should be completed by the middle of this month, with residents contacted shortly thereafter.

Winn said if there are no problems in obtaining the right-of-way the project should go to bid in December.

Actual construction is estimated at about $170,000 Winn said, with the total project costing about $300,000.

"The over-all project will not take too terribly long to do," Winn said. "And I would like to do it in the winter because it is a winter job."

Winn estimated that it would take three to four months to complete the widening and dredging. The state is planning to make McDonald Creek 28 feet wide from Foundry Road south to the Des Plaines River, but officials do not think people will lose patios or garages as part of the project.

NANCY PHILIPPE of the Governor's Task Force on Flood Control said the state is hoping that Mount Prospect will sponsor the project. This would mean that the village would help in obtaining easements and also would maintain the creek once it is improved.

"It is very important to us that we get a maintenance agreement," Mrs. Philippe said, noting that the creek could quickly become overgrown if not maintained.

Mrs. Philippe said residents along the creek seem satisfied with the state's plans. She said previously the upstream residents were unhappy because the culvert was not opened while the downstream residents feared the culvert would be opened without any improvements.

"It is the most positive response from the people we have gotten," Mrs. Philippe said of a recent meeting where the plans were explained. "By in large everyone was very positive."

High school teachers get living-cost raises

Teachers in High School Dist. 214 will receive 2.75 per cent cost-of-living salary increases next year, coupled with previously negotiated step increases that will give the average district teacher an effective 10.2 per cent pay increase for the 1975-76 school year.

The raise will bring the average teacher salary from $15,135 to $15,522 and will cost the district an estimated $1.8 million, said Robert Cudney, associate superintendent of personnel.

District teachers are going into the final year of the first three-year contract in district history. The contract calls for regular step increases, based on length of service to the district and education, plus a cost-of-living increase.

The teachers are given half of any cost-of-living increase over 5 per cent, based on Chicago area cost of living statistics for the previous year. Last year, the average cost-of-living in the area rose about 10.3 per cent, according to Bureau of Labor Statistics figures.

Cudney said those at the top and bottom of the salary scale not eligible for increases, will receive about 6.5 per cent raises.

A first-year teacher with a bachelor's degree and no experience will receive a base salary next year of about $9,836, compared to $9,233 received this year.

The top of the district's salary scale for a teacher with 16 years' experience, plus 60 hours of credit toward a doctorate will be $22,643 compared to $21,256 last year.

Circulation up 9.5 per cent

Use of library facilities continue to rise: report

Use of the Mount Prospect Public Library continues to increase, according to the librarian's annual report.

The daily average of visitors to the library, 14 E. Busse Ave., was 969 Mondays through Saturdays and an additional 330 on Sundays, according to the report, presented Thursday night at the annual library board meeting.

Circulation of all library materials was up 9.5 per cent during the past year with a total circulation of 411,736 items, according to the report prepared by librarian Mary Jo Hutchings. The figures cover the library's fiscal year of May 1974 to April 1975.

Comparison shows the 1973 calendar year figure 735 average daily visitors to the library and a circulation of 367,500.

Films, records and cassettes make up a large portion of the library's circulation with the book collection totaling 73,968, Mrs. Hutchings said. For example, she said that in March there were 621 cassettes borrowed by patrons, 803 records and 969 films.

The number of registered borrowers at the end of April stood at 34,587.

Booth at charity fair

The Xi Eta Rho chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will set up a booth of home-baked goods and crafts May 17 at the Mount Prospect Charity Fair.

The chapter will be selling items from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. at the fair grounds at the Mount Prospect Plaza shopping center.

Sheriff's policeman cited by his boss

Sgt. Ernest G. Marinelli of the Sheriff's Police recently was presented a letter of reprimand from Sheriff Richard J. Elrod for his work in the arrest of a ring of burglars who operated in the Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect area.

Marinelli received a second letter of recognition at the same time for efforts which led to the arrest of five suspects in an Oak Forest armed robbery.

LUCKY ROCK. Marion L. Roper holds a lucky rock lent her. A working mother, Mrs. Roper said she will continue working and hopes to buy a house with her share. She shared the prize ticket with friends.

'Gee whiz!'

Woman speechless after winning $300 grand in Lottery; plans to buy house, keep working

by JOE SWICKARD

"I can't believe it. I mean gee whiz," said Marion L. Roper of Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Roper, of 402 N. Chesnut Ave., was understandably at a loss for words Thursday night after she won the $300,000 bonanza drawing of the Illinois State Lottery.

"I've never won anything before. Nothing. Not even a $20 winner," she said, her voice straining with excitement and exertion to overcome the hubbub of the victory cocktail party at the WGN studio, where the drawings were conducted.

Mrs. Roper will split her winnings with another couple from Woodstock, regular partners in her weekly purchase of lottery tickets.

"I SPEND $2 every week. That's a Grand Slam $1 ticket, the two 50-cent tickets we buy with our friends and two 50-cent ones for myself," she said.

"I've got to figure out what I'm going to do. After they take the taxes, I'd like to buy a house," she said.

Mrs. Roper, an order and shipping clerk at F. H. Bonn Co., Arlington Heights, said her co-workers were sure she was going to win the big prize.

Her husband, Raymond, was sure, too, but also brought along some extra insurance for her.

"He works at Carl Sandburg School and a P.E. teacher there gave him a lucky charm to bring with us tonight. It's just a little rock shaped like an egg," she said.

THE LUCKY rock came through for Mrs. Roper, and she said some long-standing plans were going to get a boost with her winnings.

"I'm going to take a vacation. We've had that in the plans for a couple of months. Yes, this will make it a little better," she said.

Kids peddled bicycles in the mild spring night, unaware of their lucky neighbor, as Mrs. Roper returned from the drawing.

When the car stopped, Roper called out: "Here she is." Mrs. Roper, just shook her head and said, "I still can't believe it."

Inside the house, a newspaper clipping of her new Cadillac Seville lay on the coffee table, perhaps something to come with the winnings.

But for the time being, the Ropers plan to continue working. "Well, why not? We've been at this long," Roper chuckled.

MRS. ROPER, still smiling after three hours, said she still just couldn't believe it happened to her.

Her husband was doing his best to convince her. He tuned the television in for the 10 p.m. news to see the winners.

Other winners in the drawing were Matthew Preshiren, Hammond, Ind., $50,000; Alexander Grudinski, Chicago; Jane F. Bjoraa, Chicago, and Andrew Cipri, Peoria, all $10,000 winners.

U.S. gets low-income housing subsidy program

A countywide plan for housing subsidies to low- and moderate-income families in Chicago and the suburbs has been submitted to the federal government.

The housing-assistance plan is part of a community-development program providing federal funds for capital-improvement projects in the suburbs.

The county housing-assistance plan was drawn up in one week because of tight federal deadlines for submitting the application. It was the work of five members of the county community-development advisory council, a group of County Board members appointed by County Board Pres. George W. Dunne.

THE PLAN calls for an additional 1,000 units of low- and moderate-income housing to be made available during the next year in Cook County. The elderly should be given 400 out of the 1,000 units, the plan says.

Out of the 1,000 units, 200 should be in new buildings, 700 in existing buildings and 100 in rehabilitated buildings that were substandard, the plan says.

The subsidy program is expected to cost all of the $2.8 million the county hopes to get under the housing section of the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

The housing plan calls for rehabilitation of housing in south and southwest Cook County. "The greatest need for rehabilitation appears to be in these areas including abandoned property," the plan says.

In finding units in newly-constructed rental projects, the plan says "the aim is to achieve spatial deconcentration of these housing opportunities, and to make a special effort to provide them near centers of employment."

TERRY HANSEN, an administrative aide to Dunne, said during the next year the mayors will work to refine the goals and, for example, to decide if emphasis should be on rehabilitation of existing neighborhoods or on funding locations near employment centers.

HANSEN SAID the county also hopes to work with suburban building departments during the next year to pinpoint substandard buildings that could be rehabilitated with the federal funds.

The subsidies can be spent for housing anywhere in the county, Hansen said, even though the capital improvements funds under the same federal act must be spent in communities which have allowed their populations to be added to the urban county total.

Locally, Palatine, Schaumburg, Wheeling and Rolling Meadows have allowed their populations to be included in the urban county total and the village presidents of Palatine, Wheeling and Schaumburg serve on the county community-development advisory council.

FRANK MITCHELL seems to be handling the matter of donating blood in a patient manner as Sherrie Sommerfeld administers assistance.

The scene Thursday night at the Mount Prospect Community Center was part of the village's monthly blood drive. More drives will be scheduled as part of the program.

Residents giving blood at twice last year's rate

Mount Prospect's community blood program collected almost twice the amount of blood in 1974 than in 1973.

In 1974, the drive collected 1,104 pints of blood compared to 564 in 1973. Norma Murauskis, volunteer chairman of the program, said she was extremely proud of the statistics.

Mrs. Murauskis took on the blood program about a year ago.

"We at the blood center are very pleased with the progress that Mount Prospect's program has experienced since you assumed the responsibility for its implementation," J. Dan Connor of the North Suburban Blood Center stated in a letter.

The village's annual goal is 1,800 pints. If reached, all Mount Prospect residents and their immediate families are assured of blood when needed.

If the annual goal is not met, the village can use only the amount of blood already donated.

High schools slate new placement test

A makeup placement test for prospective freshmen in High School Dist. 214 schools will be given at 7:45 a.m. Saturday in the Hersey High School cafeteria, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights.

Students who missed the placement test earlier this year are asked to take the test, which will last until noon. Students are to bring two, No. 2 pencils.

Kids work for canoe trip

The senior high group at South Church-Community Baptist is working to earn money toward a canoe trip next month in Wisconsin. They've scheduled a car wash Saturday at the church, 501 S. Emerson, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. A wash will be $1.50, with a complete wax job $3.

There'll be fruit drink product testing in the church for women. The kids will receive a fee for each opinion of the drink.

The young people will have a "slave day" May 24 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The "slaves" will work at any odd jobs around the house or yard. Call South Church, 233-0501, to arrange for workers.

SPEAKING OF South Church, the Rev. Warren Sapp is lining up high school volunteers to work in a day camp at South Chicago Neighborhood House again this summer. The area primarily is Mexican and Polish.

Last year the young people who worked received high school credit in sociology for the summer project. Call South Church to indicate interest.

THE MOUNT PROSPECT Garden Club has scheduled a salad bar luncheon at 1 p.m. Wednesday at the Community Center, 600 S. See-Gwan. There'll be a plant auction with perennials, shrubs, wild flowers and house plants from club members' gardens.

Luncheon reservations must be made today. Call Mary Walshaw at 233-5878. Cost is $2.

PASTOR KENNETH H. Granquist of Grace Lutheran Church recently returned from an eight-day trip to Mexico. The trip, made by 24 members of his congregation and others, included visits to Mexico City, Taxco and Acapulco.

This was the fifth tour Granquist has escorted in recent years.

THREE-HUNDRED mothers will receive orchids today compliments of the Mount Prospect Plaza, Rand and Central roads. Women need only present the sales receipt from a Plaza store at the merchants' association office at the rear of the mall.

AT GRACE LUTHERAN Church tonight, it's Mother-Daughter Night. There'll be "patchwork desserts" and a doll parade — with everyone who attends bringing a favorite doll.

Nancy Eversole will sing and play mountain music on a dulcimer.

Referendum may end schools' $8 book fee

Parents of children in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 would be spared an $8-a-year book fee if a fall referendum is approved by voters.

The possibility of a referendum was raised by board of education members Thursday night.

If approved, the $8 annual book fee would be dropped, and the book expense would be paid through taxes. School officials noted that it would not necessarily mean a tax increase, but indicated funds could be diverted from other uses.

The district has charged an $8 book rental fee "for many years," Supt. Kenneth Gill said. But annual textbook costs to the district have risen to twice that amount, he said.

MARJORIE BEU, associate superintendent for instruction, said textbook costs to the district have risen because the district is in the process of replacing some textbooks, some of which are five years old.

During the current year, Dist. 21 has spent $149,988 on textbooks and workbooks through February. But it took in only $60,520 for those books through the current $8 rental fee, said James Gochis, Dist. 21 business manager.

Illinois school law states that school districts must charge for textbooks unless voters pass a special referendum to pick up the tab. According to a recent Rockford court decision, districts may charge for consumable materials such as workbooks, pencils and paper, whether or not they pass a textbook referendum, said Dist. 21 attorney Everett Nicholas.

"I think we're faced with a decision of bringing the book-rental fee in line, (with district book costs) or going to a referendum," Edwin Smith, board member, said.

Gill and Associate Supt. John Barger said that if the district picked up the full cost of providing textbooks, the money would have to come from the operating budget. The funds needed to provide free textbooks would be the equivalent of six teacher salaries, Barger said.

The board postponed further discussion of a free textbook referendum until its first meeting in June so it would have a full board present. Board member Jack Lane was not present Thursday.

Union threatens suit against phone company

by STEVE BROWN

Union officials have threatened court action against Central Telephone Co. unless the company begins to arbitrate several labor disputes by Monday.

The Herald has learned that telephone company officials were put on notice that the court action would be taken by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 338, unless the company submits to arbitration disputes involving recent layoffs and the reclassification of 80 employees.

The move comes on the heels of an announcement that the union has scheduled a strike vote for May 23. The announcement was made a week before contract talks are scheduled to get under way.

THOMAS L. BEAGLEY, president and business manager of the union, charged the company has been dragging its feet on arbitration of the grievances regarding the layoffs that occurred in April.

On top of the threatened court action and the strike vote, the company also is facing discrimination charges filed by several employees.

Several employees said they were discriminated against in the company's reclassification program and that the company ignored seniority regulations in making the changes.

Bernad Kalwunder of Palatine told The Herald he was transferred from a switchboard repairman to janitor in the move. He has filed charges with the Fair Employment Practices Commission and the U. S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission over the dispute.

MARTIN BROWN, a company spokesman, said the company has been in compliance with union contract provisions for arbitration of grievances. He denied the company has dragged its feet on the matter. He added that company officials were surprised by the strike-vote notification.

"We have no reason to believe there will not be a settlement of the contract talks prior to the July 1 expiration date on the contract," Brown said. He noted that the company has not had a strike in its Illinois Division.

The company laid off about three per cent of its 1,200 local employees in March, stating that worsening economic conditions forced the move. The company also reclassified 80 other workers. The action changed their assignments and in most cases caused them to take lower-paying jobs.

TWO YEARS AGO a settlement was reached just 21 hours before workers were scheduled to go on strike.

Union officials have indicated they will seek a substantial pay increase in order to bring their members' pay scale in line with employees of Illinois Bell in the area.

The company provides telephone service to 70,000 customers in Des Plaines, Park Ridge and a portion of Mount Prospect.

Fund-raisers set to send jazz band to Alabama fest

Forest View High School Jazz Band members and boosters will sponsor a variety of fund-raising activities this month to send the band to the All-America Jazz Band Festival in Mobile, Ala.

The school band, on the basis of its competition record this year, will be one of eight performing at the festival, June 6 and 7.

The fund-raising activities, which will feature a combination car-wash-jazz concert, May 24, must raise $2,600, said Laurie Woodland, president of the Forest View High School Band Boosters.

The 22-member band, directed by Fred Elliot, qualified for the national festival by winning the Midwest Regional competition at Crown Point, Ind., in February.

THE BAND was invited to the Midwest competition after sweeping the four competitions it entered this year, said Elliot. The band took firsts at Augustana College in Rock Island, the University of Wisconsin at Whitewater, Eastern Illinois University, and Western Illinois University.

Elliot said the band will represent the Midwest at Mobile, along with bands representing other parts of the country. The Mobile performance is not competitive, he said.

Members of the jazz band and music boosters will hold car washes for the next three Saturdays at Ron's 66, Dempster Street and Elmhurst Rd. in Des Plaines. The band will perform at the May 24 car wash.

The band will play in several concerts to raise funds, including one in Franklin Park on June 1 and the band's annual concert at the high school, scheduled for Monday, May 28. The school is at 2121 S. Goebbert Rd., Arlington Heights.

Those interested in accompanying the band to Alabama or in donating money are asked to call Mrs. Woodland at 297-6620.

Harper courses slated in new shop center

by WANDALYN RICE

Harper College will offer classes this fall in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area.

The college's board of trustees Thursday night authorized the administration to negotiate a lease for space in the new Illinois-Buffalo Grove shopping center in Wheeling where the college will offer day and evening classes in 10 classrooms.

The board was urged to take the action by Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Edward Fabbish, who said, "The idea of a facility close to our community is ideal. I think you will be very surprised at the turnout."

College officials said they expect to negotiate a lease for about $100,000 per year for five years. College Vice Pres. John Birkholtz said as many as 230 students may be attending classes at the center at any one time.

COLLEGE PRES. Robert Lahti said the new center will probably mean a substantial increase in the college's enrollment from the Wheeling area. He said, "We draw a smaller proportion of people from the village of Wheeling, but when you bring services closer to people, participation increases. Why should 40 people drive from Wheeling to Palatine when we can send one instructor there?"

Board member Robert Rausch recommended that the college negotiate for an additional parking lot near the shopping center at the same time it negotiates the lease in the center. College officials indicated the shopping center has space for about 250 cars. "Because of that, Rausch said, 'It's obvious we're going to need more parking space.'"

Classes will be offered at the center in business, communications, engineering, science and other fields. The center will be the first place the college will offer off-campus classes both day and evening.

The college now offers off-campus classes in Barrington High School and several smaller locations during evening. The board last month approved a lease agreement with St. Viator High School, Arlington Heights, and will offer evening classes there next fall.

'Gee whiz'

Resident (almost) speechless after winning $300,000 in Lottery

by JOE SWICKARD

"I can't believe it. I mean gee whiz," said Marion L. Roper of Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Roper, of 402 N. Chesnut Ave., was understandably at a loss for words Thursday night after she won the $300,000 bonanza drawing of the Illinois State Lottery.

"I've never won anything before. Nothing. Not even a $20 winner," she said, her voice straining with excitement and exertion to overcome the hubbub of the victory cocktail party at the WGN studio, where the drawings were conducted.

Mrs. Roper will split her winnings with another couple from Woodstock, regular partners in her weekly purchase of lottery tickets.

"I SPEND $2 every week. That's a Grand Slam $1 ticket, the two 50-cent tickets we buy with our friends and two 50-cent ones for myself," she said.

"I've got to figure out what I'm going to do. After they take the taxes, I'd like to buy a house," she said.

Mrs. Roper, an order and shipping clerk at F. H. Bonn Co., Arlington Heights, said her co-workers were sure she was going to win the big prize.

Her husband, Raymond, was sure, too, but also brought along some extra insurance for her.

"He works at Carl Sandburg School and a P.E. teacher there gave him a lucky charm to bring with us tonight. It's just a little rock shaped like an egg," she said.

THE LUCKY rock came through for Mrs. Roper, and she said some long-standing plans were going to get a boost with her winnings.

"I'm going to take a vacation. We've had that in the plans for a couple of months. Yes, this will make it a little better," she said.

Kids peddled bicycles in the mild spring night, unaware of their lucky neighbor, as Mrs. Roper returned from the drawing.

When the car stopped, Roper called out: "Here she is." Mrs. Roper, just shook her head and said, "I still can't believe it."

Inside the house, a newspaper clipping of her new Cadillac Seville lay on the coffee table, perhaps something to come with the winnings.

But for the time being, the Ropers plan to continue working. "Well, why not? We've been at this long," Roper chuckled.

MRS. ROPER, still smiling after three hours, said she still just couldn't believe it happened to her.

Her husband was doing his best to convince her. He tuned the television in for the 10 p.m. news to see the winners.

Other winners in the drawing were Matthew Presliren, Hammond, Ind., $50,000; Alexander Grudzinski, Chicago; Jane F. Bjorans, Chicago, and Andrew Cipri, Peoria, all $10,000 winners.

LUCKY ROCK. Marion L. Roper holds a lucky rock lent her for the Illinois Lottery Thursday. Mrs. Roper came home to Arlington Heights a $300,000 bonanza winner. A working mother, Mrs. Roper said she will continue working and hopes to buy a house with her share. She shared the prize ticket with friends.

To finance 113-acre purchase

Lake Arlington fund bid back to village for review

by KURT BAER

An application for nearly half a million dollars in state aid to be used in the purchase of land for Lake Arlington is moving through government channels on its way to the Illinois Conservation Dept.

The Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission Thursday completed its consideration of the Arlington Heights application, and is sending it back to village officials for review before sending it to the conservation department probably next month.

The grant could provide up to half of the $999,000 needed to acquire 113 acres along McDonald Creek north of Palatine Road and east of Windsor Drive. Plans call for developing the site into a lake for both flood control and recreational uses.

AS PART OF the grant, the village and the Arlington Heights Park District have prepared a $120,000 recreation plan for Lake Arlington which includes marinas, tennis courts, picnic areas and baseball diamonds.

The cost of constructing the lake is estimated at around $5 million.

Although the property being sought lies within the Prospect Heights Park District, an agreement has been reached with the Arlington Heights Park District, which would be responsible for managing the lake.

Both Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights residents would have equal access to the lake, according to terms of the agreement, and the land would remain part of the Prospect Heights Park District.

James Holzwarz, village administrative assistant who prepared the grant application, Thursday said competition for conservation department recreation money is in short supply and that it may be some months until the village is told if it will receive the money.

GRANT REGULATIONS prohibit the conservation department from awarding more than 10 per cent of the total money available to any one project. Therefore the village's application requested half the $999,000 estimated purchase price, or 10 per cent of the department's total funds, whichever is greater, Holzwarz said.

If the grant is approved, the money will come in the form of reimbursement to the village. Federal revenue sharing funds would be used for the initial purchase.

It will take several years to design and construct Lake Arlington after the property is acquired.

Holzwarz said he did not know if the property owner has agreed to sell the land, or if it would have to go into a court condemnation proceeding.

High school teachers get living-cost raises

Teachers in High School Dist. 214 will receive 2.75 per cent cost-of-living salary increases next year, coupled with previously negotiated step increases that will give the average district teacher an effective 10.2 per cent pay increase for the 1975-76 school year.

The raise will bring the average teacher salary from $15,135 to $16,122 and will cost the district an estimated $1.6 million, said Robert Cudney, associate superintendent of personnel.

District teachers are going into the final year of the first three-year contract in district history. The contract calls for regular step increases, based on length of service to the district and education, plus a cost-of-living increase.

The teachers are given half of any cost-of-living increase over 5 per cent, based on Chicago area cost of living statistics for the previous year. Last year, the average cost-of-living in the area rose about 10.5 per cent, according to Bureau of Labor Statistics figures.

Cudney said those at the top and bottom of the salary scale not eligible for increases, will receive about 6.5 per cent raises.

A first-year teacher with a bachelor's degree and no experience will receive a base salary next year of about $9,836, compared to $9,233 received this year.

The top of the district's salary scale for a teacher with 18 years' experience, plus 60 hours of credit toward a doctorate will be $22,643 compared to $21,256 last year.

Parks' garden users get free landfill Saturday

Arlington Heights residents using the park district's garden plots this summer will have free access Saturday to Nu Earth, dry landfill provided by the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

The Nu Earth will be available to residents Saturday at the Prairie Farm site at Belmont Avenue and Council Trail and at the U. S. Army Nike Base at Central and Wilke roads. Some 85 garden plots still are available to residents at various park district locations. Residents can pay a $3 registration fee to use the garden plots at the Pioneer Park complex, 500 S. Fernandez St., daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The park district will continue to make the Nu Earth available to residents for use in their home gardens and lawns at the village landfill at Kennicott Street and Dundee Road.

U.S. gets low-income housing subsidy program

A countywide plan for housing subsidies to low- and moderate-income families in Chicago and the suburbs has been submitted to the federal government.

The housing-assistance plan is part of a community-development program providing federal funds for capital-improvement projects in the suburbs.

The county housing-assistance plan was drawn up in one week because of tight federal deadlines for submitting the application. It was the work of five members of the county community-development advisory council, a group of suburban mayors appointed by County Board Pres. George W. Dunne.

THE PLAN calls for an additional 1,000 units of low- and moderate-income housing to be made available during the next year in Cook County. The elderly should be given 400 out of the 1,000 units, the plan says.

Out of the 1,000 units, 200 should be in new buildings, 700 in existing buildings and 100 in rehabilitated buildings that were substandard, the plan says.

The subsidy program is expected to cost all of the $2.8 million the county hopes to get under the housing section of the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

The housing plan calls for rehabilitation of housing in south and southwest Cook County. "The greatest need for rehabilitation appears to be in these areas including abandoned property," the plan says.

In finding units in newly-constructed rental projects, the plan says "the aim is to achieve spatial deconcentration of these housing opportunities, and to make a special effort to provide them near centers of employment."

TERRY HANSEN, an administrative aide to Dunne, said during the next year the mayors will work to refine the goals and, for example, to decide if emphasis should be on rehabilitation of existing neighborhoods or on funding locations near employment centers.

HANSEN SAID the county also hopes to work with suburban building departments during the next year to pinpoint substandard buildings that could be rehabilitated with the federal funds.

The subsidies can be spent for housing anywhere in the county, Hansen said, even though the capital improvements funds under the same federal act must be spent in communities which have allowed their populations to be added to the urban county total.

Locally, Palatine, Schaumburg, Wheeling and Rolling Meadows have allowed their populations to be included in the urban county total and the village presidents of Palatine, Wheeling and Schaumburg serve on the county community-development advisory council.

Fall referendum may end $8 grade school book fee

Parents of children in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 would be spared an $8-a-year book fee if a fall referendum is approved by voters.

The possibility of a referendum was raised by board of education members Thursday night.

If approved, the $8 annual book fee would be dropped, and the book expense would be paid through taxes. School officials noted that it would not necessarily mean a tax increase, but indicated funds could be diverted from other uses.

The district has charged an $8 book rental fee "for many years," Supt. Kenneth Gill said. But annual textbook costs to the district have risen to twice that amount, he said.

MAJORIE BEU, associate superintendent for instruction, said textbook costs to the district have risen because the district is in the process of replacing some textbooks, some of which are five years old.

During the current year, Dist. 21 has spent $149,988 on textbooks and workbooks through February. But it took in only $66,529 for those books through the current $8 rental fee, said James Gochis, Dist. 21 business manager.

Illinois school law states that school districts must charge for textbooks unless voters pass a special referendum to pick up the tab. According to a recent Rockford court decision, districts may charge for consumable materials such as workbooks, pencils and paper, whether or not they pass a textbook referendum, said Dist. 21 attorney Everett Nicholas.

"I think we're faced with a decision of bringing the book-rental fee in line, (with district book costs) or going to a referendum," Edwin Smith, board member, said.

Gill and Associate Supt. John Barger said that if the district picked up the full cost of providing textbooks, the money would have to come from the operating budget. The funds needed to provide free textbooks would be the equivalent of six teacher salaries, Barger said.

The board postponed further discussion of a free textbook referendum until its first meeting in June so it would have a full board present. Board member Jack Lane was not present Thursday.

CAN RHEUMATIC FEVER BE PREVENTED?

Unfortunately its cause is not completely clear. We do know that about half of all cases have had tonsillitis or a sore throat from one to four weeks before.

It must be recognized before the heart is seriously injured. Only a physician can diagnose it. Protect your children. Always consult your doctor when they have a fever or sore throat. If the diagnosis is early, rheumatic fever is not as dangerous.

Homeowners prepare petition

Arlington Manor group fights commercial growth

A group of residents is mounting a campaign to oppose further office and business development on S. Arlington Heights Road in their neighborhood.

Arlington Manor Homeowners' Assn. officers, who represent 164 homeowners in the unincorporated subdivision, plan to present petitions at the Arlington Heights Plan Commission meeting Wednesday.

CHARLES SALES, president of the association, said the homeowners' group also has the support of Arlington Heights residents, who live on or near S. Arlington Heights Road.

"Mainly, our objections are based on the fact that allowing further office development on Arlington Heights road in our neighborhood will decrease home values, create hazardous traffic and increase flooding problems," Sales said.

Sales has charged Arlington Heights officials with discrimination in deciding what portions of Arlington Heights Road are suitable for single-family or commercial development.

"It does not seem fair that the portion of Arlington Heights Road that borders our subdivision should be deemed suitable for office buildings and businesses, while the northern end of Arlington Heights Road is judged a single residential area."

"We believe this portion of Arlington Heights Road is just as attractive to single-family development as the other portion of the road in Arlington Heights, and want to keep it for a single-family development," Sales said.

THE HOMEOWNERS' association has gathered more than 150 signatures on the petitions.

"At least 100 of us plan to march to a plan commission meeting May 14. We will offer testimony in opposition to the Arlington Realty Co. request for office transitional zoning on a piece of property they own on Arlington Heights Road," said Sales.

The Arlington Manor subdivision is a semi-developed area bounded by Magnolia Drive on the north, Cypress Lane on the south, Douglas Avenue on the east, and Arlington Heights Road on the west.

"Although most of the subdivision is unincorporated, many of the residents like myself are annexed to the village and Arlington Heights residents," Sales said.

Sales said the realty company owns three lots on Arlington Heights Road at the corner of Cypress and plans to demolish a single-family home on the property and construct an office building.

"OUR CHILDREN walk down Cypress to Dunton School on Arlington Heights road and existing traffic from the building onto Cypress will create a hazard to them," he said.

"Our subdivision floods now and with more parking lots flooding will be further increased," said Sales.

Mainly our big plea will be for Arlington Heights officials to grant our neighborhood the same privilege to retain single family zoning along Arlington Heights Road as Arlington Heights residents who live on the north portion enjoy," said Sales.
